A. S. U. O. Head Welcomes Visiting Editors

Exhibit in University Press Shows Examples Of Good Printing.

"In behalf of the student body I extend a cordial welcome to you who are guests of the campus this week-end. It is not often that two events of such importance and interest as the Annual Editors' conference and the Pacific Coast championship series coincide in the place and time of meeting. We are honored by the presence of both groups, and it is our sincere wish that you enjoy thoroughly the time spent here."

Cordially,
Hugh Biggs, president of the A. S. U. O.

Among the first of the visiting newspapermen to reach the campus for the Ninth Annual Oregon Newspaper Conference were Henry N. Fowler (Oregon '14), former editor of the Emerald, and now associate editor of the Bend Bulletin, and George Curtis, the Bulletin's circulation manager. Mr. Fowler and Mr. Curtis drove from Bend to Chemault, a flag station about 65 miles from Bend, there flagged an S. P. train on the new cutoff and were in Eugene eight hours from their departure from home. They both speak in high praise of the snow scenery on the new line, which at times carries them above the clouds at an elevation of 5,000 feet or so. They are staying at the Eugene hotel.

George P. Cheney, owner, editor, and publisher of the Enterprise Record, and his son, George, Jr., drove in early yesterday evening, in time for the first game of the championship series. They are staying at the Colonial apartments.

Among the early arrivals at the Eugene hotel last night were Walter R. Taylor, manager of the Molalla Pioneer; E. E. Brodie, publisher, editor, and owner of the Oregon City Enterprise, a repeater who always turns up for the conference; L. D. Gordon, editor and publisher of the Southwestern Oregon Daily News, Marshfield; and A. C. Gage, editor, manager and publisher of the Angora Journal, Portland.

An exhibit of good printing from the presses of a number of the best printing companies of the state has been arranged in the University press building by Ray Nash, managing editor of the Oregon Daily Emerald, and Robert C. Hall, head of the University press.

A curious collection is one sent in by Albert Bede, editor of the Cottage Grove Sentinel. It is an exhibit of the odd letter-head printing of a period 25 and 30 years ago. One letter-head carries the date 1885, and is set in the flowing script that was considered the par-excellence of that period.

Contributors to the exhibit, whose work was on display last night are: Oregon City Enterprise; Bertelson and McShane, Salem; Corvallis Printing Company; Astoria Budget; Bend Bulletin; Cottage Grove Sentinel; State Printing Department; Central Oregonian Press, Prineville; Valley Printing Company, Eugene; and the Gresham Outlook. The work of other printers will be placed on exhibit this morning. A first, second, and third prize will be awarded.

An exhibition of some of the fine work from the press of John Henry Nash, master printer of San Francisco, will be arranged this morning on a separate table.

W. A. A. Banquet Tickets Are Nearly Sold Out

Almost all the tickets are sold for the W. A. A. banquet to be held Tuesday, March 8, at the College Side Inn, according to Nellie Johns, in charge of the selling. This is one of the highlights of the athletic year for Oregon women, as at this time the results of the election of officers for the association, held on that day, will be given out, and sweaters and small O's will be awarded to those who have earned them.

Any girl who is a member of W. A. A., or who has made any team this year in volleyball, basketball or swimming is entitled to a ticket for the banquet, upon the payment of seventy-five cents.

A lot of clever features are being worked out by the various members of the committee, headed by Vesta Scholl, and all eligible girls are urged to attend.

John Henry Nash Works in Type For Joy of Creating New Artistry

World-Famed Printer, Friend of University, Due Today for Editor's Meet

By H. L.
In the history of printing, such names as Aldus Manutius, William Caxton, and Nicolas Jensen are famous. Today they receive far greater recognition than in their own time.

In San Francisco there is a printer whose fame is already spreading far abroad, and whose growth accelerates with each new work that comes from his press. He is not striving for fame. Neither is his printing a business. Like the printers of old, he works at his case or studies the famous printing of another age, with the sincere joy of creating works in type that will honor the art he has chosen.

John Henry Nash, master craftsman, will arrive tonight with a load of artistic printing exhibits from his own press, which will be on display during the editors' conference here Friday and Saturday.

Two years ago, Nash addressed the Oregon Newspaper conference for the first time, and he has remained the sincere friend of the Oregon editors and the University. At the conference last year, a fine arts press was endowed by the editors under the leadership of Mr. Nash, who, himself, is supervising the planning and printing of the first book to be printed by students. The editors of the state were quick to subscribe. $1,000 was pledged, almost immediately, and since that

15 Grads Return For Conference, It Is Estimated

Classes Graduating Since 1909 Represented by Oregon Editors

Of the 100 newspaper people who, it is estimated, will attend the ninth annual conference of the Oregon State Editorial association, about 15 per cent are alumni of Oregon, representing classes which have graduated since 1909.

Those who are expected to attend are: Lucien Arant, who is now manager of the Baker Herald, is a former student of the University, and, although he didn't major in journalism, he took work in the department; Harris Ellsworth, 1922, now of the 4L Lumber News printed in Portland, was a major in journalism, and is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity, and also was manager of the Emerald for one year; Dean Collins, who took his B. A. in 1910 and his M. A. in 1911, is now called the funny man of the Portland Telegram. Collins is an honorary member of Sigma Delta Chi; Arne Rae, 1922, now editor of Tillamook Herald, majored in journalism and is a member of Sigma Delta Chi; Mrs. May B. Johnson, 1916, is now editor of the Madras Pioneer; Earle Richardson, 1920, editor of the Polk County Observer, which is published in Dallas, majored in journalism and is a member of Sigma Delta Chi; Ralph Cronise, of the Albany Democrat-Herald, is an honorary member of Sigma Delta Chi; Merle R. Chessman, 1909, with the Astoria Budget; Henry Fowler, 1914, editor of Bend Bulletin, majored in journalism, was editor of the Emerald one year, and is a member of Sigma Delta Chi; Spencer and Jasper Crawford of the Heppner Gazette-Times; E. A. Sonnichsen, of the Hood River News; Anna Jerzyk, 1925, Rainier Review, majored in journalism, was a member of the Emerald staff and is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalistic sorority; Harry Crain, of the Salem Statesman, majored in journalism, and was editor of the Emerald, also a member of Sigma Delta Chi; F. H. Young, 1914, of the Oregon Voter.

The annual membership banquet of the Y. W. C. A. will be held at the Anchorage, Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock. The banquet is the same day as the Y. W. C. A. election and the result will be announced either during or after it.

The chairman of the committees in charge are: Loran Moser, May Moore, Marie Boswell, and Betty Higgins. Tickets are on sale in the living organizations on the campus. Those who live outside of organizations can obtain tickets from Miss Florence Magowan at the Y. W. bungalow. The price is 65 cents.

time, sums ranging from $5 to $100 have been coming in.

The late President P. L. Campbell's philosophy of educational ideals, embodied in the unpublished manuscript found among his papers, entitled "Education and the State," was selected as the first book for printing, and an introduction was written by President Arnold Bennett Hall. Under the long-distance direction of Mr. Nash, work has been going forward on the book during the last two terms, and it is now set into type, and ready for the inspection of the master printer.

At the conference this year, Mr. Nash will meet with the contributors to the endowment, and the selection of a work for printing next year will be made.

Last year the University conferred the honorary degree of doctor of laws on Mr. Nash.

The master printer has created more than 20 volumes and broadsides. The only two volumes which he issued for sale were limited editions. They were, "Sonnets From the Portuguese," by Elizabeth Barrett Browning, and "Nicolas Jensen, Printer of Venice." In 1923 he printed "The Silverado Squatters" in a special edition for Charles Scribner's Sons.

Mr. Nash received the first prize award in the 1926 National Graphic Arts Leaders' exhibit, in competition with the best of the world.

Honor Students Not Only Ones Under New Plan

Upper Division Group Those Who Have Purpose, Says Dean

Contrary to the belief of many students, it will not be necessary to be rated as honor students in order to continue in the University beyond the two years of junior college work provided in the plan adopted by the faculty Wednesday, it was explained yesterday by Dr. George Rebec, dean of the graduate school and chairman of the committee recommending the plan.

Under the plan as adopted, students finishing the two years of general cultural work will be divided into three groups, said the dean. The first group will consist of those who have completed the lower division requirements but are judged to be unsuited to continue as University students and might do better for themselves in some other sort of school. This group will be told that it is better that they should not come back the next year. Those who wish for a further trial will be permitted to attend for two more terms, after which they will have to leave if their record does not show improvement.

A second group will be made up of students with good average grades who have shown a seriousness of purpose in their studies. These will receive the junior certificate with upper division standing.

The junior certificate with honors privileges will go to a third group who have not only satisfied the lower division requirements, but also certain others imposed by the honors council of the faculty. Selections for the honors privileges will be based on scholastic records, general attitude toward studies, industry, psychological tests, and high school records.

No Classes Today in Journalism Building

No classes will be held in the Journalism building today because of the Oregon State Editorial Association conference scheduled for today and Saturday. Several other classes will not meet today also, because of lack of room. They are as follows:

- Economic History, Mr. Frame, 9 o'clock.
- Water Transportation, Mr. Frame, 10 o'clock.
- Pre-Legal English, Mr. Shoemaker, 11 o'clock.
- Browning, Capt. McEwan, 11 o'clock.
- Sociology, Mr. Mueller, 10 o'clock.
- The Introduction to Education quiz, which was to be given at 10 o'clock in room 102 in the Journalism building, will be held at 10 o'clock in the University high school auditorium.

One Hundred Delegates Here For State Meet

Ninth Annual Conference Of Oregon Editors Begins March 4

Banquet for Visitors At Hotel Osburn, 6 p. m.

Noted Journalists on Today's Program

BEFORE noon today more than 100 editors of daily and weekly newspapers from all over the state are expected on the campus for the ninth conference of the Oregon State Editorial association, sponsored annually by the school of journalism of the University.

Many delegates arrived last night, but the heavy influx will be this morning, reaching its peak before noon. With a number of prominent speakers from the field of journalism on the program, the convention this year promises to be equal to the standard set at previous conferences.

Registration is being conducted throughout the day in the Journalism building, by Theta Sigma Phi, honorary women's journalism fraternity. Printed programs of the conference will be distributed.

Banquet at Osburn
One of the important social functions of the two-day conference is the banquet at the Hotel Osburn at 6 o'clock tonight, given for the editors by the Eugene Chamber of Commerce. In years past, this has proved one of the most enjoyable features of the conference. No departure from the usual two hours of excellent food, editorial wit, and snappy speeches will be made tonight.

In order that the visitors may have time to reach McArthur Court for the second game of the championship series between Oregon and California, a preliminary game has been scheduled. Oregon freshmen will meet Columbia university of Portland at 6:45. The Oregon-California game will not begin until 8 o'clock.

Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism, will act as toastmaster at the banquet. Marion Veatch, president of the Eugene Chamber of Commerce, will give the address of welcome. Other speakers will be: Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University of Oregon; Frances Bourhill, senior in the school of journalism, and editor of the Oregonian; Marshall Dana, Oregonian; "The Space Grafters."

On Today's Program
Newspapermen who will appear on the program today are: C. J. McIntosh; Earl C. Brownlee; Ben H. Reid, regional secretary, western division, National Editorial association, and executive secretary of Southern California association; Robert M. Mount, manager, Better Business Bureau, Advertising Club of Portland; Walter P. Burns, manager, Pacific Coast Bureau, American Newspaper Publishers' association; Harris Ellsworth, 4L Lumber News; Lucien Arant, manager, Baker Herald; Don Skene, Oregonian; Sam Bass Warner, professor of law; Clark Wood, Western Leader; Hal E. Hoss, secretary, Oregon State Editorial association.

Meetings will be held in room 105, Journalism building.

U. of C. Basketeers Will Be Heilig Guests

University of California basketball party, 21 strong, will be special guests of the Heilig theater during the first matinee performance today. W. B. McDonald, manager, announced last night.

This is but one of the sidelights arranged for the California aggregation as a trip up the McKenzie river highway is being planned by student organizations.

Yale Paleontologist Visits Geology Class

Professor Charles Schuchert, professor of paleontology in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, visited the 9 o'clock class of general geology Wednesday and gave an account of his beginning in his profession.

Professor Schuchert wrote the second part of the text book used in this class, "Introductory Geology."

Oregon Sixth Richest State

Dr. Hall Shows Per Capita Wealth High Declares President At Assembly

Research Big Need of Dormant Resources

University Students Prove Best Ambassadors

OREGON is one of the wealthiest states per capita in the Union. Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall told the assembly yesterday morning, basing his statement on research he has made during the last six months. Dr. Hall's topic for his address in the Woman's building was "Ambassadors of the University." At that time he gave some of the statistical facts which account for Oregon's high ranking as a prosperous state.

The evidence which includes financial, industrial and education statistics, was compiled from a number of sources including the wealth census in the 1925 issue of the statistical abstract published by the United States Bureau of Education; from income statistics published by the National Industrial Conference Board in a recent book on the "Cost of Government in the U. S.," and from a report of the United States Bureau of Education.

Road Building Extensive
"The state of Oregon is sixth in the United States in per capita wealth and twelfth in per capita income. Excepting one state, Oregon spends more money per capita for building roads than any other state in the Union," said Dr. Hall.

The state of Oregon, the president finds, is sending proportionally to population, more children than institutions of higher learning than is any other state in the Union excepting two. The people of this state own more automobiles per capita than any other state except one, he said.

"The per capita taxation in Oregon is $50 a year, and if the University had received all the appropriations that I would have had the courage to ask for, the additional tax on these people would have been 33 and one-third cents per person," he said.

High Cost of Smoking
The men of the state spend seven times as much money on smoking as goes to higher education, and the women spend seven times as much on cosmetics as is given to higher education, continued Dr. Hall.

"You are the best ambassadors of the University," he said to the students, "and it is you who must carry the message to the people of the state that the money spent by them on higher education is well-spending character and intellect in developing themselves."

"I want you to believe in the policies and ideals which the administration of the University upholds to the extent which they commend themselves to your approval and judgment," he said. The people must be made to realize that adequate facilities for academic pursuits, for research and for a program of adult education must be provided if the University is to function to its greatest extent.

Research and Education
"The importance of research is one of the most difficult things to get across to the public. We must prove that research has an important part in education," he said.

People ask, "Why should I give my money to the support of a man who spends his entire life studying a bug, so small that it can only be seen under a microscope?" Yet it was because of the activity of one man who did devote himself to the study of a certain germ that the Panama canal was built, Dr. Hall stated. After the French had given up the task of building the canal and the American government took it over, it was this man who discovered the relation between the mosquito and malaria and yellow fever, and who died for his experiment, which made its construction possible.

Benjamin Franklin might have been ridiculed out of existence in his scientific pursuits, but it was he who discovered electricity.

Louis Pasteur, who the speaker asserted, has done more to lessen the sufferings of mankind than any other man, worked in his dingy little Paris office in the late sixties, to produce the results of his experiments to the world.

Lurid Scandal Sheet Accomplishes Miracle

THE cram week has arrived and persons who prior to now have been languid and enjoying life are conquering the impossible—10 weeks work in one. Such energy if exhibited every other week of the term would bring about results so stupendous that it would take years to call the honor roll, yonder.

Some wish that on the day of withdrawal they too had made spring term their winter term. But then the days of great reckoning will be here and then home and wait and wait—scandal sheet—the cry—hate and hate for I do not rate.

But all study and no play makes students and the rest of the campus dull boys—and girls. Don't think that all week long they study—Ah! no, for they eat, oh! how they eat. College Sides burst and Campa Shoppes are full with—

"Darn, I've got only 10 more papers to write—bring me another tuna fish sandwich and cup of coffee—"

Note: Eat plenty of fish—tis said to be brain food!

Shows are over crowded and never was there such a seeming crave for fun. When do they study? All night long so that when they go home spring vacation family will think my, how the studies make dark circles under the eyes—those college circles!

Oregon Finmen To Enter P. N. A. Meet at O. A. C.

Johnny Anderson to Swim 150-Yard Back Stroke And 100-Yard Dash

The University of Oregon will be represented by three swimmers at the Pacific Northwest Association swimming meet which is to be held in Corvallis tomorrow, in the O. A. C. pool.

Johnny Anderson and Charles Silverman, both of the freshman swimming team, will be accompanied by Willis Fletcher, the only varsity man of the Webfoot squad to compete. Anderson, who was known in eastern circles chiefly as a 220 yard dash man, has been developed in the 100 yard free style and in the 150 yard back stroke since he has been swimming for Oregon. Last Saturday he broke the existing P. N. A. record of :57.6, but lost his title when Orville Peterson, of O. A. C., broke it again in the varsity meet that followed the freshman competition. Peterson negotiated the distance in :57 flat.

Anderson will also swim the 150 yard back stroke. He has been swimming this event in practice in close to record time, but as it is against the conference rules for one man to enter more than three events he has been used in the 100 yard free style, the dives, and the relay. The present P. N. A. 150 yard back stroke record is held by George Schroth of Multnomah club at 1:56.6. The Pacific coast inter-collegiate record of 1:55.4 is held by Carl Stevenson of Stanford who also won the Golden Gate swim last year. Anderson has a good chance to break the record in this event, Ed Abercrombie, Oregon coach, said yesterday.

Oregon will be represented in the 440 yard free style by Charles Silverman, freshman swimmer. Silverman has been splashing this distance in less than six minutes, and should give George Horsfall of M. A. A. C. a close race. Horsfall holds the P. N. A. record of 5:48.

Willis Fletcher should give Bill Becker, M. A. A. C. present P. N. A. title holder of the 200 yard breast stroke, a close race. In a recent meet between Multnomah club and Oregon, Fletcher broke the former state record of 2:55 in this affair, but was defeated by Becker, who won the race and established the present record of 2:48.

Frosh-Columbia Mix Precedes Varsity Go

The University of Oregon freshman quintet will play the Columbia University hoopers tonight as a preliminary to the California-Oregon championship tilt. This contest will start at 6:30 with the main game commencing at 8:00.

The game was arranged when the editors' banquet, slated for 6:30, made it necessary to delay the starting of the varsity encounter.

Oregon Loses First Game to Bears, 35-29

California Takes Big Lead In Second Half Scoring Rally

Westergren Pulled Out By Referee for Fouls

Webfoots Ahead at End Of First Period

Line-up:
California (35) (29) Oregon
Watson (8) f (7) Gunther
E. Dougery (8) f (1) Ridings
Corbin (9) c (6) Okerberg
J. Dougery (8) g (9) Milligan
J. Dixon (2) g (3) Westergren
Substitutions: California, Tripp, Oregon, McCormick, 3; Emmons, Referee, Mulligan, Umpire, Fitzpatrick.

By HAROLD W. MANGUM Sports Editor

A BRILLIANT California team was too much for the Oregon quintet last night in McArthur court, and the southerners took the first leg of the championship series, 35 to 29. The Golden Bears, the smallest one of whom weighed 175 pounds, played a hard and fast game, depending upon speed and long shooting for results, and now are installed as favorites to win their fourth consecutive coast championship.

The teams vie again tonight. If the Webfoots win, which is not at all impossible, the teams will fight it out tomorrow night for the coast title. Reinhardt's men played great ball all the way, save for a temporary lapse in the middle of the second half, which cost them the fracas. The turning point of the contest came after five minutes of the second period had elapsed. Westergren, who had been driving the Webfoots in their stubborn attack and defense, was caught committing his fourth foul, and expelled from the fracas.

Goodbye, Algot
As Westergren went out, a hush seemed to settle over the arena, and the battling lemon-yellow team sagged. The Californians, ever alert, seized the opportunity, and before the Webfoots could rally had shot themselves into a thirteen point lead and the ball game. The Bears might have won with Swede in there, and probably would for their shooting was nothing short of uncanny, but Westergren's going turned the tide of battle.

When apparently hopelessly out-classed, the Webfoots staged a fighting last minute rally, and scored nine straight points to threaten the California lead as the game ended. Their fighting finish left the crowd at a fever pitch of enthusiasm, and willing to bet its last pair of carpet slippers on an Oregon victory today. If the Webfoots play like they did that first half, and like they did the last five minutes, nothing short of an eclipse of the sun, moon, and all the stars can stop them tonight.

Lead Ebbs and Flows
The first half was rollicking fast, with the teams bandying the lead back and forth, to and fro, with each successful toss at the hemp. Six times during that first wild twenty minutes did the Webfoots hold the lead, and four times did the snarling Bears take the whip-hand. Five times the score was (Continued on page four)

Candidates for Y. W. Election Nominated

At the mass meeting of the Y. W. C. A. held Thursday afternoon, the report of the nominating committee was made and the following nominations announced: president, Pauline Stewart; vice-president, Gladys Calef and Helen Webster; secretary, Margaret Edmundson and Shirley Maguire; treasurer, Julia Wilson; and under-graduate representative, Catherine Dorris and Katherine Kneeland.

The election will be held Wednesday, the ninth of March and the results will be announced at the membership banquet to be held the same evening. Only members of the Y. W. C. A. are entitled to vote.
