

"Three Sisters" Described by Dr. Edwin Hodge

Mt. Multnomah, Book By Geologist, Tells Region's Origin

Mountains, Once Glacier Site, Scenic Wonders

The explorations conducted by Dr. Edwin T. Hodge of the geology department, in the Three Sisters region, have not only revealed much of geological interest but have been instrumental in placing the region before the world as a prospective national monument. Hundreds of letters that have poured into his office from all over the world are filled with enthusiastic comments on the remarkable features to be found there as told in his widely distributed book, "Mount Multnomah."

In illustrated lectures before many groups, Dr. Hodge has recently extolled the geographical features to be found in this little-known region, which includes all to be found in Oregon and some that cannot be found elsewhere in North America.

Tells of Ancient Peak
Dr. Hodge, after several summers of geological research in the Cascades, wrote his book, "Mount Multnomah," in which he tells of an ancient mountain by that name, over 18,000 feet in elevation above the sea. This was destroyed by a gigantic explosion which blew off the top of the mountain and formed the largest caldera in the world. The Three Sisters rise on the rim of this caldera, ranking as the fourth, fifth and sixth peaks in the state. Their summits afford the traveler a remarkable view of the rim of the caldera and many of the prominent peaks in the Cascade range.

Lava flows from this great crater have formed a mountain of solid glass and immense lava beds, presenting a scene of desolation incarnate. In contrast, a necklace of beautiful parks encircle the region with many lava lakes and a vast profusion of flowers. These parks are kept by nature and supplied by water from the natural reservoirs in the glaciers. Seventeen of the southernmost glaciers in the United States are found here.

California Example Cited
As an example of the advantages derived from advertising natural resources, Dr. Hodge cites California. Its annual revenue collected from the tourist traffic amounts to 150 million dollars; a sum equivalent to its six leading industries. In his lectures he vividly illustrates the fact that north of the Three Sisters the weather is too cold, south of them the weather is too hot, while at them, as the southern limit of glaciers, the climate is ideal.

The movement is not merely to set the Three Sisters region aside as a national monument, but to awaken the people of Oregon to the appreciation of their own natural wonders and to advertise them in the east and even in California. "Yosemite valley, where the falls get so dry in the summer that you have to dust them off with a broom," Dr. Hodge said, "should prove no more alluring to tourists than a region like the Three Sisters where 110 million Americans can see a glacier for the first time and behold peaks and scenery unsurpassed in grandeur and beauty in any of the Rocky mountain parks."

Drama Contest Scheduled for May 4, 5, and 6

High Schools to Compete For Cup to be Given By Guild Players

Ten high schools will compete in the drama contest to be held here May 4, 5, and 6, according to final arrangements announced by Dan E. Clark, assistant director of the extension division.

Each school will present a different one-act play of their own choice at Guild theater. This will make 3 or 4 productions each evening. The names of the plays have not yet been sent in by the schools.

Five judges, from the campus and the state at large, will be selected soon, according to Mr. Clark. The cup for which the schools are trying is being presented by the Guild theater players.

The contest, the first of its kind to be held here, will probably be made an annual event. About sixty high school students are expected. They will be entertained by the University during their stay in Eugene.

Florence E. Wilbur, director of dramatic work on the campus, is chairman and Mr. Clark is secretary of the committee which is handling the affair. Ralph D. Casey, C. V. Boyer, James H. Gilbert, and H. E. Rosson are the other faculty members of the committee. Arthur Anderson and Constance Roth, students, are helping to arrange entertainment for the visitors.

High schools entered are: Washington and Jefferson from Portland; Eugene and University high schools from Eugene; McMinnville, Milwaukie, Roseburg, Corvallis, Lebanon and Newberg.

marked the showing of some of the men's organizations," Bob Hunt said in commenting on the results of the contest.

Honorable mention has been given to members of Beta Theta Pi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Gamma Phi Beta. The judges were faced by close decisions in most cases because of the good quality of singing.

Judges will visit the Kappa Sigma fraternity Monday noon, Theta Chi, Monday night, Alpha Chi Omega, Tuesday noon, and Pi Beta Phi, Tuesday night.

As "Memories of Oregon" is one of the songs on which the awards will be given, a copy of the words and music will be placed at the main desk in the old library in order that houses not having the song may copy and learn it.

The cups will be presented to the victors at assembly April 21.

Debate

MODERN smokers find in Camels a nicety of blending, a friendly cordiality of flavor, an inherent goodness that thrills from the first puff to the last. That is why Camels are the favorite of the present age. The warmth of golden sunlight or autumn fields gleams in their smoke. Camels are the modern expression of all that is the finest.

modern smokers gather. Particular smokers in this hard-to-please age find the best of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos blended in this famous cigarette. They find a consistent goodness that never fails, no matter how liberal the smoking.

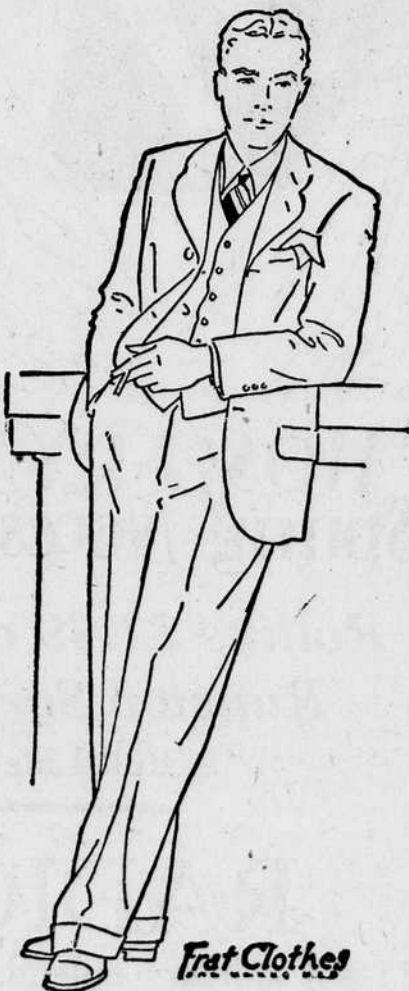

And wherever modern smokers gather, wherever the conversation turns to tobacco, to the world's best, someone is sure to say:

"Speaking of fine tobaccos . . . —Have a Camel!"
