Gunther F. Watson
Ridings F. E. Dougery

Westergren G. J. Dougery
Milligan G. Dixon
Time: 7:30.
Place: McArthur Court.

NEVER has a basketball championship series been accompanied by so much doubt and so many rumors. Nobody seems to know what's what as the time for the first game of the series between Oregon and California to decide the coast hoop title approaches.

Okerberg refused to say whether they would start tonight or not. Last night's workout was taken up with shooting practice, and found Westergren, Okerberg, Ridings, McCormick, Emmons, and Milligan on the first squad. Jerry Gunther worked with the second string, lobbing the ball at the other circle, quite unnoticed by the varsity coach.

Okerberg to Start
Okerberg will probably start tonight, although Joe Bally has been appearing at the pivot position in practice since the Washington game. This was due to a shoulder injury suffered by the Oregon ace while going out of bounds against the Huskies. Emmons has been getting in more practice than Milligan, and may possibly start the fracas. McCormick has been working in much of the time, too.

The best bet right now is that Reinhart will start his veterans again tonight, as listed above, and trust to Providence that they will snap out of the slump into which they have been immersed, and play real ball for a change. If they play loosely, or take wild and long shots at the hoop, they will be unceremoniously jerked, and replaced by the sophomores, who have been hustling all season.

Portland Fans Stay Home
Reports from Portland say that the special train, which was tentatively to make the trip tonight, will not function at all because of lack of interest. Sam Wilderman, publicity man, returned from Portland last night and says that he never had so much trouble in securing newspaper space in his life, as all the scribes expect Oregon to get walloped by from 20 to 50 points.

That's what Sam says.
Another large-sized bone of contention which has been attracting its share of gnawing is the brand of basketball played by the invading Bears, who checked into Eugene last night two hours late. The visitors are mostly big fellows who appear capable of taking care of themselves in almost any kind of company.

Officials Capable
Perhaps basketball is played a bit differently in the south, and the rules are not interpreted in quite the same way that they are here, but two officials will be on hand tonight, who comprehend their groceries, and are accustomed to calling.

Critic Lauds University Orchestra; Says Underwood Capable Director

"Pique Dame" Called Greatest Triumph With Violin, Wind Sections Outstanding

By K. R.
Rex Underwood conducted the University of Oregon orchestra last evening in a concert at the Woman's building that was most pleasing to hear. Mr. Underwood conducts in a very easy manner, and his movements are without hesitation or uncertainty. The orchestra plays in a most finished manner. The different sections of the orchestra are well balanced, but particularly well did the bass section play.

It would be hard to pick an outstanding number of the program, for all were well received. An oriental trend seemed to predominate. Especially oriental was the "Danse Arabe," from Tchaikovsky's Nut Cracker Suite. It was a droll number, in which the flute and cello played a very beautiful, yet weird, melody.

The "Pique Dame" overture, by Suppe, was probably the biggest thing on the program. It was very well played. In this number it would be very easy for the violin section to overplay its part, but they kept their place, under the conducting of Mr. Underwood. The orchestra worked up to the brilliant finish, with its sweeping runs of the violins, and smashing chords from the brass and wood wind sections.

In direct contrast to this was the "Serenade," by Drigo, with its very beautiful and most appealing melody. This number, and the Pierre "Serenade," were played by the strings alone. However, the Drigo serenade, with its harp accompaniment, was by far the more beautiful as well as the better played.

The concert closed with "Caucasian Suite," by Ivanow. This, in a way, is quite similar to the Nut Cracker Suite. It was oriental throughout, and extremely weird. It was very well played but failed to possess the melody that is in the Tchaikovsky numbers.

The orchestra was forced to repeat several of its numbers, and granted one encore at the close. It was "Vienna Life," by Strauss.

Dr. Hall Speaker At Last Formal Assembly Today

Meeting Next Week Given To Regular Business Session

Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall will address the faculty and students this morning at eleven o'clock at the Woman's building on the subject of "Ambassadors of the University." Dr. Hall will discuss problems of development within a University and will mention ways in which students can serve the University of Oregon.

The assembly this morning is to be the last formal one of the term. The hour the following Thursday will be devoted to a regular A. S. U. O. business meeting. At least one similar meeting is held each term, Hugh Biggs, president of the associated students, presiding. At that time committee reports, and other business relating to the management of student affairs, will be attended to.

Special music will be furnished this morning by Gene Carr, baritone, who will sing "Oh, Ask of the Stars," by LaForge.

Swimmers' Pictures To be Taken Friday

The recent pictures of the University of Oregon swimming team were not satisfactory enough to have published in the Intercollegiate Annual for 1927, and therefore will be retaken Friday at 12:20 in the Woman's building pool, according to Ed Abercrombie, Webfoot mentor.

The list of men on the varsity who are requested to report follows: Byerley, Boggs, Brown, Davis, Fletcher, Greulich, Johnson, Kier, McCook, Newbegin, Reid, Sheridan, Smith, Thompson, Woodworth, Manager Ball, and Coach Abercrombie. The freshmen: Abele, Allen, Anderson, Hatton, Mathers, Raley, Sharp, Silverman, Waldron, Manager Newbegin, and Coach Palmer.

Shush! Cheney Tells Tale of New Webfoot

SHH-SHH-SHH. Don't tell a soul this but I just heard something about the Webfoot. Now I promised not to tell a soul what I was just told but it's too good to keep so I am just going to tell you and no one else. The next issue is to be the "Mystery Number." Just think of it, our Webby is going to don the black robes and enter into the field of mystery.

But that isn't all. The editors of the magazine are going to give you a chance to tell the public about a few of your mysterious ideas and jokes, providing you don't make them too long. All you will have to do is to write them down on paper, use the margin of the Emerald if you haven't anything else, and drop them in the contribution box in the Journalism building.

Now you want to know when this number will be off the press. Well, it will be sometime within the next two weeks. Get your contributions in this week.

Council Lets Band in Game Free and Votes Favorably on Boxers

Junior College And Honors Privileges To Become Part Of Curricular Methodology

Administrative Committees, to be Appointed by President, Will Work Out Detailed Plans for Development of System

Definite Break in Registrant's Work To Come at End of Sophomore Year

Adoption of Plan Marks Successful Culmination Of Student Agitation

IN one of the most drastic changes effected in the history of the University of Oregon, the faculty yesterday voted to establish a junior college and to organize honors courses for superior students, plans which call for reorganization of the entire academic system.

A standing group of 16 members, known as the Junior College Advisory committee, will be appointed to work out all details and plans for the junior college and submit them to the administration.

As a result of the faculty adoption of the junior college plan there will be a definite break in the college course at the end of the sophomore year.

During the first two years the student will not be allowed to major in any particular course but will be given work along general cultural lines. He will then receive a junior certificate if he has completed the lower division requirements.

Rules Stiff

If, in addition, he has fulfilled several requirements concerning grades, the student will receive a junior certificate with upper division standing. A junior certificate with honors privileges will be given if the student has fulfilled the lower division requirement and in addition others imposed by the honors council.

These rulings do not affect the students now enrolled in the University but will govern those entering next fall.

Beginning with commencement in June, 1931, no student shall be granted a bachelor of arts or a bachelor of science degree who does not hold a junior certificate with upper division standing or a junior certificate with honors privileges.

This action on the part of the faculty has come as the result of a number of investigations and recommendations made by student committees recently concerning educational conditions at the University.

Under the provisions of the Superior Students and Honors committee, which were adopted by the faculty, more freedom will be given to students of ability and inclination to do advanced work. They will be allowed to follow their own desires and inclinations, and their work will be evaluated by means of special examinations.

To carry out the honors program a permanent faculty council on honor students, consisting of nine members, is to be appointed by the president, the members to serve three-year terms. This committee will direct generally the honors work and supervise the privileges extended to honors students, although the specific direction and enrollment of students in honors work will remain, as at present, with the various departments.

Upperclassmen Go Up
"Any program for dealing with superior students is based frankly on the assumption that a considerable part of the student body would, under proper conditions, sincerely prefer vigorous intellectual activity to mediocre accomplishment," says the report submitted by the committee.

The process of selection at the end of the sophomore year is to be based on all data which the personnel committee and the registrar's office can supply. A combination of high school records and the student's record in lower division work, supplemented by all inferences that can be drawn from mental tests and California, Here We Are!

Coach Billy Reinhart, who has developed the Oregon quintet this year with a memory of the defeat of last year at Berkeley, and Gordon Ridings, a sophomore who has the machine to spark. The team has had a hard time staying on top, but they're there now, and headed for the championship.

Pep Rally Starts From Kappa Sig Corner at 6:15

Students Admitted to Game After Parade Arrives At Pavilion

Old-man-gloom, who has hovered about the Oregon basketball camp for the past week, will seek another clime tonight, when the first campus basketball rally will be held, starting at 6:15 tonight at the Kappa Sig corner.

Plans for the rally have been somewhat revised, with the parade starting at 6:15, then marching to the Sigma Chi corner where a brief rally will be held. As a last minute effort to inspire his team with a fighting confidence, Billy Reinhart has consented to let his team make a brief appearance on the Sigma Chi porch before going onto the court to battle California for the championship. In addition, Billy Reinhart will spill the last minute dope and several other short talks will be given. The yell staff will introduce a new yell, which was written by the student council yell committee, and will be the main yell used at the game tonight.

House managers are requested to have dinner at 5:30, so as to give time for students to attend the rally-parade. Rooters lids will be necessary for the game and to insure seats for those in the rally—no students will be admitted to McArthur court until the rally-parade has reached the pavilion.

It will be necessary for all students to participate in the rally, as the Oregon team will need the support of every student at the rally and the coach only consented to the appearance of his team when he was assured that every man would be there to give the team their last-minute backing before it meets the California five.

Men's Quartette Sings For Bankers' Banquet

A group of light, popular, classical songs will be given by the Men's Glee club quartette, tonight, before the banquet that is to be held in the Osburn hotel for the bankers of Lane county.

The members of the quartette are John Stark Evans, Ted Larson, Frank Roehr, and George Wardner, who have given numerous concerts lately, the latest of which was presented at Cottage Grove, February 4, when the glee club made an appearance there.
