

Frosh Gridders' Playing Time of Heavy Season Out

Colbert Is Only Yearling To Play Full Route In Conference

In the recent yearling football season only one player, Austin Colbert played the full route in the three freshman conference games. This year's ducking schedule was one of the heaviest that a frosh gridiron team has ever been called upon to go through with at the University of Oregon. Figures lately compiled in the office of Virgil Earl, director of athletics, show the actual playing time of each player in all the games with the exception of the tilt with Columbia University.

The games with Ashland and Medford were played by the freshman second string under Assistant Frosh Coach Bert Kerns. These games were played at the towns mentioned on the same days that the first squad was meeting teams at home, O. A. C., W. S. C., and U. of W. furnished the conference tilts for Head Frosh Mentor Bill Reinhart's heavy eleven.

Colbert, guard and one of the outstanding competitors for a varsity berth next season from the freshman line, topped John Kitzmiller in time played in conference games by only four minutes. Kitzmiller's perfect record was spoiled when he was forced out of the Washington game after battling for 56 minutes. He is another of the highly touted possibilities for next season's varsity. "Kitz" played at full and at half for the frosh. "Choppy" Parke, brilliant duckling quarter, comes third with 171 minutes of play for the three conference struggles.

Miss Kerns Will Leave Eugene December 8 To Begin World Tour

Miss Maude I. Kerns, head of the normal arts department of the school of architecture and allied arts, will leave Eugene December 8 for New York and other eastern cities, where she will remain for two weeks before starting on a nine months' trip around the world. Her itinerary will include France, Italy, Greece, Palestine, Egypt, and many north African and oriental ports.

A study of modern schools of art will be one of the chief objectives of her trip, Miss Kerns stated. She expects to do some sketching in Japan, where she will remain for a time. A trip through India, to the Chinese east coast, promises to hold interest and perhaps excitement, as well as an opportunity for painting and drawing, she said. Upon leaving Eugene, Miss Kerns' first stop will be Chicago, where she will meet Dr. S. M. Hummel, who will be her traveling companion throughout her nine months' absence. Miss Hummel visited in Eugene last summer. Miss Kerns will attend the Carnegie Institute in Philadelphia, and will visit galleries and museums in Washington, D. C., Boston, and New York, before sailing for Paris, December 22, on a ship of the Hamburg-American line. She will spend a month in Paris, before going to Naples to embark on the Resolute for the remainder of her voyage. Before returning home by way of California, Miss Kerns will visit the Philippines and the Hawaiian Islands. She wishes to stay in the "Golden State" to paint, before coming to Eugene for the opening of the University fall term. Miss Kerns was granted a six months' leave of absence by the University officials a short time ago. Donald B. Simpson, a graduate of the University of Washington and Columbia University, will take charge of her classes while she is gone. Mr. Simpson has just arrived on the campus, to assist Miss Kerns and observe her methods.

A Safe and Sane Christmas

A striking example of the adjustment of an old custom to the exigencies of modern life, is the adaptation of practical, workaday articles to Christmas giving.

There was a time when a "Christmas gift" must be something with but a single quality—uselessness. Today, it is not even good taste to select such things.

A glance thru our store will give you many practical suggestions for that Christmas list. Even such prosaic things as kitchen towels, bath mats and pillow cases can be boxed so artistically that none of the Christmas touch is lost.

Let's make this a safe and sane Christmas. Give useful things.
