Coach Billy Reinhart's Oregon freshman football squad went through final practice last night for their "big" game with the rooks Saturday and today will leave gridiron togs in the locker room while they join the huge Homecoming throngs that will jostle through the portals of Hayward field.

Tomorrow, as Billy Reinhart an anti-climax to the big Aggie-Webfoot melee today, the Webfoot ducklings embark for the rook stamping grounds where they are to participate in their traditional Orange and Green infant gridiron struggle.

Coach Dick Newman's rook gridsters are confident. They believe they have the number of the fuzzy duckling that will visit them Saturday. They are so confident that it borders on being in the category of cockiness.

Rooks Want Victory
The Orange rooks are extremely desirous of defeating the Oregon babes this year. They have two very convincing reasons. First and foremost, because the freshmen are enrolled at the University of Oregon. This reason alone ignites a raging flame of indignation within the breast of the young Beavers.

The second reason they want to trample the Oregon yearlings is because of the manner in which Reinhart's 1926 squad of scrappy frosh received them on their visit to Hayward field last year. The embryo farmers were set back to the tune of 14 to 0 and, it seems, they have not forgotten the affront.

With the double necessity of vanquishing the bold bad babes from Oregon this season the Orange infants have been holding earnest and extended pow-wows about the goal posts of Bell field in efforts to concoct a medicine of sufficient potency to put roller skates under the Webfoot duckling's chances of victory.

Frosh Determined
They think they have the medicine to work the trick in the booting of Hughes, fullback, the ball totting abilities of Kerr, and McKalip, halves, the generalship of Weinel, quarter and their charging line.

The confidence of the rooks produces little effect in the camp of the Oregon frosh except to increase their determination to unhorse the rooks. The freshmen are going to Corvallis to beat the Orange young-

Increase In Oregon Offensive Power Due to Student Support

By CHAN BROWN
Student support has had a very definite effect on the team in the last two weeks, and Ted Pope, varsity end, thinks that their sincere backing will be amply rewarded this afternoon.

"The old Oregon offensive has sure come back since the last game," said Pope, "and one of the principal reasons for this increase in power is that the roosters have taken a decided trend for the better, which is definitely felt by the team. In regard to the proposed change in the name of the Oregon Agricultural College to that of Oregon State, Ted sters. That is their one avowed purpose. Coach Billy Reinhart does not give the Aggie infants more than an even break with his proteges, despite the confidence in the Orange vicinity and despite the fact that the Oregon freshmen eleven will not be at its best when it goes out on the field Saturday.

Bert Tuttle is almost definitely out of the game, although he may make the trip with the team. He has been practicing with a guard over his broken nose but this could help little in actual scrimmage. Kitzmiller has been out with injuries but may be able to get in Saturday. He will replace Hill at half while Moeller, erstwhile end, goes to full.

Kelly Unable to Start
Parke, quarter has been in the infirmary but should be able to tackle Beaver meat by tomorrow. Donahue will be at half if Parke is able to start at quarter. Donahue himself is considerably bruised but will not let anything less than a broken leg keep him from the rook tilt.

Kelly is out again with a bad shoulder and ankle. Colbert and Parkes are the only linemen who are very badly bumped but they will both be in the fracas, regardless. The battered condition of the squad is largely due to the strenuous scrimmages they have been holding with the varsity in helping to effect the rejuvenation of the big squad. Today the frosh will see the varsity batter another team while they recline at their ease in the stands.

Stein Is New End
Moeller's position at end will be filled by Stein who has been shifted from halfback. Stein and Archer, who will probably start at the other end, are small men compared to the balance of the line but they are fast, sure tacklers, and hard fighters so that their slight weight disadvantage should be nullified.

Chappell will start at center; Parkes and Lillie, guards; and Colbert and Christensen will be tackles. These five husky linemen, from recent indications should cause no little worry to the rook forwards who will glare across the ball at them.

Dvorak, Devereaux, Hall, Penrose, Eckman, Hodgen, Laing, Heiberg, Ragain, Douglas, and Jesse are some of the reserve infants that may get a call before the finishing touches are applied to the rooks.

Bill Fowler Leaves For Home in Tacoma

William A. Fowler, graduate assistant in the school of business administration, left late Monday evening for his home in Tacoma, Washington, because of his father's death. It is not known when he will return. Mr. Fowler is engaged at present in doing research work for his department.

said, "No matter what the Beavers may think about their new title they are still the Aggies to us and we are going to beat them, rain or shine."

Pope is playing his second year as a varsity wing man, in which position he has distinguished himself on more than one occasion by his speed and agility on the field. Ted is a junior, a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, and is majoring in business administration. He weighs 168 pounds and stands 5 feet 11 inches in height. His first football was played as end for Franklin high school in Portland, where he played for three years being captain during his last season. Pope also made two letters each in basketball and track. With at least one more year in which to play for the Lemon and Yellow, Ted will have a chance to beat the Aggies again next fall.

Order of 'O' Will Banquet This Evening

Affair To Be Held in the Campa Shoppe At 6:30 o'Clock

Reinforcements have been added to the walls and weights have been attached to the roof of the Campa Shoppe as preparatory measures for the big annual Order of the "O" Homecoming banquet which starts at 6:30 tonight.

There will be three features during the course of the affair, something new and different and hotter, promises Clare Hartman in his most mysterious manner.

Coaches of the Oregon teams are scheduled to punctuate the period with talks on the University's athletic present and future. There will be in attendance heroes of past years of the gridiron, track, maple courts and diamond who will recount deeds of the past.

The banquet will not interfere with the dances to follow later in the evening but will act in the capacity of first rate starter, par excellence, for a "big" evening. All lettermen should be present. Football men who have earned their sweaters this season are especially invited.

The banquet promises to be a memorable affair and members of the Order of the "O" should let nothing hinder them from taking advantage of the opportunity it offers for a big time.

New plans have been made for the Order of the "O" parade that is to proceed the big game on Hayward gridiron. All lettermen will meet at the R. O. T. C. barracks, where they will form the line of march. Be there at 1 o'clock, promptly, is the request of those in charge, wear your sweaters, and have student body tickets with you.

Miss Oneita Jantzen and Miss Pauline Prigmore spent Friday and Saturday at their homes in Portland.

Aeroplane to Bring Sports Editor to See 'Battle of Giants' Today

He's up in the air! Kenneth L. Binns, sports editor of the Portland Telegram, is the gentleman with the birdlike tendencies. Binns will leave Portland at 11 o'clock Friday morning, flying to Eugene for the Homecoming game. He plans to reach the Eugene flying field at 12:25, just one hour and twenty-five minutes after hopping off from Portland.

This is the first time a sports editor has used this mode of transportation to attend a football game, or any other athletic contest at Eugene, as far as is known.

Binns will be accompanied by the Telegram staff photographer, Gardner P. Bissell, who will fly down in another plane, to take action shots of the "battle of the giants." The planes will be piloted by two commercial aviators from Rankin field.

R. O. T. C. to March in Armistice Day Parade in Eugene

Members of the R. O. T. C. unit of the University of Oregon have been requested to participate in the Armistice Day parade in Eugene which will start at 9:30 a. m. Friday, November 11.

Credit for drill attendance and exemption for a corresponding number of hours during the following week will be given to all present for the parade. Those who do not turn out will report for their regular drills. The R. O. T. C. headquarters urge that each student make every effort to turn out. Don McCook, rally chairman, also asks that each house excuse every freshman from Friday morning chores so they can be at the barracks on time.

The group will assemble at 8:30 a. m. at the barracks to be assigned rifles and given instructions. Band members will wear the regular U. of O. uniforms. Dismissal will be at an hour making it possible for participants to attend campus luncheon and change clothing prior to the game.

During the past five years the R. O. T. C. has taken an active part in making the parade a success. This year the usual line of procedure will be followed, and as a rule the streets are thronged with people desirous of seeing the uniformed boys in parade.

Miss Maxine Paulsen was a guest of the Oregon State college chapter of Pi Beta Phi last weekend.

Two Beavers and Two Ducks

THESE traditional rivals are ready for the great Homecoming battle to be staged on Hayward field tomorrow at 1:30.

Cross-Country Runners To Vie Prior To Game

Team to Run Against Beaver Squad for Championship

Track Course Is Slippery Due to Rain

By GLEN GODFREY
After a lapse of three years the Oregon Webfoots will have a cross-country meet with the O. A. C. Beavers on Friday at Hayward field. The distance race will start at 1 o'clock and is scheduled to finish just as the last "old grad" is being seated in the grandstand, and prior to the football game.

The course over which the harriers will run is perhaps one of the hardest to cover in the Pacific Coast Conference fields. The start and finish of the race will be on the cinders at Hayward field. The two 20-man teams will run down the straightaway to Emerald street. They will then journey up Emerald to Columbia and from there they will switch over to Reed street. After they have climbed the steep Reed street the runners will find themselves on Fairmount boulevard, which they will follow to the top of Capitol hill.

From Capitol hill the runners will coast down the ridge leading into Hendricks park. From the park the men will continue down the trail which leads to Hayward field. The circuit will be approximately three miles of up and down running. The trail through the park is muddy and slippery due to the recent rains.

With four men missing from the list of 20, William L. Hayward, head track coach, is rather pessimistic about the outcome of the race. The Beavers will have the advantage as Oregon will have to take 164 points for its handicap. The team which has the least number of points at the close of the race is declared the winner. The first man in receives one point, the second two points, and so on down the line.

When entries are missing it forces the team to take the last places, which in the case of Oregon will mean a loss of 40, 39, 38, and 37 points, as they will receive the last four places.

Oregon, to win the meet, will have to place a large percentage of their footers by the lack of a final drive, men in the upper group. However, Nothing but the impossible can stop Hayward is of the opinion that the Gould today should he get within Webfoots will stand a good chance the five yard-line.

Football

ren. Warren is also playing his last Homecoming game for Oregon. He is a stonewall defender and can open huge holes on the offense to drive the backs through.

Guards Are Fast
The Webfoot guards are light, fast and shifty. Wood and McCutchan are starting the contest with Weems and Keeney ready as reserves. The Oregon style of line-play necessitates swiftness in the guards in order to drop back to protect a passer or a punter and to run interference. These men are the ones who turned back the relentless thrust of the heavy Idaho backs, and they are determined that the opposition they present to the Aggies will be equally impregnable.

Oregon has the strongest pair of ends in several seasons. Wetzel and Biggs will be in at the beginning, but should they find the going too rough Slauson, Pope, and Greer will be rushed in to stem the Beaver charges. Wetzel, who was converted from a halfback at the first of the season, is a big cog in the Webfoot attack. He is a certain pass receiver, and is a consistent converter on the kick for extra point after a touchdown.

Speedy Backfield
Robinson, Burnell, Mason, and Gould are the starting backs. This combination offers the versatile ability of speed and power. Robinson is one of the most deceptive runners on the coast, and is almost a certainty for many yards today. He is the triple-threat of the team, being able to punt, pass and carry the ball with equal dexterity. Gould adds the punch to the offensive. Many times during previous conference games this year, the opportunity to score has been lost to the Webfoots by the lack of a final drive.

Nothing but the impossible can stop Hayward is of the opinion that the Gould today should he get within Webfoots will stand a good chance the five yard-line.
