

British Spy in Rent Book Gives Intrigue Tips

Travel Books Pour Into Library Shelves For Readers

Gertrude Bell, "Khatun," the Great Lady, as the Arabs called her, because of her knowledge of the Arab and his lands, furnished a great deal of valuable information to the British government in the World war. A new book, "Letters of Gertrude Bell of Arabia," has just been edited by her stepmother, Lady Bell. It is on the rent shelf at the library.

From wayside Moorish cafes and markets, among beggars and the descendants of buccannars, in palaces, in the houses, huts, and tents of Berbers, Kabyles, and Arabs, before the mosques, during the hunting expeditions on the plains or among the peaks of Jujura, amid the Roman and Phoenician ruins or out on the limitless wastes of the Sahara, Ferdinand Ossendowski gathered his material for "Oasis and Simoon," his book about his journey through Algeria and Tunis.

"Wanderings in Arabia," a new seven day book by Charles M. Doughty, is an abridgment of "Travels in Arabian Deserts."

Two books of Lhasa, the "Forbidden City" of Tibet, are: "Journey to Lhasa," by Alexandra David-Neel, the only white woman who ever entered the city, and "To Lhasa in Disguise," by William Montgomery McGovern, a lecturer in the Chinese and Japanese school of Oriental studies at the University of London. He studied the habits, dress, speech, and characteristics of the Tibetans, and then went into the city in the disguise of a native. One careless slip meant give away and probable death.

Another book about Tibet is Captain F. Kingdon Ward's "The Riddle of the Tsangpo Gorges." This book describes the beautiful flora of the region.

"Life and Laughter Midst the Cannibals," by Clifford W. Collinson, is a story of his adventures among the cannibals of the tropical Solomon Islands.

These books of travel and adventure are on the seven day shelf in the library.

Restaurant Being Built On Thirteenth Street

Campus orphans and the like will soon have a new place to go where they can whet their jaded palates, if the new frame building that is being raised on the Robert Earl property on Thirteenth avenue east, between Alder and Kincaid streets, turns into what reports say that it will. It is understood that the building will be used for a restaurant and confectionery, under the management of J. W. Lundy, who is at present an employee of the Eugene Fruit Growers' Association.

Scenes From Venice, Florence, and Rome To Feature Lecture

An illustrated talk on Italy will be given in the Woman's building, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, by Dr. H. H. Kingsley, of Evanston, Illinois. This talk is being sponsored by the Eugene chapter of the American Association of University Women, and everyone is invited.

Dr. Kingsley, who has traveled extensively in Europe, has several thousand slides illustrating his various lectures. His lecture Thursday evening will follow the pilgrimage of Childe Harold as given in the poem by Byron. About sixty pictures will be used, showing scenes in Venice, Florence, and Rome.

Dr. Kingsley is well known as an author and editor of educational publications, and was for 30 years superintendent of schools in Evanston, Illinois.

After the lecture, an informal reception will be held in Alumni hall, when everyone will have an opportunity to meet Dr. Kingsley and his daughter, who is accompanying him on this visit.

Senator Drafts Bill To Make Third Term Ban Against Coolidge

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 31.—Fearing some Republicans opposed to Herbert Hoover intend to offer President Coolidge the crown for a third time, Senator Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin presented an anti-third term resolution in the senate today and announced he would demand an early vote. LaFollette acted on reports that Charles D. Hilles, New York national committeeman and vice-chairman of the Republican national committee, is co-operating with Secretary Mellon to bring about the re-nomination of the president. Should Democrats co-operate with Republican insurgents, the LaFollette resolution might be adopted. Most regular Republicans have accepted the president's two statements as final self-elimination and have proceeded with other plans.

ing a concise summary of the fact that England paid the interest on her war debt on time or that Lindbergh had arrived in a certain city on his good will tour is sufficient information to keep the students interest stimulated in foreign affairs. The news of the world constantly placed before him will perhaps induce him to look deeper into the subjects in which he is most interested."

Turnbull Lauds Use
Professor George Turnbull is of the opinion that the Emerald is facing a real loss. "I think that it is unfortunate if the press reports are dropped. It seems to me that if there is any way by which the service can be retained, it should be. Insufficient use was a condition that might have been improved. Surely the finances of the student body are not in such desperate condition as to justify this distinctive backward step."

Marian Barnes, senior in art was indignant and stamped her foot when she said, "I think that it is a shame that they are going to discontinue it because some students do not read the outside newspapers but they always read the Emerald. I think that the Emerald has always tried to select the stories of most universal interest and with the continuation of this service, they will be able to make the selection of this news finer."

"The United Press service in the Emerald is a credit to the person who instigated it," said Dudley Clark, senior in economics. There are some persons who do not read the outside papers at all and there are a good many who read them very little. I believe that the Emerald performs a service in giving the students a digest of the world's news. I do not think that it would be more effective to segregate it from campus news."

Likes News
Joe Holaday, senior in history, finds that the lack of an international press service will cramp his expansive vision. "I am in favor of the United Press for the Emerald," he said, "and I haven't a relative-working for either company. As a rule I am too busy to read outside newspapers and the press reports give me an inkling of what is going on in the outside world. They also serve to break through the wall of isolation that usually surrounds a campus."

"The foreign news should not be run in the Emerald to the exclusion of campus news but I believe it really enhances the value and interest of the paper. By no means should it be excluded."

That practical joke about looking upward

You can't help yourself. If you see someone standing still in the street, looking upward, you bend your neck backward. You want to see too. You want to know what's going on.

That instinct is perhaps the main reason for newspapers. So you can know what's going on. Going on among your neighbors, among the people in the next state, in other lands. You want to know the news.

And that's what advertising is for, too. So you can know what's going on. So you can know the news about styles in clothing, about theories in foods, about the latest improvements in radio amplifiers or automobile engines or face creams. News! You want to know the news.

The advertising in this newspaper is here to tell you things. It is here to keep you in touch with the things that are going on. Advertisements are interesting. They are useful. They are news.

Don't miss news
