

Registration At Conference Makes Record Three-Day Session Is Proposed for 1929 Press Meet

A total of 143 prominent Oregon newspaper men and women were registered yesterday afternoon for the Tenth Annual Oregon State Newspaper conference. This number is a great increase over last year's registration, which totaled 95. It is expected that many more will be registered before the close of the conference.

A persistent demand has developed, especially among the editors of daily papers, to have next year's conference begin Thursday morning instead of Friday, making a three-day session instead of the traditional session of two days. Dean Allen stated that this will be done next year if the daily editors, at their separate session this afternoon, prove to be united in the opinion that a Thursday session to be devoted to the problems of daily papers would be a success.

"The large attendance was a surprise to me," said Dean Allen. "We had calculated that the conference had reached the possible maximum last year, and that as many editors as might be reasonably expected at any one time to get away from their work were in attendance. It seemed as if the future increase in attendance could only come with the gradual growth of the state's population. Perhaps the good weather helped some, as well as the satisfaction expressed with the high quality of the papers contributed by the newspapermen on the programs."

Those attending the conference are:

Guy Hughes, Bulletin, Harrisburg; Alex Gabrielsen, Clark Co. Sun, Vancouver; C. P. Sonnishen, News, Hood River; R. Griffith, Register, Eugene; Joe D. Thomson, Glacier, Hood River; C. A. Sprague, Gazette-Times, Corvallis; John B. Black, Tribune, Dayton; Anna Jerzyk, Review, Rainier; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Voorhies and Earle E. Oregon Professors Ratify Vagabonding System Established

University professors and students, when questioned at random, were found to be unanimously in favor of the new system of vagabonding recently started on the University of Oregon campus and the column devoted to the advertising of lectures in the Emerald.

"I think it's a great thing," said Dr. Rudolph Ernst, of the English department. We always used to do it when I was in school. I haven't had many students vagabonding in my classes, because my lectures are for the most part very informal, and unless the students have had the background they cannot understand them very well."

E. T. Hodge of the geology department, and Walter C. Barnes, professor of history, both thought the idea fitted in well with the University's honor system plan. They agreed that, though few had been in their classes, that the plan was worth continuing.

Warren D. Smith, head of the department of geology, believed the plan was not only a stimulation to the students but to the professors themselves, as the latter would try to make their lectures really worthwhile. Dean George Rebec, head of philosophy, stated that he had been most successful in having the students visit his classes and that he thought the plan very beneficial.

John Anderson, sophomore in economics; Lillian Bramhall, senior in zoology; Marvin Chesbro, sophomore in chemistry; and John Butler, junior in geology, all thought that the vagabond column was a fine thing. An improvement suggested by a number of them was to have the column run the day before in order to enable the students to plan to attend the lectures better.

Tonight's Game Promises To Be Battle Royal

Anderson Breaks Coast Conference Swim Records in 3 Events

By RICHARD H. SYRING Sports Editor

It will be a battle royal tonight when the University of Oregon basketball team tangles with the Oregon State Beavers in Corvallis. The outcome of tonight's fracas determines, to a great extent, the status which either team will enjoy when the coast conference season ends. The game marks the last home contest on the Aggie court; for next week both teams take the road. A victory tonight would place either Oregon or the Oregon Staters in a tie with the University of Washington. That is, of course, assuming that the Huskies would be beaten on their own court.

Newspaper Group Organizes To Handle Foreign Advertising

A new organization in Oregon newspaper circles was started yesterday morning when representatives of newspapers from all parts of the state met and organized a group which will be known as "Selected Oregon Newspapers."

The organization will enable foreign advertisers to practically blanket the state in an advertising way by using the Portland papers and the list of Selected Oregon Papers, according to Robert W. Sawyer, publisher of the Bend Bulletin. Doty and Stypes, Incorporated, will act as a clearing house for the organization although they will not be connected with the group in any other manner.

The group will publish a bulletin setting forth the value of the selected list to advertising agencies wishing to cover the state. "Two Oregon Markets" is the title of the bulletin, Portland will be one market discussed, and the remainder of the state will be discussed under the other field. Market conditions which are available for advertisers to reach will be brought out through the discussion of the different parts of the state where the selected papers are located.

Officers of the organization elected yesterday are: Frank Jenkins, Eugene Register, president; Robert W. Sawyer, Bend Bulletin, vice president; Joe D. Thomson, Hood River Glacier, vice president; L. D. Gordon, Southwestern Oregon Daily News, Marshfield, secretary; Lucien Arant, Baker Herald, treasurer; A. W. Stypes, of Doty and Stypes, Portland and San Francisco, executive secretary.

Sixteen newspapers representing the entire marketing field of Oregon were named on the list of Selected Oregon Newspapers. The papers named are: Astoria Budget, Baker Herald, Bend Bulletin, Corvallis Gazette-Times, Eugene Register, Klamath Falls News, Southwestern Oregon News of Marshfield, Medford News, Pendleton East Oregonian, Salem Statesman, Dallas Observer, Forest Grove News-Times, Hood River Glacier, McMinnville Telephone Register, Tillamook Herald, and the Cottage Grove Sentinel.

These are record-breaking days for Johnny Anderson, Oregon water-skiing demon.

To break a Pacific coast record seems to be mere child's play for this former 1926 national interscholastic 220-yard champion and former member of national champion 300-yard medley. It was when Johnny was a student at Mercerberg Academy, Mercerberg, Pennsylvania, that all these noble deeds were performed.

Anderson's recent performance in the Oregon tank lowered the Pacific coast record in the 50-yard long course when he splashed through the waters for a 25.2. This breaks the Stanford swimmer, Williams', record, by four seconds. Another Stanford natator's best time, 19.4, for the 40-yard short course was lowered by Anderson with a 19.1. This record was previously held by Vanden Akker.

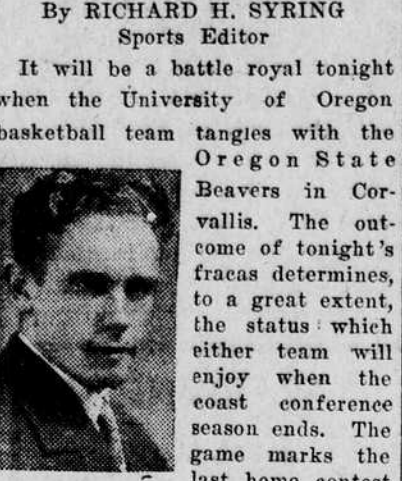

Not that Anderson has anything in particular against Stanford, but Driggs' record of 1:49.8 in the 150-yard backstroke was also shattered by a 1:49.5.

Breaking three conference records is nothing for Anderson, however.

Warren D. Smith, head of the department of geology, believed the plan was not only a stimulation to the students but to the professors themselves, as the latter would try to make their lectures really worthwhile.

Dean George Rebec, head of philosophy, stated that he had been most successful in having the students visit his classes and that he thought the plan very beneficial.

Coach Billy Reinhart and his basketballers leave next Wednesday morning on one of the hardest conference trips ever scheduled. In 10 days the Webfoots are slated to meet six hoop teams, four being conference quintets. The first conflict is with the Whitman College Missionaries at Walla Walla, February 16. In a game played in McArthur Court earlier in the season, this non-conference five defeated the Webfoots, 27 to 26. The next encounter will be with the Idaho Vandals, February 18. Playing on Idaho's small floor the Oregonians will have a tough time of it. The following Monday night will find the rough and tumble Washington State Cougars of Pullman as competition. The next night finds the Webfoots in Spokane, where they meet the Gonzaga University Bulldogs. The Gonzaga team was defeated at home on February 23, and then the Lemon-yellow five will journey to Seattle, where in the last conference game of the season they will try to avenge an earlier Washington Husky victory.

All told, the Oregon hoop squad will travel approximately 1,332 miles.

Opera Numbers To Be Presented Next Wednesday

Second Act of Flowtow's 'Martha' Will Be Sung By Quartet

A scene from "La Boheme," the second act of "Martha," and several solo interpretations of selections from operas will be included in the program given by the opera classes of Madame Rose McGrew, soprano, next Wednesday evening at 8:15 in the auditorium of the Music building.

The second act of "Martha" will be sung by a quartet consisting of Gretchen Kier, soprano; Louise Storz, contralto; Kenneth Allen, tenor, and Donald Ostrander, baritone. Martha, the heroine, is in reality Lady Harriet, bored with a surfeit of luxuries and suitors. She decides for novelty to go to the country fair dressed as a peasant girl in company with her maid, Nancy, and hire out to keep house for some farmer, according to the custom of country girls at that time. She persuades one of her suitors, the elderly and dignified Sir Tristram, to accompany them on the lark.

The scene from Puccini's "La Boheme" will be sung by Janet Pierce, soprano, and Adrien Burris, tenor, while the opera solos will be given by Pauline Guthrie, Fay Finley, Jack Dennis, Maldon Horton, and Harry Seonagall.

In the class work Madame McGrew has given special training in developing the personality of the individual students by having them enter wholeheartedly into the dramatic element of the operas. The two classes in beginning and advanced work now include twenty students and are open to any one who wishes to cultivate stage presence.
