

Freshmen Grid Game Promises To Be Battle Royal

Webfoot Sportoscope

By RICHARD H. SYRING
Sports Editor

A telegram received at the sports office last night went on to say, "Twenty-six members of the University of Oregon football team arrived here today waiting eagerly for a chance to tackle the championship-bound Stanford football team in the Stanford stadium tomorrow. The Webfoots were all in great physical shape and went through a snappy practice session as a last measure of preparation for the crucial game." It can be seen that Oregon men are ready, everything is set for the big game with the Cards today.

The Webfoot squad was sent off with a great ovation. Every man was inspired to say the least. A good way to keep letting the team know we're behind them is by the use of telegrams. A short wire has a much greater effect than most people realize. Last year when Coach Billy Reinhart took his basketball team on its northern jaunt they ran into some stiff competition at Idaho, W. S. C. and Montana. When the team arrived in Seattle, pretty much worn out, a flood of telegrams began arriving. If you will remember, the first half ended with the Webfoots with a few points lead. Between halves a number of telegrams were read to the hoopsters and as a result, the Lemon-yellow quintet piled up 25 markers on the Huskies during the last canto.

Address your telegrams to Captain Beryl Hodgen, Cardinal hotel, Palo Alto, California.

Just as a another reminder, don't forget the Oregon Stanford game over the gridgraph, McArthur court at 3 o'clock. The Order of the "O" is bringing this service to the students at a great expense and deserve patronage.

Last week saw the gridgraph in operation for the first time this year. New men were used in operation. According to Ed Crowley in charge, everything has been made ready to give the watchers an uninterrupted play-by-play account.

Today's game at Palo Alto will see Coach McKean's men clothed in blue jerseys. Heretofore, the Oregonians have worn light-weight white jerseys in their southern conflicts. "Pop" Warner discarded the familiar red shirts this year for ones of white, necessitating the Webfoots' change.

By the way, it might be interesting to know that the white jerseys worn in the south last year against California were loaned by our Oregon State friends, the Beavers.

Oregonian's eyes are centered on Palo Alto but a good majority of the native sons will be casting their optics toward Los Angeles where Howard Jones' U. S. C. Trojans will attempt to run rough shod over "Nibs" Price's undefeated California Bears. The Bears are pretty confident since their victory over the strong Olympic club and its all-American members.

The University of Washington Huskies with a 14 to 0 victory over their traditional rivals, Washington State Cougars, will take things easy and play the Whitman Missionaries at Seattle. The Washington State are furnishing opposition for Coach Schissler's Oregon Beavers as a part of their Homecoming celebration.

In the northeastern part of the conference, Idaho and Montana, are also having a facile time. The Vandals remain idle, resting for their game with the powerful St. Mary's eleven in San Francisco next Saturday. Montana Grizzlies will entertain the Montana School of Mines at Missoula.

Varsity Men To Start Work November 2

Mermen Will Play Water Polo to Develop Wind and Swiftess

Meet Multnomah Club January 28, at Portland

Prospect for the Season Appear Bright

Swimming practice for the varsity squad will start Wednesday, November 2, at four o'clock in the Men's gym, announced Edward F. Abercrombie, head swim mentor.

The first part of the season will be taken up with work in the gym. The mermen will spend their time in running around the indoor track, throwing a medicine ball and work on the bars, to develop their wind and stamina.

After a few days of preparatory work the men will play American water polo in the pool. The main function of this will be to develop the ability to tread water and to further develop the swimmers' wind. The water polo game will be changed to use the International rules after a period of time. In the International polo speed is the prime factor making it good practice for swimmers.

A meet with the Multnomah club will be held in Portland on January 28. This will be the first tilt of the season for the Webfoot swimmers. California and Stanford will probably bring their water polo teams to Oregon for a meet this year. And it is hoped that meets with southern teams will be scheduled in the near future. If the present plans of coach Abercrombie work out the Oregon team will also schedule a meet with the Washington swimmers the place of the meeting to be decided on later.

The material for the start of the season is more impressive than that on the first of the previous season as but few men are missing from the list. John Anderson is the star of the last year's freshmen class and will be able to compete on the varsity this season.

Noted Pianist Will Appear in Concert On November 15

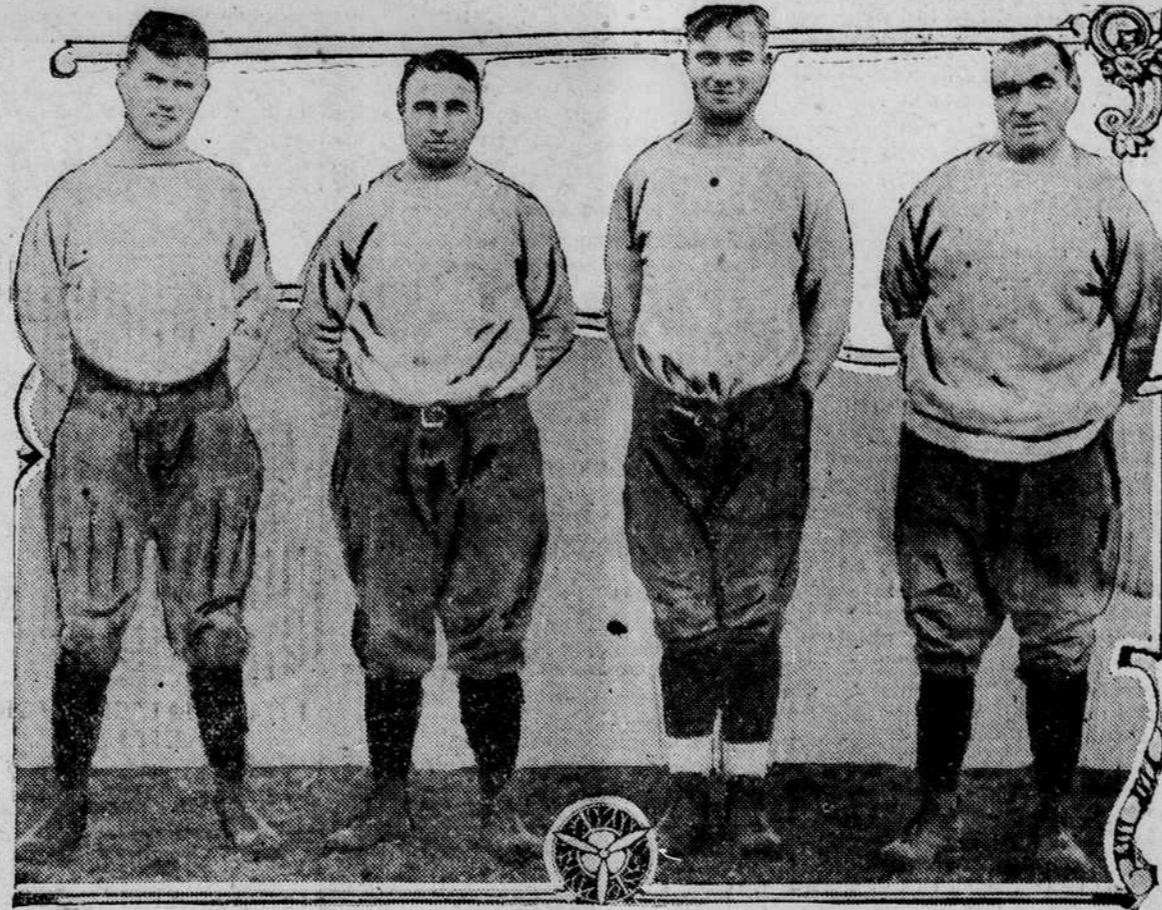

Ignaz Friedman, the first artist on the concert series of A. S. U. O., is scheduled for November 15.

The Polish pianist has been ranked by leading musical critics of the United States, Europe and South America as the last of a cycle of great pianists of one country, including Paderewski, de Paechmann and Hofmann.

Mr. Friedman has been acclaimed by newspaper critics of this country as a master of technique who combines skill with artistic interpretation. His ability to play delicate pianissimos and crashing fortissimos has led to numerous press comments upon the marked contrast in his playing.

Ignaz Friedman's first tour of the United States was made in 1921. Previous to that he won reputation in continental Europe as a Chopin player and as an original composer.

Their Protesges Face Husky Babes This Afternoon

"CHUCK SPEAR, brother of the famous "Bill," who has had charge of the wingmen. Billy Reinhart, head mentor of the yearlings. Bert Kerns, in charge of the super-freshman who meet Ashland Normal this afternoon at Ashland, and Baz Williams, freshman line coach.

Flunking Freshmen In B. A. School Get Help from Mentors

Twenty-eight freshmen, six of whom are freshmen women and 22 freshmen men are being benefited by the mentor system in the School of Business Administration this year. Those put under this system include freshmen getting a five or flunk in any of their courses. The mentors are selected from the upperclassmen in the school, and are usually members of one of the honorary societies.

The object of the system is to help the student to get oriented. Many of the low grades of freshmen have been found resulting from maladjustment. It is the mentor's duty to get acquainted with the freshman assigned to him and to study his particular case. He does not act so much as a tutor as an advisor. Often he can find difficulties that the instructors never suspect.

The School of Business Administration has been working with this system for five years and has found it to be very successful in solving the problems of the freshmen and in helping them to raise their grades.

Main Library Has Advanced Students' Seminar Collections

Room 30 in the main library is now being used as a place for assembling seminar collections for advanced students. Books being used in French, Spanish and advanced journalism courses have already been placed there and material for other subjects will soon follow.

Students taking seminar go to this room to study the books designated by their instructors. In previous years the material was placed on tables or on reserve. It is the opinion of M. H. Douglass, librarian, that the students will get a better chance to study all the books, instead of the few they are able to see when they are placed on reserve. Mr. Douglass thinks that this plan will be especially advantageous to graduate students.

Freshmen Reserves Play Ashland Normal

Bert Kerns, assistant frosh coach, left yesterday for Ashland with a second squad of Oregon ducklings who will meet Ashland Normal today. The team is practically the same one which last week made the trip to Medford where they met defeat by a 12 to 6 score. This group have now been working together for a week and should put up a much better front than last Saturday. The strength of the teacher's eleven is of unknown quantity as they are a new institution and have never before had a football team.

The yearlings making the trip to southern Oregon include Hoskinson, Eastman, Liebe, Beltz, Lowell, Thurston, East, Haddfield, Brown, Hall, Heiberg, Latourette, Knox, Boggs, Schoeder and Raigan.

Mayor Takes Rest in War to Save Chicago For America's Heroes

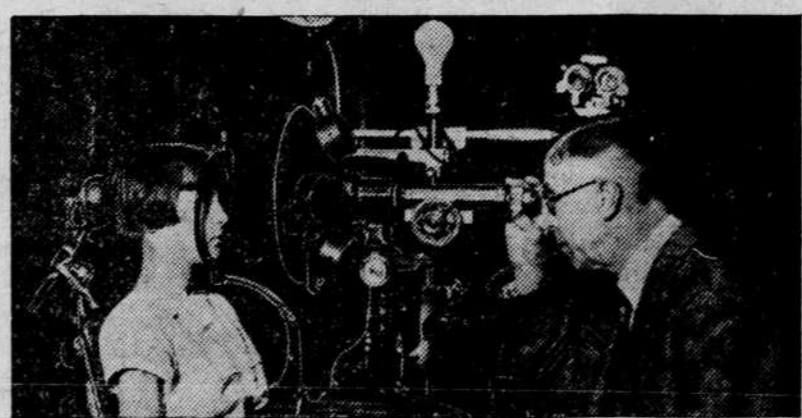

(By United Press) CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Mayor William Hale Thompson leaned his lance in the corner and took off his armor for a rest today as a lull appeared in the jousting lists, but U. J. Merman, yeoman among his cronies, "Sport," worked tirelessly on. He read a book.

So far as the campaign to save Chicago for American hero worship was concerned, proceedings were decidedly at an impasse. Not a book had been burned. The trial of William McAndrew, suspended superintendent of schools, charged with fostering pro-British propaganda, stood adjourned until next month. The American Foundation, Mayor Thompson's newly incorporated organization to make all Americans better citizens, was inactive.

Plans Discussed for Geology Department

Departmental plans and problems were discussed at a meeting of the geology professors of the campus, held yesterday afternoon. Dr. W. D. Smith, head of the department, has recently received a new geological map of South Africa. The map, with its explanatory notes and data, written in Dutch, will be hung up soon so that students may take advantage of it in their studying.

Relations Club Has Books Released by Carnegie Endowment

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace has just issued several new books for the use of the University of Oregon International Relations club, which can now be obtained at the library on presentation of the club membership card.

These books are issued from time to time and are available for students as soon as they arrive. The library also has the books issued to the club last year which are still obtainable for members' use.

The following are the books which the club has received this month: "China Yesterday and Today," by Edward Thomas Williams; "Chinese Political Thought," by Elbert Duncan Thomas; "Debt Settlement and the Future," by Walter Russell Batsell; "From Versailles to Locarno," by Harold S. Quigley.

Besides these books there are also about a dozen valuable pamphlets on subjects pertaining to China, International Debt Settlement, and the League of Nations.

All students who are interested in joining the International Relations club are requested to get in touch with Edward Johnson or Herschel Landru, the student committee of the club, who will issue membership cards to them.

Sigma Nus Win First Polo Tilt from S. A. E.

Water polo is having rather a tough session with all the "lost boy hunts," football trips and sundries to cause absentees from the pool. The first week of the polo schedule is almost finished, with the Sigma Nu's winning a close victory from the S. A. E.'s, the score being 1 to 0. The Sigma Nu's were the champions of the polo leagues in the tourney for last season.

The Delt's are matched with the Sigma Chi team on Monday at 4 o'clock.

The schedule for the second week of the schedule follows: Delt's vs. Sigma Nu; Phi Psi vs. S. A. E.; Phi Sigma vs. Sigma Chi. The Kappa Sigmas have entered a plea to join the tourney, it is under consideration and the decision will be given later.

French Transocean Fliers Head North

(By United Press) MEXICO CITY, Oct. 28.—The French legation today asked the foreign office to permit Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Le Brix, French transatlantic flyers, to fly over Mexico on their return from Buenos Aires to France.

It was assumed the aviators would continue northward to the United States, as they had planned tentatively after their crossing of the South Atlantic.

Infirmiry Patients Have Varied Ailments

Boyd Overhike, who was operated on recently at the Pacific Christian hospital for appendicitis, entered the infirmary yesterday to recuperate. James Campbell, sophomore business administration major, is in the infirmary with tonsillitis. Homer Dixon, who had poison oak; Gladys Blake, freshman journalism major, who had a bad cold; and Frances McKee, freshman journalism major, were released today.
