

Snappy Edition Of 'Old Oregon' To Appear Soon

Added Features, Improved Designs, Color Work Fill Pages

A new, beautiful four color work cover, and several other features will delight readers of the alumni magazine, Old Oregon, when the publication is distributed the first week of October.

"The cover is especially designed and incorporates new ideas in the old design," according to Jeannette Calkins, editor. It has a variation of shades and colors and will rank with the best alumni magazine covers of the country.

Old Oregon will be printed on a high quality of paper to bring out the halftones.

The magazine will contain a special article written by Miss Julia Burgess, instructor in English, giving her impressions of the Mediterranean. It is called "Ages and Races." Miss Burgess spent several months abroad last year on leave of absence.

There will be an interesting story by Dr. Gilbert on the new faculty members.

The news of the classes is always of interest to alumni. Marriages comprise the chief news notes for the classes of 1926 and 1927. "Everyone seemed to get married," Miss Calkins said.

There will be several pictures including one of the new dean of men, Elmer L. Shirrell, and Earl Pallett, registrar.

A special section will be devoted to sports, and there is a message to alumni from Coach McEwan. Professor Howe gives the prospects of the football team. He has followed the Oregon team and kept in touch with collegiate football for several years, and the alumni follow his forecasts with much interest. There will also be pictures of the coaching staff and captain of the team.

Back-a-Bit is the title of a new department started last year which is exceptionally interesting to old-timers. It contains stories, anecdotes and memory bits from way back. Old-fashioned pictures of University women of 1880 will be shown.

Mrs. Helen Brenton Pryor, who received her B. A. at this University in 1919 and her M. D. at the University of Minnesota, has written a thrilling account of her escape from China during the uprising and trouble of the past year. She was in charge of a woman's clinic at Nanking and escaped, with her small daughter, in a gunboat. Her husband made his escape dressed as a Chinaman. They are now living in Palo Alto.

Miss Americas Fail To Attain Permanent Place in Public Favor

(By United Press) Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—Are winners of America's beauty contest permanent or falling stars?

The controversy has been brought to the foreground by the National Council of Public Women in conference here, in a movement condemning the beauty pageant as detrimental to the nation's morals and of no real value to the winners themselves.

In a survey to ascertain what becomes of the Miss Americas after winning the highest beauty honors, the United Press discovered that the permanent value of the victory is unquestionably negligible.

Not a single winner in the famous Atlantic City pageant has been accepted as a star in either stage or screen, where one might expect their beauty to have the greatest value. All have flitted across the front pages of America's newspapers, comet-like, and comet-like, faded.

Only one since the contests started in 1921 has achieved any sort of success, and that one—Miss Margaret Gorman, Miss America in 1921—by marriage to a prominent Washington realtor.

Managers' Staff Will Be Largest Ever Appointed

German Picking Aides; Candidates Asked To Report

Gordon Miller, Burr Abner Draw Assignments

With some 200 football aspirants working out nightly on various practice fields on and bordering Hayward field, it takes the largest managerial staff ever assembled to handle the work, Frank German, senior manager of football, said last night.

To take care of the needs of the gridsters and also to handle the detail work connected with the business of practice, German has appointed his staff of assistants and assigned each to a duty. This duty must be performed in minute detail, the manager states.

Gordon Miller and Burr Abner have been appointed junior managers in charge of the varsity eleven. Tom Montgomery is to be manager of the freshman.

Other details assigned. Other appointments include Wade Newbegin, junior manager of electricity; Al Boydon, advertising and visiting teams; George Schade and Austin Shepherd, ushering; Burt McElroy and Ronald Hubbs, in charge of the field.

Sophomore managers are expected to report for duty each afternoon on Hayward field at 3:30 when possible, and at 9 o'clock Saturday mornings, German states.

All freshmen planning on entering managerial work are asked to report to German at 9 Saturday morning, October 1, the manager stated.

Award Given Managers

Managerial work includes a term activity, and those who turn out and make good receive an athletic award, it is stated. Their work is closely connected with football this fall and consists of handling details necessary in starting grid practice on time and in keeping it working smoothly. Also several of the younger managers are posted as guards at the gates. Managers and assistants have access to the secret practice sessions, from which other students are barred.

This season the staff is finely organized, and German has his assistants assigned definite posts with their work outlined. It is one of the smoothest working organizations ever established at Oregon.

Yell Leaders To Test Lungs At Pacific Fracas

New Students Advised to Learn Yells for Game Saturday

Attention, ballyhoo men! Try-outs for two vacant assistant varsity yell leader positions will be held during the Pacific game next Saturday. A frosh cheer captain will also be picked from the lusty-lunged infants who turn out. All those who desire to add to the glory of their alma mater via the megaphone route are urged to be in the grandstands early before the game. Come in whites if possible.

Learn the yells and songs thoroughly. Those who are new-comers should learn the accents and the method of directing each yell from some former Oregon man. A new yell, not listed in the Hello book, is printed in this issue of the Emerald. Learn it now so as to be able to direct it without confusion in the bleachers.

New uniforms are being planned for the yell leaders. The details of design are not yet known, but a striking new costume will be furnished. They will be ready for use by the California-Oregon game, October 15. The names of the successful contestants will be announced to the crowd immediately after the game. The judges for the tryouts are as follows: Members of the Student Council, Del Oberteuffer, and Bob Warner, Oregon yell king.

Come along all yell men! It's a great chance to make one of the important student offices on the campus.
