

Junior Prom Visions Aztec Palace of Old

Feature of Dance to Be Secret From Crowd Until Tonight

Igloo Transformed By Decorative Scheme

Drapes to Remain Placed For Acoustics Tests

By RUTH COREY

SO real in detail and color are the decorations of the Junior Prom, that should an Aztec chieftain gaze into McArthur Court tonight he would believe himself to be in one of the palaces of Montezuma in the golden days of the Aztec dynasty.

Dimly illuminated by lights like torches, the bright color effects of the designs will present a fanciful and imaginative impression. Doorways will be rimmed with the fangs of animal gods with glowing scarlet eyes; the walls of the huge igloo are trimmed in the primitive mosaics, replicas of actual designs from Aztec palaces and temples of the early Mexican races.

Decorations Authentic

So consistent and authentic is the decorative scheme evolved by Katherine Mutzig that, should the same chieftain continue to gaze while the seductive synecopation of the orchestra throbs and the dancers sway in the shadowy dimness of the wall lights, and the occasional sweeping orbit of the vari-colored spotlight, he would be certain that the whole vision was anachronistic.

Enthroned above the refreshment booths in the corners of the ball room, are the mural designs of the Aztec gods of joy, gaiety, or their ancient conception of Baechus.

The feature, like a rite of the Anahau temples, is guarded with secrecy, and will come as a complete surprise to the dancers.

Committees Co-operate

Bill Powell made the statement that if the enthusiasm shown by the class workers is revealed at the dance, the Prom will be a huge success. Stuart Ball, chairman of the decorations, and Nancy Peterson, assistant, have devoted attention and effort, and with the co-operation of the class transformed the McArthur court into a vast Aztec temple. Both Eugene Gray and Marion Barnes deserve credit for their share of the work.

Curtains to Remain

Although the dance will end just at midnight the decorations will remain intact for a week. James H. Gilbert, acting dean of the college of literature, arts and sciences, has made the request that the white drapes from ceiling to the floor be left in place, so that acoustic experiments may be made upon the court with these in place. The cheese cloth curtains may serve a double purpose both towards decorations and revolutionizing the uses of the building.

It is rumored that some time during the dance there will be a flash picture taken for next year's Oregon.

Margaret Vincent, '26, Is Visitor on Campus

Margaret Vincent, '26, arrived on the campus yesterday afternoon to spend Junior Week-end. She is now with the advertising department of Berg's in Portland. While on the campus she was a member of the Emerald staff and of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalistic fraternity. She is staying at the Alpha Phi house of which she is a member.

Billy Reinhart Favors Action of Committee Against Dribble Rule

"I'm certainly glad they made the change," commented Billy Reinhart, basketball mentor, referring to the revoking of the action made recently to limit the dribble in the hoop game. The proposed change was abolished Thursday by action of the basketball rules committee.

The suggested change, when made on April 9, was greeted by almost unanimous protest on the part of hoop coaches throughout the country. The rule was drastic, allowing a player to bounce the ball only once, while no limit had been set previously.

While the new rule is not entirely shelved, it was deferred until the next meeting of the committee to be held next April. The present action was the result of a vote taken by L. E. St. John, chairman of the committee. Thus, the extended time will allow coaches to evolve new ideas on the matter before the next meeting.

"Because the dribble is one of the most spectacular angles of the hoop game, I'm in favor of it," concluded Reinhart. "It has brought the game to public interest more than any other phase."

W. A. A. to Hold Picnic and Give Sports Awards

Nominations for Officers Made; Membership Drive Begins

The last meeting of the W. A. A. was held Thursday, at which time it was decided to have a picnic Friday afternoon, June 3, among the cherry trees in front of the Woman's building, between 5:30 and 7:30 o'clock. Marjorie Landru has been appointed chairman. The new officers will be installed at this time and awards for sports will be made.

Nominations were made for heads of sports for next year, with the following girls up:

Volley ball, Genera Zimmer, Dorothy Lenseh; basketball, Marjorie Horton, Mae Hileman; soccer, Eleanor Marvin, Vida Buehler; swimming, May Moore, Lela Horton, Olive Banks; tennis, Ruth Scott, Jane Cochran; baseball, Eleanor Glass, Mildred McAllister, Berniece Rasm; track, Virginia Lounsbury, Mahalah Kurtz, Libby Swengel; hockey, Margaret Hurley, Jo Ralston; riding, Frances Simmons, Eleanor Poorman; archery, Helen Holt, Marjorie Condit, Ruth Jaynes; rifle, Anona Hildenbrand; hiking, Ione Garbe; custodian, Genevieve Thompson; Maxine Bradbury, Mollie Nobes; canoeing, Eunice Daniels, Florence Hurley.

Elections will be held a week from Tuesday. The exact time and place will be announced later.

The W. A. A. membership drive is on, and all girls who are not in the association, and who wish to retain their points this year, are urged to co-operate with the managers. Dues for the remainder of this year will be fifty cents. Girls not in organizations may pay their dues to Vida Buehler at the old library on Tuesday from 12:45 to 4:00 p. m.

Peanuts, Dixies and Frosh Have Picnic

Lots of peanuts, Dixies, and frosh filled the Midway terpsichorean temple Thursday afternoon and evening.

Flying Dutchman, Paul Jones and all the old favorites came back for the evening's fun. George McMurry's orchestra furnished the music, and Ed Cheney, soft shoe expert of "Creole Moon" fame, supplied several of the features.

Busses every 15 minutes took the crowd out and back. Cafeteria style dinner of fruit salad, sandwiches, coffee, and ice cream, was served about 6 o'clock. Dancing lasted from 7:30 to 11:30.

Neckties were abandoned, and sops and upperclassmen were suffered to depart in the usual manner.

Nash, Bergh Compete For Emerald Post

Spirited Race Is Forecast In Special Election Wednesday

Both Candidates Have Busy Campus Record

Two Held Varied Views On 'Gag Rule' Issue

By M. M. H.

TWO candidates have entered as contestants for the editorship of the Emerald, to fill the post made vacant by the death of Harold Mangum. They are Ray Nash, junior in journalism and present managing editor of the daily, and Phil Bergh, senior in business administration. Bergh, so far as is known, is the only non-journalism student or non-member of the Emerald staff who has ever aspired to the position.

Opposed Committee Control

Nominations were made by petition. The election will be held next Wednesday, from 9 to 3, in Villard hall.

Nash has held various positions on the Emerald staff, of which he has been a member for three years. Starting on the news staff he progressively advanced through other positions until this year when he became managing editor of the paper. He is president of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity. Besides his activities on the Emerald he has been a contributor to the Webfoot.

During the recent elections, Nash was generally understood as being opposed to publications committee control of the Emerald.

Bergh, although a senior, lacks one term's credits which he plans to make up next year. He has been prominent in activities and now holds membership in Alpha Kappa Psi, commerce fraternity; Pan Xenia, foreign trade organization; Phi Beta Kappa, and Friars. He was chairman of the Junior Prom, last year, and was chairman of Homecoming, this year. He is treasurer of the senior class.

Favored Emerald Amendment

Bergh's writing experience has been in contesting for the Murray Warner prizes. He won first place this year and third place last year. He was art editor of the Oregonian in 1924, and is a member of Hamner and Coffin by virtue of his art work.

During the amendment controversy, Bergh was one of the chief supporters of the measure designed to control the Emerald, having been author of most of the campaign material used by the student administrative group. It is understood that he has the backing of incoming and outgoing student officials, while Nash probably is generally conceded the solid support of the Emerald workers.

Bergh has at present been on the Emerald staff or engaged in the writing department of campus journalistic activities but he has had a wide range of interest in other fields.

Two Added to Staff Of Business School

Hugh M. Pier, a senior in Yankton college, Yankton, South Dakota, and Mabel S. Foote, a senior in the University of Utah, have been selected as graduate assistants in the school of business administration by Dean E. C. Robbins.

Junior Men Needed To Help Wax Floor

MORE junior men are needed to help wax and polish the floor of McArthur Court for the prom this evening. Eugene Gray, chairman of the floor and cleanup committee, is issuing a last minute call for additional helpers.

It will take six men working practically all day to satisfactorily complete the work, if the promise of a "high polish" made to the dancers is to be fulfilled, he says.

Cleaning, sweeping, waxing and polishing 16,000 square feet of floor is no easy task, especially when the work is to be done thoroughly, and the men will stop short of nothing less than the completion of an expert job, evidenced by a "slick and glossy" surface, says Eugene.

All other preparations for the dance are completed, so, juniors, come to the court this morning and this afternoon and help finish the job up right!

Amphibian Club To Hold Carnival Tuesday Night

Atlantic City, 1870 Bathing Costumes and Racing Stunts to Feature

Variety will be the keynote of the swimming demonstration to be put on by the Amphibian club next Tuesday, May 24, at 8:00 o'clock, at the Woman's building tank. Everything from stunt races to dress parades will be on the program.

formed into Atlantic City for the water carnival. A style show, featuring bathing suits from 1870 down to the present day, is to be one of the principal events. Looking into the future, the girls will give life saving methods now and in 1990.

The stunts include lighted candle, fan and crew races. In the first, the main idea is to keep the candle from going out, while in the second the girl must use her fan industriously out of the water all the way. Crew racing leaves only the girl's arms free with which to paddle herself along.

Formations will conclude the presentation, with the "A" of the Amphibians, stars and other geometric figures being designed by the members.

Tickets are on sale at the office of the Woman's building for twenty-five cents.

'The Webfoot Club' Chosen as Name for Independent Society

"The Webfoot Club" was the name adopted by the independent men for their organization at a meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. hut last night. A constitution was read and adopted, but due to the short notice of the meeting, the election of officers was postponed until next week.

Plans were made for a meeting to be held Wednesday, May 25, at the "Y" hut, at which election of officers for the coming year will be held. All independent men are asked to have in mind prospective candidates for the various offices. The following will be elected: president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, social manager, athletic manager, and publicity manager.

Neil is Chosen As Associate To Manager

Milton George Selects Business Workers For Emerald

Ruth Street to Hold Advertising Position

Manning Gets Specialty Job on Daily Force

JOE NEIL, junior, of Ashland, was named associate business manager for next year's Emerald by Milton George, business manager for 1927-28, who chose his staff yesterday. Neil worked this year in the position of advertising manager. He has had two years of experience on the Emerald and is considered by George as one of the best salesmen on the staff.

Ruth Street, of Milton George Portland, was selected as advertising manager for the coming year. As far back as memory reaches, it cannot be recalled when the Emerald has ever had a feminine ad chief. Miss Street is just completing her second year selling advertising for the paper.

Bissell Circulation Manager

Ed Bissell, Portland, was boosted from assistant circulation manager to the head of that department, succeeding Francis McKenna, who was circulation manager this year.

Wilbur Shannon, of Helix, received an appointment as assistant circulation manager following his service this year as circulation assistant.

Larry Thielen, of Portland, was re-appointed foreign advertising manager and is to have an assistant to aid him next year as foreign advertising is expected to help considerably toward the success of the six-page paper.

Alice McGrath, alias "Carol the Co-ed," will hold down her old place caring for specialty advertising and will dole out information for co-eds with money to spend.

The advertising salesmen, or "leg-men," appointed by George to solicit the advertisements from local merchants are: Bill Hammond, Gladstone; Oliver Brown, Portland; Maurice Lombard, Springfield; Charles Reed, Oregon City; Roderick LaFollette, Portland; and Robert Moore, of Newberg. All have gained experience on this year's sheet and show promise to fill the Emerald from cover to cover with live ads for next year.

Green Lids Victors Over Sophs in War Of Water and Rope

To the enthusiastic chant of "To Hell with '29," the members of the class of 1930, yesterday morning fought their way to victory in the annual sophomore-frosh tug-of-war. It is the first time in the recorded history of the classes that such a victory has occurred for the "green lid society"; and who is to say that it was not deserved?

Even the telephone pole that might have saved ye sophomores shook angrily at the suggestion, and refused to do its trusted part towards bringing only the frosh under the fire hose attached to the water hydrant in front of Westminster house.

Maybe the frosh did get wet, but that was no sign of defeat. When they felt that the men handling the hose were prejudiced and giving unfair advantage to the left wing, they broke loose from the rope, grabbed the hose, and set about to thoroughly soak their elders whom they far outnumbered even from the start. And the audience was not totally overlooked, either.

At the burning of the green, the nineteen-thirtiers were landed squarely and without preference, but that was to be expected.

And to the hearty yell of "Rah, Rah, '29," the members of the class of 1930, without malice, closed their year of freshman duties and discipline. This is the first time in the history of the University that the freshmen have proved superior to the sophs.

Students' Canoe Wrecked While Patrolling River

Clinton Davison and Ralph Owens Meet Disaster On Body Hunt

While engaged in the hunt for the body of Harold Mangum, Clinton Davison and Ralph Owens, University students, met disaster seven miles below Eugene when their canoe crashed into a snag in the swift current of the Willamette and capsized yesterday afternoon. The students were in convoy with Prince Helfrich and John Bean, geology majors, who were following 50 feet behind them in another canoe.

As the canoe struck, Davison was thrown clear of the craft and washed on a snag where he awaited rescue. Owens was swept under a log drift with the canoe, but soon reappeared 20 feet downstream where he also sought refuge on top of a snag.

Bean rescued Davison with a pole from shore while Helfrich, who had deftly negotiated the snag-choked channel, held the canoe in mid-stream below the scene of the disaster for emergency. Owen was later pulled ashore on a line which he tied around his waist.

The men who were aiding in the search for Harold Mangum under Dean Walker's supervision, were skirting both banks of the river and had traversed seven of the nine miles scheduled for them to run when the violent current and numerous snags in the side-channel rendered the one canoe unmanageable. It was demolished. Several hours were consumed in salvaging the wreckage.

No new developments took place in the river search. The motor boats are still in operation with their drag nets and have combed the river bottom so thoroughly that there is little doubt but that the body has been carried down stream. It is for this reason the canoes were sent on their 9-mile search today.

Monday Rehearsals To be Discontinued

There will be no more Monday afternoon student rehearsals at the music building this term, according to an announcement made by Louis P. Artau, instructor in music and manager of the programs. Music students, heretofore, have been given the opportunity to present their work at 5 o'clock rehearsals, which have been held throughout the term.

Track Team Prepares For Aggies Today

Visitors to Bring Fine Flock of Milers and Weight-heavers

Affair to Be Closest Of Season Is Dope

Officials to Report at 2 On Hayward Field

AS the Climax of the Junior Week-end program the University of Oregon varsity track team will meet the Oregon Aggies on Hayward field today at 2:15. This will be one of the closest meets the two schools have ever staged, and the result will probably depend upon the relay.

The Oregon men have at last rounded into fair condition despite the bad weather and will be ready to do their best. Hard luck has hit the team in two places, as Joe Price is suffering from a bad leg and McGee, a hurdler, is in the hospital. It is hoped and expected that both will be able to run.

Oregon Edge in Sprints

As in past years, Oregon looks to have the advantage in the sprints, while O. A. C. will have the edge in the distance races. Several events are in doubt, however, such as the two-mile, the 440, the high hurdles, and several of the weight events.

There is also a great possibility of several meet records being broken at this time. One that is sure to fall is the shot, as Dixon has consistently been getting over forty-seven feet. Another is the 440, with either Sisson of the Aggies or Standard of Oregon capable of doing it. Whitlock in the javelin is the pride of the Aggie squad, but he will be given a close run by Wetzel and Burnell.

All the accommodations and the preparations have been completed and everything is set to run the meet off in record time. The officials are the best that can be procured, and all that is necessary is a good day and a large crowd.

All participants will meet at the McArthur court at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, stated Hayward.

Aggie Team Listed

Oregon Aggie entries: mile run—Clayton, Wolfe, Darlington, Knifft; 100-yard dash—Striff, Measing, Fleetwood; 440-yard run—Earnheart, Joos, Peterson, Sisson, Ritter, Oglesby, Douglas, Light; 120-yard high hurdles—Twitshell, Fehren; two-mile run—Bell, Powell, Timm, Clayton, Blinkhorn; half-mile run—Sisson, Knifft, Martin, Black, Clayton; 220-yard dash—Finch, Oglesby, Ritter, Joos, Manville; 220-yard low hurdles—Twitshell, Fehren; mile relay—Joos, Clayton, Sisson, Earnheart; pole vault—Butler, Measing, Smith, Mosher; shot put—Dixon, Luce; high jump—Wheox, Hansen; discus—Dixon, Luce, Whitlock; broad jump—Striff, Shute, Messing; javelin—Striff, Shute, Messing; javelin.

Yowling Tom-cats, Yowling Males Are Big Bother Around Hendricks Hall, Night Cop Tells Reporter

Punk Serenades by Both Irk Slumberers

"No I've never had any trouble and I don't want any," said Miss Shearer, the night watch on Hendricks hall, when questioned on her work. "I've had several interesting experiences though."

"One time, about three in the morning, I decided to wash my hair. When I had everything ready, I heard the bell ring. I went to the door but hesitated at first to open it, for I felt sure none of the girls was coming in at that hour. However, finally I did, but no one was there. I imagine some one was looking in the window and accidentally hit the bell. Then, frightened by the noise, whoever it was ran away."

"An amusing thing occurred during this last election," said Miss Shearer with a laugh. "It was also about three in the morning. I heard some one fumbling with the door knob, so I opened the door and saw the fleeing form of a boy. I felt something fall at my feet and as I looked down I saw about a hundred posters of that 'Hoyt Barnett for Senior Man' propaganda."

"My only trouble," she smilingly continued, "is with tom-cats. I can chase boys out easily, but the tom-cats are not a bit afraid of me."

"One night a group of boys came up for a serenade. I went to waken some of the girls, who had asked me to do so. When I returned I heard the awfulest yowling you could imagine. I ran to the window, and found the boys chasing tomcats for all they were worth. The exercise seemed to have worn them out for they soon got into their car and rode away without giving the serenade."

"Sometimes the serenades are very poor. The boys act silly and can't sing. Then I get so mad at them for disturbing the girls. If I had a hose, I would turn it on them. I guess that would drive them away."

"No," repeated the night watch. "I haven't had any trouble, and I don't expect any. Who would want to bother with a girl's dormitory? They know they would have a bunch of screeching maniacs on them should they attempt anything so rash."
