

Wrestlers Meet First Opponents Monday at Four

Six Organizations Enter Tournament; Athletes Must Weigh in

Wrestling, in which one he-man entwines his arms and legs around another he-man in an attempt to overcome him either scientifically or otherwise, will begin Monday at 4 o'clock sharp. The place is the wrestling room of the men's gymnasium.

Six organizations are entering teams, Friendly Hall, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha Upsilon, Independent Club, Delta Tau Delta, and Phi Kappa Psi. The number of men entering from an organization ranges from nine from the Sig Ep domicile to one husky from the Ahy Ups.

"Dutch" Widmer, wrestling coach and referee of the ensuing matches, says that all men entered should appear in the office of the men's gymnasium to be weighed in, for it may be necessary to change some of the men to different classes. The first round of the tournament will be run off immediately after all the men have weighed in and the drawings have been made.

Two chances at belt Before a man is entirely out of the running he must meet with two defeats in his class. The loser of a match may challenge the winner to another match, and such challenges must be made immediately after each contest. This will give everyone two chances at the belt in his weight.

The national intercollegiate wrestling rules will govern the tournament and are posted in the wrestling room.

The following rules and regulations will be in force for the tournament:

1. Entrants must weigh in officially in the department office before their first match.
2. All of the entrants must be on the mat every day of the week of the competition beginning Monday at four o'clock sharp. The entire first round will be run off the first day.
3. Challenge matches must be arranged immediately after each match.
4. All matches not including the finals or semi-finals will be five minutes in length to a fall of a decision.
5. Team points will be counted as follows:

Classifications Announced
Winners of semi-final matches will be placed in class A and will wrestle for class A points.

Losers of semi-final matches will be in class B and will wrestle for class B points.

A fall in class A nets 8 points to the winner and 4 to the loser.

A decision in class A nets 6 to the winner and 4 to the loser.

A fall in class B gives 3 points to the winner, 1 to the loser.

A decision in class B nets 2 to the winner and 1 to loser.

In case of non-participation points will be awarded on the decision basis. Men unable to compete on account of sickness or injury will lose their match by forfeit on the decision basis. Men absent otherwise lose on fall basis.

Freshman Hurt While Decorating for Glee

Frosh Glee decorating was a bit woeful for Richard Lewis, freshman in economics, who fell from perilous heights and cut a two-inch gash in his forehead. He received treatment at the dispensary. Dorothy McClaren, who fell recently while riding horseback and received quite severe cuts and bruises, is much improved.

Three new patients have entered the infirmary. Katherine McGee and Glenn Polts are on the list of infirmed.

White Rats Make Darling Playmates; Declares Zoologist

Want a new playmate? A cute little white one with pink eyes, nose, feet, and even a little pink tail? Pardon. A long, skinny one.

The zoology research station has some very nice ones. White rats—and only a month old. They are as affectionate and playful as kittens, as their proud owner, Birnet Hovey, who has been doing tropism experiments with them, gladly explains, and in order to prove it, he puts them through all kinds of tricks.

The little darlings have a sweet tooth and when a cube of moistened sugar is put on the top of their cage they display great acrobatic skill and climb to the top of the cage to eat the sugar. When one gets more to eat than the others feel that he is entitled to, they pull him down by his tail. They are very dainty eaters, holding the food given them carefully in their front paws when nibbling.

The rats are naturally very affectionate and like to climb all over their owner. A favorite habit of theirs is to lick his hand. Some persons may not care for this, but the rats are easily trained so the practice can probably be overcome.

See Al's Doom In Blockade of 'Favorite Sons'

Bourbon Party Split Over Candidates; Paper Line-up Forbodes

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—The potential "favorite son" bloc in the Democratic lineup has reached the point where its combined strength probably is within about 10 votes of the one-third necessary to block Al Smith.

The governor's fate would appear to depend chiefly upon whether a coalition of local candidates could be welded into a battalion of death ready to fight indecisively.

Several reasons are offered against the possibility of such a paper lineup really killing Smith off. One is that most leaders of the party are afraid of another factional fight like that of 1924 and would be willing to see Smith nominated if he gets considerably above a straight majority.

Another reason is that some of the favorite son candidates, like Pomerene of Ohio and Ritchie of Maryland, are for Smith if they cannot win themselves. Smith undoubtedly will fall heir to a good many of these votes after the first few ballots. A third reason is the some of the favorite sons are secretly prepared to accept the vice-presidential nomination with Smith if they can get it.

Farm Bloc Senators Draft New Relief Bill

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—Passage by the house of a compromise farm relief bill which President Coolidge will sign, instead of the disputed McNary-Haugen measure with its equalization fee, appears probable as a result of the last few days' developments.

It was predicted freely today that the house agriculture committee would report out a bill lacking the equalization fee to which the administration objects and that a majority of McNary-Haugen bill supporters would vote for such a measure on the floor.

Linemen Hold First Practice On Sodden Field

Three Lettermen Report; Freshman Team Well Represented

A score of line-men turned out on the sodden, sun bathed, practice field on the west side of the varsity stands yesterday where Coach John J. McEwan held football practice.

Most of the men out were from the freshman team of last year. Harry Wood, Tom Weems and Meryl Hagen were the only lettermen to report.

Coach McEwan after letting the men limber up began drilling them on correct line positions, offense and defense. Form is what the football mentor is after now. He desires to get players inured to the right and best positions and practice them 'till they become natural and habitual.

A player must be on balance, believes the captain, so that he is in position and able to go forward, to either side, or to the rear, without any useless and time wasting shifting about, or with loss of power.

The lineman's offensive charge was demonstrated to the men. The player charges forward in short, quick steps, head up and back straight. The group was then given individual attention as they each practiced this charge.

During the session McEwan lined the men up in line positions, then walked up and down correcting errors and showing the right way. Some of the lettermen demonstrated the work to the freshmen.

Forest Conservation Discussed by Writers In Quarterly Review

Forest conservation is the theme of the current issue of "The Commonwealth Review," published quarterly by the schools of sociology and education, and the departments of economics, history, and political science of the University of Oregon.

"At the Forest Cross Roads" is the title of an article by Thornton T. Munger, director of the Pacific Northwest Forest Experiment Station. Mr. Munger points out the tremendous increase in lumber production in Oregon in the last few years, and contends that it is the time for a universal policy of reforestation or forest farming in this state.

"Sustained Yield and American Forest Problems" is the subject of an article by David T. Mason, a Portland forest engineer. Mr. Mason discusses the present yield of Oregon forests and the changes in production that should be made to insure a sustained yield from the forests through future years.

In the concluding article of the "Review," Dr. F. G. Young, dean of the school of sociology and editor of the quarterly, discusses the best methods of utilizing to the fullest extent the resources of Oregon.

New Plan Proposed To Better Acoustics Of McArthur Court

According to reports from Jack W. Benefiel, graduate manager of the associated students, the proposed plan for bettering the acoustics of McArthur Court is to be put before the administration as soon as possible.

The plan is to use some kind of material to absorb the sound of the building. The most feasible plan, and the one which will bring by far the best results, seems to be the covering of the ceiling with burlap or some other material, according to Benefiel.

Other possibilities include the arranging of curtains from the ceiling to the bottom of the balcony, cutting off most of the balcony, and padding the concrete wall in back of the balcony.

If the whole ceiling is covered it would take a material with an absorbing power very near to that of burlap, but if heavier material is used, a little less than one-fourth of the ceiling would need to be covered, and would be put where it would be most convenient to do so.

If this plan is to be adopted the building will be more suitable for both speaking and music, according to Benefiel.

Lone Chance for Smith Is Appeal To High Courts

Vare's 'Slush Fund' Next In Line for Senate Probing Body

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—Appeal to the United States supreme court or re-election in Illinois appeared the only courses left open to Frank L. Smith today in his fight for admission to the senate.

His friends said they did not know what his next move would be. A resolution by Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, chairman of the primary investigating committee, declaring Smith's election tainted with fraud and corruption and his seat therefore vacant was adopted late yesterday by a senate vote of 61 to 23.

This overwhelming vote against seating Smith was held by some observers as forecasting possible similar action against Senator-elect William Vare of Pennsylvania, whose case will be taken up next by the Reed investigating committee.

There is a difference between the two cases, since Vare's election was contested while Smith's was not, but both men have found the temper of the senate against them and have been blamed for using large "slush funds."
