

Oregon Team Working For Stanford Tilt

Webfooters to Depart for South Next Thursday; Battle Expected

Ducks to Have Full Strength Available

Cardinals to Meet Aggies Today in Fracas

By JOE PIGNEY

A week of intensive scrimmage practice terminating last night marked the Webfooters' preparation for the Stanford game at Palo Alto next Saturday, October 29.

Coach McEwan, with his usual guardedness against injuries, is expected to taper the team off with light fast workouts during the first of next week. Coach McEwan prior to leaving for the South on Thursday morning. The dismay that temporarily affected the team immediately after the California victory has worn off, and in its place is a real fighting spirit.

Regardless of criticism aimed at the Webfooters and coaches, the Oregon eleven still remains a potential barrier for the leaders of the Pacific Coast conference to hurdle. That Oregon has a strong team and a capable coach was demonstrated in the contest with the Vandals, and what the Webfoots have done in the past they can do again in the future.

Odds Favor Cards

In both her conference engagements, Oregon was on the under-side of the odds. The coming fray with the Cardinals will not be the exception. To be the underdog has never seemed to deter the Oregonians, and many games have been won that were conceded to the opponents before the initial kickoff. Stanford is not overlooking this phase of the Webfoots' history, and will be expecting a battle full of the customary Oregon surprises.

Ducks Have Full Strength

The full strength of the Webfoots' will be available against Pop Warner's team. Bobbie Robinson, whose sensational runs worked havoc with the Golden Bears the few minutes he was permitted to play will be back in the lineup by next Saturday. Although Robinson's injured wrist has kept him from the scrimmage sessions this week, he has appeared in uniform and taken light workouts to keep fit.

The sprained ankle received by Howard Handley, left end, in the California game is improving rapidly, and is not expected to hinder him next week. Hal Hatton, half, has been forced to take things easy for the past few days due to a slight injury to his foot during the scrimmage tilt with the freshman squad last Tuesday.

Fast Attack Ready
Although the Webfoot attack didn't get fully started against the Bears, the coaching staff has not thought it necessary to make any drastic changes. Once the team has reached a greater degree of coordination, the score-board will not register a blank for the Oregonians at the end of each game. The lateral passes, forward passes, and deceptive running attack that has predominated the offensive strength of the Ducks will be brought into action for the discomfiture of the Cardinal defenders.

Fortune is not entirely opposed to an Oregon victory. Today Stanford plays the Aggies in Portland in what is considered to be one of the hardest games on her schedule. The Webfoot varsity is making the trip north where it will have an opportunity to see the Cards in action. While the Oregon team will have had the advantage of a two weeks' rest, Stanford will have but a single week to recuperate from the effects of the O. A. C. struggle.

Tennis Tournament To Be Held Monday; Squad Works Hard

A singles tournament for the varsity tennis squad and the lettermen will be held Monday, October 24. The tourney will be held on the outdoor courts if the weather remains favorable. There will be no postponements of schedule, however, as the tilt will be carried on in McArthur Court if it rains.

The tennis men are getting down to regular work and this will give the squad men who didn't play in the former tournaments a chance at competitive tennis.

In the first round of the meet,

Bradshaw Harrison will play George Mead; Mel Cohn vs. Howard Shaw; Clare Hartman vs. Til Peterson; Stanley Almquist vs. Dick Edge; Sherman Lockwood vs. Gordon Baldwin; Roy Okerberg vs. Monteith Jacobs; Jim Terry vs. Tom Cross; Henry Neer vs. M. Hopkins.

Brad Harrison is seeded number one and Shern Lockwood number two.

Gene Tunney to Wed, Rumors Would Have It

(By United Press)
New York, Oct. 21.—They say that Gene Tunney has been kayoed at last by Kid Cupid, the master of them all, and that the next time the heavyweight champion answers the bell it will be one of the chimes in an ivy-clad tower of some little church around the corner.

Miss Parmelia "Polly" Prior of Greenwich, Connecticut, is said by friends of the champion to be the young lady who has won Gene's heart.

This afternoon at three o'clock for the meager and paltry sum of twenty-five cents, the Order of the "O" is offering an exhibition of the O. A. C. Stanford football game via the gridgraph. McArthur court is to be the scene of this electric grid battle. George McMurphy and his well-known Kollege Knights will furnish music for dancing before and after the game. This afternoon's party is a strictly no-date affair.

Interest in the Beaver-Cardinal game in Portland today has reached quite a high pitch due to the equality of the teams. Each team has been defeated once this season. The Oregon Staters beat the California Aggies early this season, 25 to 6, and lost to the University of Southern California Trojans, 13 to 12. Stanford's one defeat came at the hands of Slip Madigan's St. Mary's eleven, 16 to 0.

Both teams have played the U. S. C. Trojans and the showings against the southerners were about par.

Enoch Bagshaw and his University of Washington Huskies are going to have plenty to worry about in Seattle today when Coach "Babe" Hollingbery sends his carnivorous Washington State Cougars onto the field to do battle. The Huskies haven't forgotten last year's defeat handed them by the Staters, 9 to 6. Coach Bagshaw has been quite reticent this season. Hollingbery hasn't been doing any unnecessary blowing. Comparative scores place them about even. The Cougars defeated the Montana Grizzlies, 35 to 0, while Bagshaw's men won, 32 to 0. Washington cannot overlook the presence of little "Butch" Meeker of the Staters.

In the South, the University of Southern California will lock horns with the California Tech eleven at Los Angeles. The University of California Bears will fight it out with the Olympic club of San Francisco at Berkeley. Early in the season the clubmen were barely defeated by Stanford, 7 to 6.

In the extreme Northeast, the University of Idaho Vandals will meet the already much-defeated University of Montana eleven. Last year the Vandals won, 27 to 12.

While the rest of the conference teams are actively engaged in competition, Coach John J. McEwan and his Webfoots will take a rest. McEwan remarked yesterday that the rest was just the thing for the Green Shirts.

Monday will find the Lemon Yellow warriors starting on their last drive in preparation for the Stanford Cardinals at Palo Alto, October 29. Oregon's vanguards to Palo Alto will leave Sunday when Sammy Wilderman and Arden Pangborn, publicity experts of the University, start for the South. These two will attempt to pave the way for the Webfoots with reams of publicity.

that with 100,000 troops at its command, the Nanking government has declared war on Hankow.

Although both cities were nationalist (south China), Marshall Tang Seng Chi, Hankow's principal chief, joined forces with Marshall Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord and northern dictator, the dispatch says.

The large force of nationalist troops is said to have been sent to Anhwei province, thus ending the union in the Yangtse provinces.
