1915 Circulation Low

"In the earliest records of circulation numbers, 1915, the total circulation was 68,458; in 1926 it was 430,310, showing the great increase in use and demands. More than usual was expended this year for sets and back numbers of periodicals; and there are now requests from different departments for journals, the approximate total of which is forty,-some complete sets and others just certain volumes."

Mr. Douglass has given a statistical record of representative college and university libraries, compiled by Mr. J. T. Gerould, now librarian of Princeton University.

"This year's list," he says, "includes 38 institutions. An examination of them indicates that of the 38, the Oregon library is 29th in size, 23rd in number of volumes added during the past year, 21st in size of student body, etc. This means that in comparison with the size of our student body we are below average in size of our library, in number of annual accessions. Other figures indicate that we are near the head of the list in recorded use of books, both for home use and use within the library; so that in comparison with our use of books, our library resources are small.

Library Steps to be Stage for Sale Today

At nine o'clock this morning the bell will have rung, giving the start swirved back towards shore she signal for the Women's League auction sale of lost articles from the University depot.
