

Philosophy Dean To Visit Colleges Of Northwest

Teaching Fellowships Open at University For Year 1927-28

Graduate Students Work With Professors

George Rebec, dean of the graduate school and head of the department of philosophy, will leave in the near future on his annual trip, visiting the universities and colleges of the northwest, including Idaho, Montana and Washington.

The chief purpose of the trip, according to Mr. Rebec, is to come in contact with the graduate schools and discover what desirable candidates there are for teaching and research fellowships and graduate assistantships.

Fellowships Open
"For the promotion of graduate study and research, the University of Oregon awards annually a number of assistantships and fellowships. These are open to graduates of any standard university or college. It is anticipated that except for occasional reappointments, the following positions will be available for 1927-28: architecture and allied arts, three graduate assistantships; botany and bacteriology, one graduate assistantship; chemistry, three graduate assistantships and two part-time graduate assistantships; education, four graduate assistantships; English, one teaching fellowship, three graduate assistants and four part-time graduate assistantships; geology, one teaching fellowship and two graduate assistantships; German, one teaching fellowship and one part-time graduate assistantship; history, three graduate assistantships; journalism, one graduate assistantship; Latin, one part-time graduate assistantship; mathematics, two graduate assistantships; music, one graduate assistantship; physical education, two graduate assistantships; physics, three graduate assistantships and two part-time graduate assistantships; psychology, three graduate assistantships; romance languages, one teaching fellowship; zoology, one teaching fellowship, four graduate assistantships and four part-time graduate assistantships; graduate school, five research fellowships.

Teaching Fellow Aids Prof.
"A teaching fellow renders part-time teaching service to the University. He is expected to be at a more advanced stage in his graduate studies than is the graduate assistant. The stipend varies from $750 to $1,100 for the nine months of the academic year.

"A research fellow assists in research of some faculty member to whose project he is assigned. A compensation of $500 is allowed for the academic year.

"A graduate assistant gives part-time service to the department as an assistant in various capacities, amounting to not more than twenty hours a week. Five hundred dollars is paid for this service the first year, and $600 on reappointment. Other positions calling for readers and minor assistants with proportional remuneration are also open to graduate students, who are accordingly designated as part-time graduate assistants.

"Those appointed to each position are charged only a reduced registration fee."
Application should be made through the dean of the graduate school before April 1.

Unusual Opportunity For Students of Dance At Summer Session

Word has been received from a number of physical education teachers in California, Washington, and Utah, as well as in Oregon, that they are coming to the Eugene summer session for classes in dancing under Christine Dobbins, inspector of physical education in the New York City public schools.

Miss Dobbins is highly recommended by the director of physical education at Columbia and by the head of the department at New York University, according to Alfred Powers, dean of the extension division. She is not only connected with the public schools of New York, but also conducts a private dancing school.

"This is the big opportunity of 1927 in Oregon for girls interested in dancing," declared Dean Powers. "She is making New York technique and distinction available to the people of Oregon."

Miss Dobbins will teach the following courses: Programs in Physical Education in Elementary and Secondary Schools; Programs in Folk Dancing, Elementary Interpretative Dancing and Pageantry; Advanced Interpretative Dancing.

Tobacco Smoke

Just drift away on a cloud of smoke and go where you'd like to be. Tipped back in your chair with your cigarettes or that old friend your pipe, you can travel miles at the Anchorage.

A kid in the country kicking the dust with sun-burnt toes, a sailor in China poking down dusty streets or bargaining for a string of pearls, one of society's rich loafers lying lazy on the sand at the edge of the ocean.—you talk of all such places in the tea house over the race.
