Contest With Cardinals in Two Weeks

Pacific Coast Conference Standings

Washington State	1	0	0	1000
Washington	1	0	0	1000

Stanford	0	0	1	.000
Oregon	0	1	1	.000
Oregon Aggies	0	1	0	.000
Montana	0	2	0	.000

With the second week of play now past history, the Pacific Coast conference race is beginning to assume a definite distinction between the top and the bottom of the official standings. The victorious Golden Bears shoved the Webfoots into the familiar cellar position which is also being occupied by the Montana Grizzlies and the Oregon Aggies.

The Oregon team, although slightly dismayed, declares that the abode in the lower extremities is only a temporary one, and they are hopeful of climbing to a more favorable location by means of a win over Stanford on October 29. Whether Oregon is off color, or whether California was too strong is still a somewhat shady question. It is a certainty that the Ducks were outplayed in Portland, but the team that battled the Vandals so splendidly the previous week was hardly discernible in the faltering attack and the inconsistent defense of the Oregonians last Saturday.

Weak Spots Exposed

Coach McEwan paced his men through a light workout yesterday afternoon, and will now turn his efforts to strengthen the very apparent defects in the Webfoot machine before the Stanford contest in two weeks. Oregon has met the two extreme styles of football methods. Against the Idaho power plays and steam roller tactics, the Ducks showed unexpected strength, but before a team versed in her own style of play the Webfoots were outclassed in practically all departments of the game. From these two contests the real worth of the Oregon squad has been displayed, and the coaching staff can now definitely locate the weak spots, and prepare the team for a comeback against the Cardinal eleven at Palo Alto.

Four teams, Southern California, Washington State, California, and Washington head the conference standings with one victory each and no defeats. Idaho and Stanford have not been beaten, but their only games ended in even breaks. The Cardinals and the Trojans battled to a thrilling 13 to 13 tie. The Vandals were held at a 0 to 0 score by Oregon in Eugene over a week ago.

Huskies to Meet Cougars

Probably the most important fray of the coming week will be between the University of Washington and Washington State College. Both teams played and defeated Montana in their only conference games by practically identical scores. The Cougars ran up a 32 to 0 score, while the Huskies succeeded in gathering 35 points last Saturday in Missoula. Neither Bagshaw of the Huskies or Hollingbery of W. S. C. are profuse with predictions as to the outcome of the approaching battle, but the game is being watched closely as an important factor in determining the coast championship.

Two other conference games are scheduled for Saturday. O. A. C. and Stanford clash in the stadium at Portland, and the Vandals meet Montana at Moscow. Both Stanford and the Vandals are the prime favorites for a victory. The Agricultural school has displayed considerable power, and should give the Cardinals a close battle.

Local Churches List Bible Study Classes For U. of O. Students

Morning Bible study classes and evening discussion groups for University students, will be held every Sunday during the fall term at 9:45 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. respectively.

Under the cooperative church program in Eugene, these classes will be held at the several churches rather than on the campus.

The subjects and teachers of the different classes are as follows: Baptist, Eighth and Pearl, "Message of the Old Testament prophets to the Twentieth Century." This will be a mixed class led by H. W. Davis, director of the United Christian work on the campus.

The Presbyterian group will meet at the Westminister house on the campus. "Parables of Jesus" will be studied by the men's class conducted by Bruce J. Giffen, University pastor. The woman's class will be led by Mrs. B. J. Giffen.

"Fundamental Beliefs of Christianity" will be taught by Dr. J. E. Haas, pastor, in charge of the men at the First M. E. church, Twelfth and Willamette. "The Holy Land" upper class girls will be led by Miss Mary E. Findley and the "Story of the Old Testament" will be the subject taught the girls of the freshman class by Mrs. George P. Winchell.

At the Congregational church, 13th and Perry, "Are You Sure?" will be the subject studied by a mixed class under the leadership of Harold S. Tuttle, assistant professor in the school of education.

The Christian church, Eleventh and Oak, woman's class is taught by Mrs. R. M. Day, and the men's class taught by Arlie Marsh, a graduate of Oregon in 1927.

Swimming Honorary Holds Tryout Tonight; Life-Savers Eligible

The first try-outs of the year for membership in the Amphibian club, honorary swimming organization for women, will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Woman's building.

All University women who are members of the Senior Red Cross Life-Saving Corps are eligible to take the test, which will consist of demonstrations for speed and form strokes and for diving.

All girls granted membership as a result of the try-outs tonight will be notified to that effect early next week.

The purpose of the Amphibian group is to promote efficient swimming and to give interested girls an opportunity to make progress in the more difficult strokes and dives and to offer competitive swimming contests.

There are 14 members in the group at the present time, with Virginia Lounsbury, president.

All girls who are interested in the group, but who lack the prerequisite of holding a senior life-saving certificate, are urged to enter the life-saving class which meets twice a week, and thus become eligible for membership in the swimming honorary.

Varsity Diving Starts Practice Today at Six

Varsity diving practice will start this afternoon at six o'clock in the pool at the Woman's building, announced coach Edward F. Abercrombie. There will be three practices a week on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Prospects for the diving team do not look so good this year as Lloyd Byerley and Perry Davis, two letter men on the last year's squad, are missing. They also were on the swimming team. However, Len Thompson showed good form last year and is being groomed to fill the letter men's places, asserted coach Abercrombie. Other members of the squad last year were Ben Swartz, Lamont Stone, and Joe Brown.

Frank Riggs and 'Red' Slanson will turn out for the aerial swimming sport at the close of the football season, and will endeavor to bolster the divers in their meets.

European Fellowship Once More Awarded To Oregon Graduate

Paris, Oct. 17.—(Special)—Verne Blue, Oregon '22, formerly instructor in the department of history at the University of Oregon and member of the University of California faculty, has just received notice of his reappointment to foreign fellowship of the Native Sons of the Golden West in Pacific coast history, which is awarded by the University of California.

Mr. Blue, who held the fellowship last year after leaving Eugene and who has been studying at the Sorbonne for the degree of docteur d'université, which he expects to get this spring, will spend another year in Paris. It is unusual for the California fellowship to be awarded twice to the same person, but the quality of Mr. Blue's work was so high that it was reawarded to him and the ordinary conditions were removed.

This summer Mr. Blue will read a paper on some phase of Pacific coast history before the International Congress of Historians at Oslo and in the fall return to America. He is also a member of the Society of Modern History at the University of Paris.

At Oregon Mr. Blue was a winner of the Edison Marshall short story prize. He belongs to Crossroads, Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Tau Delta.

Concern Felt For Mentor At Portland Fray

Reinhart's 'Reserved' Seat Worries Freshman Grid Player

... and the game would probably be cancelled!"

This remark comprised a fragment of a statement coming from a freshman at Saturday's game in Portland. He was sitting midway up in the rosters' section along about the 40-yard line across the field from the stadium. His attention was divided between the struggle on the field and a certain point high over the stands where the press box is located.

This freshman is a member of the yearling football squad. He has hopes of making the trip to Pendleton this Friday with the team when it plays the Washington State babes in its first conference game of the season. Closer observation shed further light upon the cause of his apprehension.

The press box at the Multnomah stadium is high up and close to the edge of the structure. Sitting up on the roof of the box high above the field two forms could be seen. One of these individuals was in a dark suit with a badge on the left side which flashed in the sunlight. He represented a unit of the Portland police force. Beside him sitting, it seemed, perilously near the edge of the "box," was a man in a light suit.

This frosh was speculating as to what would happen if this man should slip, and included in his apprehensive remarks was the thought, "... the game would probably be cancelled." The game he had in mind was the one this week-end with the Cougar kittens in Pendleton. The object stimulating this speculation from atop the press box was Billy Reinhart, frosh mentor, who is to lead his football proteges on their invasion of the Roundup City.

The game is not to be cancelled. Coach Reinhart did not slip. This is to be a big week of the yearling crew with two games on their schedule. Saturday, following the game in Eastern Oregon, the Ducklings are signed to meet Columbia University of Portland on Hayward field.

It is not known whether both frosh teams will make the Pendleton trip and return to Eugene for the game next day, or whether one team will remain at home to meet the Columbians.

If only one team makes the trip it will probably be the heavy eleven as the W. S. C. babes are reputed to have a beefy squad. This game is the more important of the two as it is a conference tilt and is being heralded as the one big game in Eastern Oregon this season.

The freshmen are the only squad of first year men in the conference
