

Delta Sigma Rho Grants Chapter To Oregon Body

National Speaking Frat To Install Society During Term

Delta Sigma Rho, national public speaking honorary society, has granted a chapter of the society to the University of Oregon. Just prior to Christmas vacation a letter was received from President Stanley Houck, of Delta Sigma Rho, informing the University that it had been granted a charter. President Houck himself will install the chapter sometime this term.

Oregon petitioned Delta Sigma Rho last year. Several members of the faculty are members of the society: President Arnold Bennett Hall, Dean E. C. Robbins, of the school of business administration, Professor Hugh E. Rosson, associate professor of English and law, J. K. Horner, assistant professor of English, and J. Stanley Gray, assistant professor of English.

Delta Sigma Rho is the oldest intercollegiate public speaking society which is exclusively an honor society and national in scope. The constitution provides that only those students who have actually represented their institution at large in some intercollegiate forensic contest are eligible for membership. Delta Sigma Rho originated in the largest institutions in the country and it grants charters to the large institutions.

The date of installation of the chapter here has not yet been decided.

Read What Interests You Advises Alfons Korn, Oregon Rhodes Scholar

Read what interests you; read more than is necessary for class work. That is the advice Alfons Korn, recently appointed Rhodes scholar from Oregon, would give to students.

He even goes so far as to say that, if one is especially interested in one phase of a subject, it is all right to read profusely about that and let class work slide for a while. He believes that the most good can be found in general reading that gives personal satisfaction, rather than in trudging a systematic line such as is followed by many successful aspirants to Rhodes scholarships.

Korn, who is a major in general literature, intends to "do reading" for the honor school of English language and literature. In other words, his plan is to major in English. He believes that he will teach literature on his return to the United States in 1930.

His trip to England is being planned with the intention of spending some time in New York City and several weeks in Paris, where he claims he will do the usual things. The term at Oxford begins about the first of October; his summer vacations will be spent in traveling over the continent.

Korn, who is 20, did not make up his mind to try out for the scholarship until about two weeks before the examinations were given here. It is interesting to note that he has attended school for 16 years within a radius of five blocks—the Patterson school on Alder, the University high school, and the University of Oregon—and that Theodore Buch, named for the scholarship at large, if there is one, attended high school and college with Korn, and the Condon grammar school about seven blocks from the campus.

of publications and publicity. She has worked on a number of small newspapers, and in 1921 and 1922, engaged in special writing for the Oakland Tribune.

The editors will also hear Hal E. Hoss, manager of the Oregon City Enterprise, who will speak on "Editing the High School Annual." A large number of high school annuals have been printed on the press of the Enterprise.

Red Cross Experts Will Demonstrate First Aid Methods

Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock and again at 4 o'clock the men and women on the campus will have the opportunity to see the various means of first aid as taught by the Red Cross demonstrated by two experts in the work. The occasion is the result of a tour which the national Red Cross society is conducting over the entire United States. The tour is being made with a car entirely equipped with every first aid device known to the Red Cross workers, and the demonstrations are given by Dr. W. J. Sention and Mr. Herbert Young, experts in the work of the Red Cross.

At one o'clock they will give a demonstration of all types of first aid, in the men's gymnasium. The meeting will be open to all men on the campus who can conveniently attend. The program will include life saving and resuscitation.

At 4 o'clock they will hold another meeting in the women's gymnasium for the women of the campus. At this time they will devote most of the time to such phases of the work that are of special interest to women. Life saving and resuscitation will be included in this program also.

Dean John Bovard, of the school of physical education, urges the men and women of the campus to take advantage of these opportunities and to attend the meetings if it is at all possible. In case more people desire to attend the meetings than can be accommodated, another meeting will be arranged.
