

Moves Afoot To Give Lindy an Enforced Rest

High Officials Would Bar Flights for Nation's Hero

'Flying Fool' Says He Has No More Plans

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. — The feeling that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh "has done his bit" and that he should no longer risk his life in long hazardous flights, was responsible for two moves today to have him forego further danger.

Representative Connally, Texas Democrat, in expressing to the house the hope that Lindbergh "will not again undertake or attempt any dangerous flight," suggested that congress should pass resolutions asking the great flier "not to longer endanger his life or personality." Connally said he would introduce a resolution to that effect.

From Jefferson City, Missouri, came word that Secretary of War Davis said he planned to "impress upon Colonel Lindbergh the necessity of eliminating long flights."

"His task is finished," Davis said. "He has cemented relations with foreign countries with rare diplomacy. There is no need for him to expose himself further."

(By United Press)
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 14.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh doesn't consider the flights he has been making as hazardous, and, while he has no definite plans for the future, he will not give up experimental flying, he said tonight.

The statement was made in commenting on the assertion of Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war, that he planned to impress the trans-Atlantic hero with the "necessity of discontinuing long flights."

Article by Parsons, On Probation Work, Printed in Journal

The program of the future for the treatment of crime will have two main divisions, with prisons as the last resort of the two. This is the statement made by Dr. P. A. Parsons, dean of the school of social work of the University of Oregon, in an article entitled "How can we Train for Probation Work," published in the last issue of the Journal of Delinquency. The paper was read before the Probation Section of the National Prisons Congress in Tacoma last summer, and a similar talk will be given by Dr. Parsons next May in Memphis, Tennessee, before the National Probation Association of America.

"The great arm of social defense of the future will include all efforts put forth to keep persons from getting into custodial institutions," says Dr. Parsons. "Most hopeful of these will be the various ways of working with pre-delinquents, those persons who for any reason are headed toward criminal careers. Fitting into and supplementing the activities of the preventative field will be all of the work designed to make adjustments and correct faulty habits where delinquency and crime have already appeared."

Dr. Parsons also declared that prisons will be adapted to the individual needs of their inmates, so that they will be more like asylums, hospitals and schools than the present plants.

Michaud's New Book Sees Americans as Novels Reflect Them

The sociology and psychology of the American people is the basis for a critical study of the American novel by the Frenchman, Regis Michaud, in his new book, "The American Novel of Today," one of three new books on the seven day shelf in the main library.

Michaud, as an onlooker, says of America: "A proud and wealthy nation, the proudest and wealthiest of all, the most eager and the most successful in conquering the means of material welfare, America does not seem to know how to make her children happy. They are in revolt, they are questioning the ideals and institutions of their fathers. In poetry, in drama, in the pulpit, and in the press, pessimism and criticism prevail."

Such leading novelists as Theodore Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis, Willa Cather, Zona Gale, Floyd Dell, and others are studied as their work relates to the trend of the times.

"The Art of Theater Going" is a study of the general principles of the theater by John Drinkwater, English actor, producer, dramatist, author, and play goer. It is based on the English theater but is applicable to the American stage as well.

"India's Past" is a survey of her literatures, religions, languages, and antiquities, by A. A. MacDonell, emeritus professor of Sanskrit in Oxford University, England. Mr. MacDonell has made the intellectual history of India the subject of his studies for over 50 years and this book is the culmination of his research.

"Dutch" Widmer, pride and glory of the physical education department, has again been demonstrating his prowess in the squash tennis game by having already advanced to the fourth rung of the ladder tournament now in progress among campus squash players.

Campus Romeos Not in Favor of Old-Fashioned Type of Valentine

"Roses are red,
Violets are blue,
Sugar is sweet,
And so are you."

To these saccharine sentiments, which go with frilly valentines bedecked with epids and bows and arrows, the modern college man exclaims, blah! At least this is the general opinion of the men who were interviewed yesterday on the campus as to what they thought of the custom of sending valentines.

David L. Foulkes, senior in architecture, said when questioned, "I don't approve of the old-fashioned, sentimental kinds of valentines. Most men send flowers and candy instead, which is much more suitable."

Bob Keeney, senior in architecture, expressed his opinion as follows: "I think sending valentines is a puppy-love way of showing high school sentiments. It is all a graft by the florists and candy manufacturers, anyway."

Bob Warner, who is a senior in journalism, disapproved heartily of the custom. "I didn't send any valentines and I didn't get any. All these special holidays are the bunk, anyway. If I ever want to send anything I am going to do it on August 21, or some date like that, not old and hackneyed."

Albert Hilgers, freshman in architecture, thought the idea "foolish." Wilford Brown, sophomore in journalism, and Walton Crane, sophomore in architecture, both thought the idea of remembering people on Valentine's Day was all right, but said most men of their acquaintance were sending flowers and candy instead of cards or valentines.

The co-eds, on the other hand, were enthusiastic for valentines, any kind and all kinds, if those who were interviewed represent the consensus of opinion among the women on the campus.

"Decidedly, I am in favor of the idea," said Frances Bacon, junior in English. "I got a dollar and a half from my mother, which I might not have received otherwise."

Eleanor Poorman, sophomore in psychology, approved of the custom. "I think it is a fine thing," she said.

Jacquise Kirtley, sophomore in English, likes the old-fashioned kind of valentines. "I enjoy getting lacy, frilly ones. They are much nicer than the humorous or semi-humorous ones of which you see so many nowadays."

"It's lots of fun to get valentines and to send them," said Hilda Wanker, junior in architecture. "It may be a rather childish thing for college students to do, but, after all, many of the things we enjoy the most are remnants of our childhood. I approve of the custom."

Dorothy Belle Endicott gave her opinion in favor of the custom. "Lots of the girls send them to their mothers and sisters."

Investigation of the sales of valentines at the Co-op revealed the fact that quite a number of the students had been buying them.

their immediate neighborhood. Groups of singers are to be selected to work together in various harmony parts.

The time and place for holding the tryouts will be announced in tomorrow's Emerald.

Vodvil

tryouts for the smaller group will be made later.

Sunday, the McDonald theater will again be busy, as three tryouts have been scheduled for that time. All men desiring to try out for the men's chorus must be there between 2 and 3 o'clock. From 3 to 5 tryouts for skits and specialty acts will be held, and from 5 to 6 all girls who have not had a chance at the first tryouts for the chorus will have a last opportunity.

The revue needs talent for skits and specialty acts, as the revue type of show to be presented this year is built mainly with these as a basis.

Song Tryouts Scheduled

The final song tryouts will be held Thursday evening, according to an announcement of Boone Hendricks and Madge Normile, who compose the music committee of the Junior Vodvil.

Specialty acts are wanted, such as duets, trios, quartets, and solos for both men and women. Houses are asked to send up any harmonizers who may be growing monotonous in

Grizzlies Are Powerful

On February 23 the Webfoots will go to Missoula to play the University of Montana. The Grizzlies gave Oregon a close battle in Eugene and are thought to have an even chance for victory on their own floor.

If Washington meets defeat before it plays Oregon, the game in Seattle will be a championship affair, of course, providing Oregon does not lose any more games.

Tickets on Sale For Kopy Krawl, 'Kraziest Dance'

Frolic of Advertisers Set For February 21 at Campa Shoppe

"Step right up and get your tickets for the craziest and classiest dance of the year, the Krazy Kopy Krawl to be held at the Campa Shoppe the night before Washington's birthday. Big yellow tickets, that inform you that two places will be saved for you that night, all for the moderate price of two dollars.

Bill Hammond, Alpha Delta Sigma's ticket and decoration man, has appointed a man from each and every house to help distribute these pieces of printed cardboard. Not only will the tickets be sold in the houses but also in the Co-op and downtown at McMorran and Washburne's. Tickets are good wherever you buy them.

The entire affair is under the supervision of Bob Byington, who is also handling the advertising. The first assistant chairman is Wilfred Bates, who also has charge of making up the programs. Bobbie Warner is handling the features and that only means one thing that they will be good.

The big sign announcing to the world that Alpha Delta Sigma was putting on a Krazy Kopy Krawl, which stretched across 13th street last year will be put up again by Carl Boderson.

The following are the house representatives for the Krazy Kopy Krawl:

Alpha Beta Chi, Lyle Laughlin; Alpha Tau Omega, Ted Pope; Alpha Upsilon, Eugene Laird; Bachelordon, Milton George; Beta Theta Pi, Herb Lewis; Kappa Sigma, Carol Eberhart; Phi Delta Theta, Bill Hammond; Phi Gamma Delta, Bob Byington; Phi Kappa Psi, Francis McKenna; Phi Sigma Kappa, Bill Kuykendall; Psi Kappa, Gordon Miller; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Charles Reed; Sigma Chi, Hal Anderson; Sigma
