

Dance Recital Will Be Given

Rhythmic Class To Present New Type of Work On Saturday

A dance recital, sponsored by the department of physical education for women, and presented by the students of classes in rhythmic work will be held Saturday, March 3, at 8:15 p. m. at the Woman's building. Invitations have been issued as the seating capacity is very limited.

The recital is the first to be given this year, featuring the new type of dancing followed in rhythmic classes, and will be in the nature of an introduction and an explanation of the evolution in this type of work. There are numerous, varied types of dancing. In many of these the dramatic content of the dance is stressed rather than design. Miss Hill, instructor, says that elements of design and structure seem more fundamental and that it is her desire to stress these points first and to give some time to dramatic content later.

Interest in Abstract Form
This new style takes into consideration the close connection between the dance and music and accepts as an evident fact the necessity for the student to have an understanding of music. The interest lies in an abstract or absolute form of dance that does not have to depend on a story for its being. Sincerity and simplicity are sought rather than pretty poses and artificiality. No studied or static effects are attempted. Natural movement is the keynote of the new type of the dance.

The first number on the program will explain the procedure of training in natural movement and will show the stress placed upon rhythmic realization and appreciation as a basis for further work in dancing.

Studies in Rhythm and Design
The second number will consist of studies in rhythm and design in which the application of natural movement and rhythmic training with the addition of elements of design will be shown.

In the group called imagery the possibility of dramatic content is evident.

About fifty students will participate in the program, which follows, representing advanced and intermediate classes, a few beginning students, and the junior major group:

U. of W. Hoop Squad Prepares for South

SEATTLE, March 1.—Determined to continue the victorious pace they have set all season, the University of Washington hoop squad left today for California to battle the southern division winner for the championship of the Pacific Coast conference. With a brilliant record of nine conference victories as against a lone two point defeat at the hands of the University of Oregon quintet, the Purple and Gold five is expected to show California fans an excellent brand of basketball.

Scoring 346 points to the 238 tallied against them by conference opponents, the Huskies averaged 35 points a game to their opponents 24. Washington set the season's record for points garnered in one game by beating the University of Montana 51 to 31, at Missoula. A close second to this was the 49 to 19 drubbing handed the Washington State Cougars at Pullman.

Arabian Natives Arm To Attack Air Port

(By United Press)
BASRA, Persia, March 1.—Seven thousand rebels of the Wahabi tribe are preparing to attack the British airplane depot at Shabab, it was learned tonight. The Royal Air Force has prepared for the attack and declares itself fully able to cope with the situation.

British tanks and twenty new airplanes have been dispatched to attack the big force of armed Wahabis which is besieging Maan for the purpose of capturing the Red Sea force of Akaba.

Harvard Grads To Hold Meeting

University Men's Smoker Slated Tonight

The University of Oregon Harvard club will hold an informal smoker this evening at 8:30 in the Anchorage. All those who hold degrees from Harvard, or have taken courses there, are invited to attend.

There are at present eighteen faculty members of the local club: Donald Barnes, professor of history; Harold F. Blum, assistant professor of biology; John Bovard, dean of the department of physical education; Ray Bowen, head of the romance language department; Roy J. Pullock, associate professor of business administration; M. K. Cameron, associate professor of economics; C. E. Carpenter, dean of the law school; F. S. Dunn, head of the Latin department; Donald Erb, associate professor of economics; Rudolph Ernst, associate professor of English; J. K. Horner, associate professor of English; A. S. Kingsmill, associate professor of business administration; W. E. Milne, professor of mathematics; Mary Perkins, professor of English; Louise B. Schreff, instructor in architecture and allied arts; A. R. Sweetser, head of department of plant biology; Georges M. Weber, professor of business administration; Leavitt O. Wright, associate professor of romantic languages.

The local club is not yet affiliated with the national organization of Harvard clubs, but expects to be within this year.

Gets Student Side
Last year, a student in journalism interested in flying took lessons in the air from Langmack. Being put with a proposition by the latter to get passengers and students as a means of getting more instruction in the air, he became a sort of representative on the campus for Langmack.

When Stanberry introduced himself at Friendly Hall, where this flying enthusiast was living, he asked ed for someone to take over the agency to get students for the Stanberry-Langmack ground school. He was referred to this student.

Stanberry had procured more than eight students for his "school," when some of his acquaintances became suspicious. The one at Friendly Hall, as suspicious as any, but deciding to wait a day or so longer before taking any "active" moves in the matter, sent a telegram to Walt Beach, president of the Travel-Air company. He received the following reply:

"Reply to telegram: Stanberry unknown. No connection with company. Thanks. Details will be appreciated."

Langmack, too, had become impatient with the newcomer's weak display of knowledge concerning flying. But Stanberry had left, presumably for Corvallis, or Albany.

And the embryo "Lindberghs" wished they had received instruction in jumping before coming to college. They had paid in the neighborhood of one hundred dollars or more.

Men's Cooking Class To Open Spring Term

According to an announcement given out yesterday by Miss Lillian Tingle, professor of household arts, there will be several classes in camp cookery open to students for the coming term.

Miss Tingle has offered courses in this subject before but now they will be conducted in limited groups of twelve, with as many different groups as the demand makes necessary. The hours will be so arranged as to include one lecture and one laboratory a week. Due to the limited nature of the classes, Miss Tingle requests all those interested to see her sometime before the enrollment date.

Although the course is intended primarily for men, there will be a special class formed for women if it is desirable.

Miss Tingle also stated that she would teach no class in economics of the home next term.

Girls' Glee Club To Go to Portland

Radio Concert and Evening Program To Be Given

The Girls' Glee club will leave for Portland Sunday to give a radio concert and an evening program, according to Eugene Carr, director. The radio concert will be given Sunday over KEX. On Monday evening the glee club will give a full program at the Mount Hood Masonic Lodge.

The Portland program, which is virtually the same as the home concert to be given on April 4, will include a garden scene based upon three popular songs, "When You Look In the Heart of a Rose," "Garden of Old-Fashioned Roses," and "In an Old-Fashioned Garden." Richard Adam will sing the solos for the scene. A minute by eight members of the Girls' glee in colonial costumes will also be included.

Another feature of the program, apart from the regular choruses and quartets, is a Japanese act based on Gilbert Sullivan's "Three Little Girls from School" from the "Mikado." The trio of the scene will be carried by Janet Pearce, Louise Sterla, and Evelyn Hollis.

Dirigible Heads Home After Visit in Panama

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, March 1.—The dirigible Los Angeles tonight was flying north, off the Atlantic seaboard, to the hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., on the return trip of an epoch-making 2,250-mile non-stop flight to the Panama Canal zone earlier this week.

The big airship took off from its moorings on the tender Patoka in Guanaecyabo Bay, Cuba, at 10:43 a. m. today, and with favorable weather conditions was expected to reach Lakehurst by noon tomorrow.

All Italy, From King To Poor, Mourn Diaz

(By United Press)
ROME, March 1.—All Italy, from King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Benito Mussolini to the humblest peasant, paid homage to the memory of Marshal Armando Diaz, commander of the Italian forces during the last victorious year of the war, who died last night.

The king knelt at the bier of the famous commander and wept; Mussolini addressed the national chamber; and all Italy, through the press, mourned the leader's passing.
