

Tennis Entrants To Start Battle Next Wednesday

Many Stars of California, Oregon, Washington, To Participate

The annual intra-mural racquet fest will get under way Wednesday, October 5, at 2 p. m., according to dope released today by Henry Neer, manager of tournament arrangements. From the widespread interest current in tennis circles there should be a record turnout.

All entrants should start signing up now. Lists are posted on the bulletin board at the basket window in the men's gymnasium. Due to the fact that the drawing will be at 12 o'clock Wednesday all tennis players expecting to compete should lose no time in getting their names on the drawing lists.

The regular rules governing intra-mural sports will hold in the tournament. Players in the tournament must furnish their own racquets and balls, except in the semi-finals and finals, when balls will be provided.

The tournament will not be wholly lacking in high spots of high class competition because of the barring of all varsity tennis letter men such as Neer, Hartman and Bradshaw Harrison, transfer from University of California and present state title holder in California, because the latter's double's partner, who with him holds the California state doubles title, the Oregon and Washington state doubles titles, the title for winning the Canadian national tournament and the British Columbia doubles title, will be entered in the meet.

Stanley Almqvist, who played in all the aforementioned tournaments, and who, together with John Risso, brilliant University of California player, holds the present Pacific Northwest doubles title, will also compete.

If the weather permits another tournament will be started immediately upon the completion of this one. The varsity tennis men will then get a chance to test their ability with the runners up for varsity teams who finish in the intra-mural.

Tie Remembered
The Webfooters are still smarting under the 0 to 0 tie that the Pacific battlers put up last year. The Badgers, like Oregon, are rated stronger than in 1926, and are basing their potentiality on the line. From end to end, the line is a solid row of veteran lettermen who afforded the Ducks such a stone wall countenance last season. The Badgers have never quite succeeded in defeating Oregon, but have come mighty close on one or two occasions. They have decided that this is to be the year for victory.

Emerson, all-northwest conference quarterback last year, has been moved to half. He is fast and shifty, and has been running wild in scrimmage. Coach Leo Frank is bringing to Eugene a quarterback that rivals Whippet Ord in size and speed. The personage is the flashy Miller, a new comer on the Badger outfit.

The Badger wing positions are filled by two of the outstanding ends of the northwest. Tucker is a two year veteran, and Coach Frank is confident that there will be a dearth of end runs around his side. Ingles on the other wing has a reputation for speed, and is said to be a sure tackler.

The starting line-ups are as follows:

Oregon	Pacific
Riggs	LE	Tucker
McCutehan	LT	Pollock
Hodgens	LG	Baker
Stadelman	C	Tuor
Wood	RG	Oddie
Weems	RT	Bryant
Wetzel	RE	Ingles
Coles	Q	Miller
Emerson	Lif	Hatton
Burnell	RH	Charlton
Gould	F	Johnson

Oregon Student to Do Social Research Work

Miss Margaret Inabnit of the class of 1926 has been awarded a research fellowship in social economy at Bryn Mawr college in Pennsylvania. She will start her work there October 10. Miss Inabnit intends to study the activities of the National Bureau of Child Welfare. The scholarship is valued at $1010.

Webfoot Sportoscope

By RICHARD H. SYRING, Sports Editor

After the nine football teams of the Pacific coast conference swing into action today, the yearly sport dopsters and annual predictors of the league's champion will have a considerable larger amount of data to figure with. In fact, it will take a very able mathematician.

In the northwest Washington State Cougars meet the College of Idaho at Pullman. Last year the smaller school's team was defeated 35 to 0; but can the Staters repeat? In the first game of the season Mt. St. Charles held them to a 6 to 6 tie.

The University of Montana Grizzlies will face the Mount St. Charles team at Missoula. Can they do better than a 6 to 6 tie? The University of Idaho Vandals will match their strength with the Montana State eleven. This Montana Aggie team will have to have improved a great deal more than what they exhibited last year if they expect to beat Charley Erb's proteges.

Seattle will see the University of Washington Huskies engaged in two gridiron conflicts. A navy team from Bremerton will form opposition in the first tilt, and the Willamette University Bearcats for the second. Last year the Purple and Gold performers defeated the Navy team, 20 to 0, and the Willamette collegians, 28 to 0. It must also be remembered that Oregon defeated Willamette, 44 to 0, while Washington took the Webfooters down the line, 23 to 9.

For the first time in history, the Oregon Aggies will meet the California Aggies at Corvallis. The strength of the Aggies is pretty well known, while the southern farmers haven't made much of an impression. Last year they were defeated, 21 to 0, by the University of Montana, while the Montanians had a hard time keeping out of the cellar in the conference standing.

Oregon's game with Pacific today should go a long ways in comparing the strength of the 1927 team with that of 1926. Last year's battle ended in a 0 to 0 tie.

"Pop" Warner's Stanford Cardinals will face a real test today at Palo Alto when he sends his charges against the fast St. Mary's eleven. Last year the Catholic gridsters defeated the University of California, 26 to 7, while Stanford was content with a 41 to 6 victory over the Bears. Today's conflict is the first of the season for St. Mary's, but marks the second for the Red Shirts. The San Francisco Olympic club eleven was barely beaten, 7 to 6.

The University of Southern California Trojans will probably make merry at the expense of the Santa Clara eleven at Los Angeles. Last year Mr. Morton Kaer and his teammates ran rough shod over Walsh's pupils, 42 to 0.

"Nib" Price's Golden California Bears, who are reputed to be much better than last season, will meet the University of Nevada pigskin toters at Berkeley. The 1926 conflict went to California, 20 to 6, being one of the three Bear victories for the season.

Well, fans, there you have it in a nutshell. By the simple processes of addition, subtraction, multiplication or what have you, the winner of the 1927 conference confalon may . . . be selected.

Activities Chairman Ill With Appendicitis

Wendell Gray, junior man of the student council, and chairman of the activities committee, was taken to Portland Thursday night and operated on for acute appendicitis as soon as he arrived at St. Vincent's Hospital. He is said to be doing well. Mr. Gray is a member of Alpha Beta Chi and his home is in Prineville.

Eastern Oregon Unfolds Beauty To Professor

Flora, Museum Specimens, Gathered At Owyhee River Section

Prof. L. F. Henderson, research fellow in botany and curator of the botany museum, is busily at work classifying and placing in the herbarium in Deady hall material which he collected during the summer's work in Malheur and Harney counties.

Professor Henderson left for his summer's trip on the 10th of last March, stopping in Portland to talk before the Audubon and Mazama societies on the botany of Eastern Oregon. He went from Portland to the field of his summer's work, most of which took place around the Owyhee river and the Steens mountain in Malheur and Harney counties.

"I think Leslie Gulch that opens up into the Owyhee canyon from the east is in beauty, color and rock sculpture equal to the Grand canyon," said Professor Henderson in commenting on the natural scenery of his field of collection.

He mentioned the great Owyhee project which was to build a dam some 300 feet in height which would raise water sufficiently high to irrigate farms 50 and 60 miles from the dam. He also held the opinion that the main highway to the east would be through this section when the new dam opened the land to denser settlement.

The summer's work constitutes the second tour Professor Henderson has made for the University to collect flora and museum specimens, and his work will bring a valuable addition to the University herbarium when classifications are completed.

223 Gain Positions Through Assistance Of Employment Dept.

The school of education appointment bureau announces the placement of 223 teachers this year against last year's figure of 137.

Of the total number placed this year, 114 were graduates of the class of 1927. Eighteen of these had had some teaching experience, leaving a total of 96 inexperienced teachers placed from the class of 1927. Placements are distributed according to type of work, the high schools, including junior high schools, leading the list with 167, college and university next with 15, and elementary following with seven.

Outside of Oregon, candidates were placed as follows: Washington, 18 placements; California 10, Idaho 4, Montana 3, Michigan 2, Alaska 2, Missouri 1, Pennsylvania 1, and Texas 1. The man-made directly by the bureau; the jority of these placements were remainder were made largely thru the co-operation of the bureau in mailing out credentials at the request of candidates or schools or by the writing of individual letters.

Professors Address Teachers At Institute

Since the beginning of September various county teachers institutes have been addressed by Oregon professors. W. G. Beattie, lecturer of the extension division, spoke in Morrow county, September 8-9; Sherman county, September 13; and Harney county, September 29-30. Dr. John F. Bovard, dean of the school of physical education, addressed the Harney county institute September 29-30. Professor Harold Tuttle, professor of education, spoke at the Wheeler county institute September 15 and in Gilliam county September 16.
