

Frosh Basketeers On Three Day Hoop Spree in South

Infant Cagers On Southern Oregon Tour

Ducklings Invade Medford Today for Contest With Preppers

Ten Frosh Taken on Three Game Jaunt

Klamath Falls To Be Host To Team Saturday

By HARRY DUTTON
The University of Oregon's duckling hoopers continue today on the second hop of their three-game southern Oregon basketball tour. Early this afternoon they will swing through the city gates of Medford, the famous pear and apple center of lower Oregon.

Last night the yearlings treated the inhabitants of Ashland, home of the recently established southern Oregon Normal school, to an exhibition of fast basketball, when they went against the high school of that town on the Ashland floor. They remained in Ashland after the game last night.

Today they will meet a more highly touted quintet. Prink Callison, ex-University of Oregon athlete, is coach of the Medfordites, and has the reputation, built up from results, of turning out a high calibre of high school athletic teams.

Medford High Tonight

The Oregon frosh will have an added incentive to smear their prep opponents tonight, because of the fact that during the recent freshman football season the Medford eleven sent a duckling pigskin crew back to the Oregon campus on the short end of a 12 to 6 score.

In the event of a frosh victory in today's game, and the frosh expect a win, this former football defeat will be somewhat assuaged.

After the tilt the yearlings will probably repair to one of the Medford hostilities for the night. Saturday, to finish their week-end schedule, the Webfoot babes will double back over their tracks, again going to Ashland and on over the mountain range to Klamath Falls. News reports say that over in this timber district the natives are enjoying some real honest-to-goodness winter weather. The thermometer has sunk below the zero mark, the lakes are frozen over, and snow shovels are in season.

Ten Men on Squad

How Spike Leslie and his 10 Oregon infants will react when they hit this blustery clime is in doubt. According to frosh managers, no car-muffs, mittens, arctics, and other winter weather accessories were packed with the yearling equipage.

The strength of the Klamath high squad is also a mystery. It is understood that they grow the boys big and rough up around these wooded hills.

The freshmen left yesterday at 8 a. m. They are making the trip by bus. The yearling eagers who are representing the Lemon-yellow standard in these three Oregon towns this week-end include Edwin Stoddard, Edward Dvorak, Clifford Horner, Windsor Calkins, Harold Olinger, Jerome Lillie, Paul Walgren, Jean Eberhart, Al Makinen, and Woodward Archer.

These games will be the last for the freshmen until their first conference tilt when they meet the Washington husky babes on "Father and Son" day, January 28, as a preliminary to the regular Oregon-Washington varsity game in McArthur.

Practice hours are as follows: seniors, Monday at 5* and Wednesday at 4; juniors, Monday at 4* and Wednesday at 5; sophomores, Monday at 5, Wednesday at 5, and Friday at 4*; freshmen, Tuesday at 5*, Wednesday at 4, and Thursday at 5. Thursday and Friday at 5, are open to all classes.

The class teams will be chosen during the entire practice period by the coach, Miss Mary Jo Shelley; head of basketball, Margery Horton, and the class manager. There will be three or four more weeks of practice before the games will be played off.

Life Saving Exam To Be Given Soon by Red Cross First Aid Chief

A senior life saving examination will be held in the men's gymnasium during the first week in March for men wishing to pass the senior Red Cross life saving test. At the same time all those holding Red Cross life saving examiner certificates must be present to have them renewed. Mr. Terwilliger, head of the life saving work of the Red Cross for Oregon, will conduct the examination.

Mr. Herman Gawar, of the physical education department, desires to meet the above named people any afternoon after 3 o'clock at the gymnasium as soon as possible in order to determine a date for the test so that Mr. Terwilliger may make up his schedule of examinations.

Life saving work has attracted a good share of attention from physical education majors, Mr. Gawar announces, and there are plans under way to establish a life saving corps here at the University. A senior certificate of ability at life saving work will prove of value to those students who plan to do physical education work, he stated.

Salem Classes Begin With Good Prospects

Salem extension classes have opened for the new term with very good prospects, according to a report given out by W. G. Beattie, director of the Salem Extension classes, who has just returned from Salem.

Only one change has been made in the schedule and that is that the social psychology classes formerly taught by Dr. Charles L. Sherman of the Willamette University will be under the instruction of Prof. J. W. Sutherland, University of Oregon. Dr. Sherman is compelled to give up his classes on account of sickness in his family.

Golf Discussed As Minor Sport By Order of 'O'

Marshal Is Appointed to Keep Reserved Seats For Lettermen

Golf as a minor sport was one of the subjects of discussion yesterday at an Order of the "O" meeting in the Men's Gym. No definite action was taken at the meeting as no golf representatives were present.

The feeling seems to be that there are a number of good golfers in school and some sort of recognition should be provided for them. It would also help in attracting other divot diggers to the University.

Sport in Other Schools

Stanford University, the University of California, and the University of Washington, are said to hold golf as a minor sport. Golf is a popular game, and its influence is growing. Some feel that it would be a good thing for the University to pioneer the move to recognize golf in the institutions of higher learning in the state of Oregon.

Ed Crowley and Joe Standard were appointed by President Frank Riggs to investigate both sides of the issue, and have some golf players present at the next meeting of the lettermen, to talk over qualifications, etc.

McCulloch is Marshal

The Order of the "O", feeling that steps should be taken to better preserve the sanctity of the lettermen's reserved seat section at the basketball games, elected Ralph McCulloch, "marshal of the 'O'" for these occasions. He will be responsible for the presence of a reinforced saddle in this block of seats at all games. He also will have various and sundry other duties in the execution of this office.

Meryl Hagen was appointed to see that the letterman's seating space is well marked off preceding each game that no errant frosh who wanders into those sacred precincts will be able to alibi himself out of "assuming the angle."

Other business brought up concerned the Order of the "O" Smoker to be held on the night of the April Frolic.

Lettermen were warned that after Saturday they would not be able to get pictures in the "O" section of the Oregonian. Congratulatory spots were administered to Vic Wetzel, newly elected track captain, during intermission.

Idaho

Ingram, ex-Gonzaga star, were on the Brownson Motor company five, Coach Fox's proteges succeeded in wrestling a 31 to 28 victory from them.

A retrospect on the last two basketball games, Gonzaga and Whitman, reveals the fact that the Oregon team, as a whole, is not making a good percentage of its shots. In the Gonzaga contest Oregon attempted 83 field goals and converted but 22. The Whitman game saw the Webfoots shooting at the basket 35 times and converting 10. The average for the two contests is .271.

Gordon Ridings, varsity forward, still leads the Webfoots in scoring. Out of 43 tries in the Gonzaga and Whitman conflicts, he converted 14 field goals for an average of .326. Scotty Milligan, center, is second to Ridings in scoring, with five baskets out of 18 attempts for a .278 average.

Scotty Milligan, who had played but one game at center, had a real test in the Whitman game. He performed his job fairly well but will have to jump higher than he is now. Holmgren, Missionary center, was a little taller than Milligan and succeeded in getting the tip-off. The fact that the Missionaries got the tip-off can help account for their successful offensive. They had the ball in their possession a great percent of the time. To have had the tip-off would have materially aided Oregon in the last two minutes of play when a basket was needed for victory.

Idaho Vandals Plan Big Oregon Invasion; O.S.C. Opening Game

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Jan. 19.—(P.L.P.)—Three conference games, the first of the season for the Vandals, are to be played away from home this week and next by a squad of ten men who will accompany Coach Fox and James Keith, manager, on the coast trip beginning Wednesday.

Friday evening the lid will be lifted on the conference season at Corvallis where the Idaho Vandals meet Oregon State College. O. S. C. recently defeated Whitman by a narrow margin and indications point to a tough scrap for the Vandals.

The next evening the squad will go to Eugene and play Oregon, last year's champions, on their own floor. Although Oregon lost two of her best men by graduation, it is still considered the class of the conference.

The last game of the series will be played in Seattle, February 24, with the University of Washington as the opponents of the Idaho five. Washington has defeated Whitman and during the holidays took two games of a three game series from the University of Illinois five to dedicate the new Washington gymnasium.

Coach Fox has not announced the squad that will make the trip but it is expected that the ten men who made the holiday trips will be given the first call.

Debate League Enters Twentieth Year of Activity

Great Season Expected By Dan E. Clark, Secretary

The 1927-28 debating season marks the twentieth year in which the Oregon High School Debating League has carried on its work of enlightening thought and clarifying civic and state issues in high school communities in every corner of the state. The long arm of the University Extension Division has reached out annually during this score of years, and organized, directed, and fostered the work in inter-city and inter-district debate between high schools.

In the opinion of Dan E. Clark, assistant director of the University Extension Division, who is secretary of the league, the coming year promises to be one of great activity in the organization.

"Many schools are going to join the league this year who have not participated before," said Mr. Clark. "This is largely due to the fact that they have new teachers who are interested in debate and are willing to give a part of their time to it outside of the regular routine of their work. Debating in the high schools is entirely dependent on the attitude which the faculty members bear towards it. Where they are enthusiastic boosters of debate, there is usually a corresponding enthusiasm engendered in the students. We are glad to note that more and more of the teachers entering service in the high schools are taking an active interest in debate work."

The state is divided up into eleven districts for convenience in staging the debates. A series of questions is decided on by the executive council of the league, and one is assigned to each district. The first debates of the year are between various cities within the limits of the districts. When the winners have been determined in each district a series of inter-district debates are held to eliminate part of the contestants. Finally the annual state contest is held by the winners of the various inter-district contests. This is held at various cities about the state.

There are several cups presented to the winners of the state debate. Professor Edgar DeCou of the University of Oregon, first secretary of the debating league some twenty years ago, is offering a cup which must be won three times to secure permanent possession. Ashland has won it twice already.

Chicago Angles for Olympics as Part of World Fair in 1933

(By United Press)
CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Chicago today planned the greatest sports carnival in the world's history, to be held in 1933 as an added attraction to the world's fair.

Plans are under way to hold the Olympic games here at that time. Chairman Rufus C. Dawes of the fair committee has been authorized to appoint a sports committee to negotiate for the games.

The Olympics would be only one of several sport headlines. A heavy-weight championship bout would be another. The world's series and an inter-sectional game between two leading football teams would add interest.

However, in order to obtain the Olympics, a postponement of one year of the 1932 games must be made. If Chicago can bring about this postponement of the 1932 Olympics it would afford the first opportunity which the United States has had to see the games since 1904 when they were held in St. Louis, the only city in this country which has sponsored them.

Dean C. E. Carpenter Speaks in Portland

Charles E. Carpenter, dean of the University law school, delivered an address on "Law Reform" before a meeting of the Oregon district attorneys held January 12 in Portland.

Ability, Not Weight To Decide Matching Of Boxing Tourney

Exponents of fistiana on the campus are shy, very shy, if the assigned list for the boxing tournament to be held February 20, 21 and 23 at 4 p. m., each afternoon in the men's gymnasium is an index of the valor of the leatherpushers. While a good many of the fighters have signified their intention of competing to boxing instructor Herman Gawar, there is a general hesitation about putting names upon the list.

Mr. Gawar believes this is due to some misunderstanding about the way in which matches will be made. He wishes to announce that matches will be made according to the fighting ability of the boxers and not according to weight. Some of the men who are holding back because of the fear of getting their visages scarred by some cleverer boxers, will welcome this announcement, says Coach Gawar.

The final date of entry for the meet has been set for February. The preliminaries will be fought on February 20 and 21 at 4 p. m., and the finals are scheduled for the same hour on Wednesday, February 23.

Ghost of Veto Scares Farm Bloc Members

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—A break by two house farm bloc members away from the equalization fee plan in the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill today caused the bill's supporters to tighten their ranks.

The two are Representatives Williams and Adkins, Illinois Republicans, who said they still favor the principle but can see no reason for retaining it in face of the expected veto by President Coolidge and consequent failure of all major farm relief proposals.
