

Women to Debate With Utah Team Monday Evening

Desirability of Social Fraternities Will be Discussed

Local Women to Present Negative Side

Should social fraternities and sororities be abolished? Monday night at 7:15 in the auditorium of the Music building, Oregon women will say "no" in answer to the query, when they meet representatives of the University of Utah on the question, Resolved, "that social fraternities and sororities should be abolished from American college campuses."

Monday fraternity and sorority houses and halls of residence will be telephoned and house managers asked to announce the event at dinner, and to urge attendance at the contest which is the first women's debate of the season.

Cecil McKercher, senior, and Marion Leach, sophomore, are Oregon's representatives in the debate. Miss McKercher is a third year varsity contestant. Last year, she represented Oregon in a debate against the University of Washington in Seattle. She is majoring in English. Marion Leach, who is a major in pre-law, is a varsity contestant. Marion Leach tant for the first time this year. She was on the freshman team last year.

"A large attendance is urged because of the timely interest in the subject to college and university students. It will be discussed from an unbiased viewpoint," said Frances Cherry, women's forensics manager. "Both sides will endeavor to get beneath the surface in bringing out all points pro and con.

Oregon's negative team has been working hard in preparation for the event under the coaching of J. K. Horner. The discussion will be based on first hand material since both universities have social fraternities and sororities.

The Oregon cross-question system will be used. Each side will have fourteen minutes each for its main speaker; seven minutes will be given each team for cross-questioning; and ten minutes will be devoted to each side for rebuttal. The decision will be made by the audience.

The two Utah women compose a travelling team and have been debating the question at many colleges and universities during their tour.

The time for the event has been set at 7:15 because of the Symphony concert at 8:15.

The next women's debate will take place April 7. It is the tri-state debate, in which Washington, Idaho, and Oregon are contestants. Margaret Blackaby and Frances Cherry will go to Seattle to debate against Washington, and Pauline Winchell and Irene Hartsell will stay here to debate against Idaho.

Basketball

The teams opened the second contest with a fast and close checking but the boys from the sunny southland again proved their superiority when Corbin outfoxed his guard and looped in two crumples.

Another Rally Thrown
With the score 17 to 5 against them the Webfoot basketeers started a rally that had all the earmarks of being a real bourbon. Swede Westergren flashed down the court, circled back and took a pass near the center of the court. From this position he dropped the spheroid into the basket, and the fans went wild.

Milligan and Gunther fell in with the spirit of the occasion and chalked up four points between them, and Westergren looped another from a difficult angle.

Corbin threw a monkey wrench into the Oregon machinery as he counted from under the basket and put his team once more in a progressive frame of mind. From this time on it was only a question of how bad the locals were going to be trounced by the lads from the sunny south.

Swan Song Sung
Westergren and Gunther, who realized that they were playing under the lemon-yellow colors for the last time, were doing their best to make their swan song gay, and together were responsible for the remainder of the Webfoot points.

During the contest the Oregon team was given 14 opportunities to count from the Santa Claus line, but from the way they shot, the cream colored hump that serves for decoration on the ring must have looked like a small pox card, because they only succeeded in converting three times. If they had made each chance count they would have still been one point in arrears, so a blues song is not in order. The California hoopsters had eight opportunities to garner markers in this fashion and were accurate enough to chalk up a quintet on points.

Dixon and Corbin Ousted
The California team suffered two casualties because of the too frequent tooting of the official's whistle. Both Dixon and Corbin were removed from the game via the personal foul route.

At times the Oregon fans grew vociferous as they called attention to the referee's disdainful silence as the smaller Oregon hoopsters were battered from pillar to post by the bulky boys from California. But if the number of fouls called on each team can be considered a reliable criterion, the Webfoot supporters had nothing to wall about as California was penalized six more times than the locals.

Breakfast's Ready
Doesn't the gang sometimes get tired of the same breakfast? Get a bag of cornmeal and ask the cook to make some hot cakes tomorrow morning, just for a change. Wouldn't they taste good though—browned to a crisp in sizzling bacon fat and spread with melted butter and thick maple syrup?
And then, for a change at lunch time—a plate heaped with steaming squares of hot corn bread, with plenty of butter and jam, served with lettuce salad with mayonnaise dressing, and fruit for desert is almost a lunch in itself.
Then cornmeal can always be mixed with other flours in breads and puddings to give a more decided flavor, and mixed with cracker crumbs it makes the best of covering for your breaded veal.
And besides, cornmeal is inexpensive. Its use will help you to keep down the house's food bills.
