

Geology Group To Aid Dr. Hodge In Hood Survey

Activity of Volcano in Past, And Glacial Features Part of Study

A complete survey and description of Mt. Hood and the surrounding area will be worked out next summer by Dr. Edwin T. Hodge, professor of economic geology of the University of Oregon. Dr. Hodge, who will be assisted in the work by several advanced students of the geology department, plans to publish the results of the survey in a book that is expected to be of interest not only to scientists, but to residents of Oregon and to tourists interested in the region.

The party will survey the Mt. Hood region as far east as Hood River, north to the Columbia river, west to the Willamette Valley and south to the Cascade range, in order to show the relationship of the structure and composition of the different areas.

"Mount Hood is an outstanding example of the phalanx of the volcanic group that fronted on the Pacific Ocean," says Dr. Hodge. "We will try to ascertain at about what time this great volcano was active, and whether it can ever, in the dim and distant future, be active again."

The glacial features of Mt. Hood, which are of great importance, will be studied with reference to their effect on the surrounding country, and their permanence.

The rocks of Mt. Hood are of special interest, says Dr. Hodge. These are of the same species as those found throughout Western Oregon. They will be studied from a scientific and economic viewpoint.

Dr. Hodge has already had considerable experience in surveys of mountains of Oregon. He has completed an exhaustive work on the Three Sisters area, which has attracted wide attention, and has also done work on other regions of the state.

A. L. Lomax Discusses Oregon Flag Industry In Magazine Article

"Mechanical genius has saved the day for the flax industry of Oregon." This is the declaration made in an article "The Industrial Complex Changes," by Alfred L. Lomax, professor of business administration of the University of Oregon. The article is featured this month in "Oregon, The State Magazine."

Mr. Lomax calls attention to the fact that power is coming more and more to the fore in the Northwest, and that this has changed the present day into an era of "contin-ous production," rather than merely "production." Speaking specifically of flax production, Mr. Lomax points out that Oregon has an ideal climate for the growth of the fiber, and has abundant water of the correct composition for flax. He compares methods of production here with those of Europe, where cheap hand labor may be obtained, and points out that flax pulling machines solved the labor problem here.

House-Mother Needed, Says California Rule

U. S. C., Los Angeles, Feb. 21.—(P.L.P.)—With the opening of the new semester, a ruling was made to the effect that all recognized fraternities and sororities on the Southern California campus must have an approved house-mother. A committee is to be appointed very shortly to investigate, and see that this ruling has been abided by.

Aside from the requisite that the house-mother must be approved by the office, it is further demanded that she must reside in the house in which she has charge. In the case of some organizations, where this is impossible, the "mothers" must live either next door or across the street. In all cases she must be present at the home the majority of the day and during all social functions held there.

Sigma Xi To Hold Joint Meet With O. S. C. Club

The annual joint meeting of the University of Oregon chapter of Sigma Xi with the Sigma Xi club of the Oregon State College will be held Friday evening at 8:00 in room 105 in Deady Hall. A dinner for members of the two organizations will be held at 6:30 at the Osburn Hotel.

Professor D. C. Livingston, of the University of Idaho, will speak on "The Geology of Idaho." The public is invited to attend the lecture.

Basketball

How is a coach to judge what effects a pre-season schedule will have on the stamina of a team during the regular conference tilts? The Oregon Aggies, undoubtedly weakened by the long winter barnstorming trip to Chicago, have cracked, losing the last two conference engagements.

Oregon with a comparatively light early season schedule, is just reaching its peak. Although the team started late, it will take an unusually good basketball five to defeat it at the present time.

Oregon Knights Found of Great Help At Igloo During Basketball Season

Had Supervision of Crowds Inside the Pavilion And Aided Officers in Handling Traffic

By LA WANDA FENLASON
The Oregon Knights have had plenty to do during the basketball season. To their lot fell the care of McArthur Court during the games and the entertainment of the visiting teams.

The Knights took complete charge of the crowds inside the Igloo and aided the state officers in handling the traffic outside. They also showed the visitors about the campus and drove them around the city.

Oregon Knights are a chapter of the Intercollegiate Knights, a national sophomore honorary organization which originated at the University of Washington in 1919. It was established on the Oregon campus in 1923. Pledges are chosen each year from the freshman class on a basis of personality, character, ability, and feeling toward the University. Regular meetings are held each Wednesday.

The group has charge of discipline and the upholding of tradition on the campus. Each member makes it a point to notice and report violations. In punishing offenders the Knights work in co-operation with the Order of the "O."

Present officers are: Paul Hunt, duke; Jim Swindells, chancellor of the exchequer; Walter Norblad, secretary; Tom Stoddard, recorder.

Members and pledges include Joshua Alexander, William Barry, Fred Basche, Dunbar Burdick, Donald Caples, Mayhew Carson, Stanard Cowins, Walton Crane, James Dezendorf, Jesse Douglas, Norman Eastman, Joseph Erkenbrecher, Robert Everts, Wallace Giles, Nathan Goldberg, Harold Goldsmith, Preston Gunther, Elmer Harrington, Eugene Hendry, Sheldon Laurance, Paul Loeb, Homer McDonald, Robert Miller, Kenneth Moore, Tedford Sather, John Schaefer, Mervin Simpson, Bruce Titus, Clarence Veal, Emmett Spence, Nahum Baker, and Raymond Dudley.

California University Shows Big Shrinkage

U. C. L. A., Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 21.—(P.L.P.)—At the close of mid-semester registration at U. C. L. A., official data from the recorder's office showed a total enrollment of 5285 students, including 348 new freshmen. Compared with the total of last semester's enrollment, the figures show a shrinkage of approximately 600 students. This has been attributed by L. M. Mavrick, University recorder, to 300 "flunk outs" and to the usual discouragement on the part of many students, as well as the graduation of 350 or more seniors.

Fowler Writes Article For 'Oregon Business'

"What Can Foreign Trade Men Mean to Eastern and Southern Oregon" is the subject of the article written by William A. Fowler, research assistant in business administration here, which appeared in the February edition of "Oregon Business."

"Producers who have confined themselves to the home market may find that a rich opportunity for profit beckons across the sea," the article says. The opportunity for the sale of such Oregon products as flour, prunes, fir, pine, and apples is also reviewed.

Mr. Fowler, who graduated from Whitman College in 1925, received his M. B. A. from Oregon last year while an assistant instructor in constructive accounting.

Aggie Women Start Debate Circuit of Five Western States

(By United Press)
CORVALLIS, Ore., Feb. 21.—The women's debate team of Oregon State Agricultural College left here tonight for a tour of California, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho and Washington.

Members of the team include Helen Woodward, Dorothy Williams and Effie Wagner. Their first destination is Los Angeles, where they will debate with the University of California on the subject of mass education.

F. S. Dunn To Speak at Annual S. A. R. Dinner

Professor F. S. Dunn, head of the University department of Latin, will address the local club of Sons of the American Revolution, at their annual Washington Day banquet, to be held tonight in the Eugene hotel, at 6:30 p. m.

George Washington will be the subject of the talk, illustrated by Professor Dunn's collection of about eighty Washington portraits. It is understood that all members of the D. A. K. and those eligible for membership are invited to attend.

Professor Dunn will also address the Springfield high school this morning on certain aspects of George Washington.

Chinese Problem Is Huge, Declares U. S. Law Head

Silas Strawn Comments On Chaotic State Of Orientals

(By United Press)
KANSAS CITY, Feb. 21.—"China is in such a chaotic state, that he who could prescribe a panacea for all the ills from which the country suffers would be the greatest pathologist the world has ever seen," Silas S. Strawn, president of the American Bar association, declared here tonight.

"One of the big world problems of today," Strawn said, "is what can be done to rescue the Chinese people from the enslavement of the war lords and to bring order out of the existing chaos that the peace-loving, frugal and industrious people of that great land may come into their own. With conditions in China continually changing, it would seem to be quite impossible for the United States to adopt an inflexible, definite program concerning China. Under our scheme of government the responsibility for our relations with China rests primarily upon the President and the secretary of state. They know the situation as it now exists and have the means of keeping in touch with the ever-changing conditions."

Quality Is Our Failure Insurance

A successful merchant once said that he considered honesty the greatest single factor for success in retailing. "Build integrity into your business" he advised, "and you not only safeguard it but your contribution to the community you live in is immeasurable."

Wise words! And that is one of the reasons why we pay so much attention to the quality of the goods we sell. It is so easy to skimp on a lining, or substitute inferior leather in the inner sole of a shoe. But then we would not be running an honest business, and it would gradually crumble into ruins.

Selling honest merchandise at a fair price is more than an ideal with us. It is our "insurance policy" against failure.
