

Seven Sports On Donut List

Baseball Leads the Field In Popularity; Two Track Meets

Seven spring sports constitute the schedule for the intramural league for the coming ten weeks: tennis, baseball, track (relay carnival), track meet, golf, handball ladder tourney, and water polo. The last sport named, water polo, was included in during last fall term, but henceforth and from now on it will be exclusively a spring exercise.

In the spring the fancy of young and old turns to curves and home-rons. There may not be any Ty Colbs or Babe Ruths running around loose on the campus, or if there were any such, "Billy" Reinhart would gather them into his fold, but who needs such celebrities to enjoy this great national pastime?

Put One Over!
Every living organization has nine men who at one time or another prepared to walk in the footsteps of Walter Johnson or Ray Schalk, and whose fingers itch to grab a bat and step up to the plate and smash one over the left field fence. The donut diamond is waiting for such enthusiasts and practice should start at once to limber up the throwing appendages and sharpen the batting eye.

Those who have a weakness for tennis competition will have their share in the annual inter-organization doubles tournament. This tournament will be under the direction of Coach Abererombie. Potential Tildens or pat ball artists, it makes no difference, are all urged to get in the game.

Lots of Running
Two big inter-organization competitions in track are featured by Coach Hayward for this term, the relay carnival and the regular track and field meet. "Bill" will have some future announcements to make about the requirements for entrance.

Need it be said that golf is no longer an old man's game? There is no need to refer to Bobby Jones' age for every links is crowded with human beings considerably under middle age. Bob Giffen, golf mentor, has not made any definite announcements concerning the coming doubles tournament for organizations as yet, but they will be broadcasted in the near future.

The handball ladder tourney is still with us and will remain standing for the rest of the year. Since the upset a month or so ago the ladder has remained practically stable. Bliss and Gawer occupy the top rung with Leslie and Reinhart hanging on the ground.

Coach Edward F. Abererombie has put the sport of water polo into the spring program because of its extreme popularity last fall. It will remain a spring sport from now on.

President Hall's Book Praised by Magazine

"Dynamic Americanism," a volume written by President Arnold Bennett Hall, was warmly praised in a recent publication of the magazine "School." It is characterized as "the most stimulating discussion of methods by which the hearts of boys and girls may be stirred so that they will become good citizens."

The magazine states that it will discuss the book at length in a later article. It was quoted in the current issue in connection with an extensive editorial on "Dynamic Americanism." The magazine has a nation-wide circulation, and many friends of Dr. Hall have congratulated him on the recognition his volume has received.

Swim, If You Would Canoe, Says Faculty

The mill race is being used extensively for canoeing with the advent of the spring season, and students are asked to note the faculty ruling which permits only those who have passed a swimming test to canoe in the race or river.

No student in the University is allowed to shoot the rapids in the Willamette river in a canoe, and every precaution is being taken to avoid any fatal accident such as marred last spring term.

Cavemen Artists Drew To Foil Evil Spirits

BERKELEY, Cal., March 28.—(By Science Service) — Prehistoric Americans, like the cave men of Europe, carved and painted pictures of animals and men to help them in working magic.

Thus may be explained many of the mysterious, gaily painted animals and crudely carved symbols found on the rocks where Indians once lived, according to Julian H. Steward, anthropologist, of the University of California. Mr. Steward is making the first comprehensive study of the ancient puzzle pictures on western rocks.

Mountain sheep and other animals recognized in these prehistoric American art exhibits were most likely painted in connection with rites designed to make the herds of game animals increase, thus insuring food for the people, Mr. Steward points out. Some of the moon faced, angular human beings scratched on the rocks, are dancers in the ceremonial rites, and others appear to be deities.

Some of the designs were painted in conspicuous places on the rocks as clan symbols such as are used by modern Pueblo Indians. And other pictures marked sites of water holes and other important spots, it is believed.

In Nevada and eastern California, an extremely puzzling type of picture is found, consisting of angular designs, many of them elaborately drawn. These are very ancient, judging from the fact that they are sometimes found deeply buried beneath old mineral deposits. The wide variety of designs on the rocks is clear proof that the Indians had no alphabet system, Mr. Steward concludes.

New Building Will Be Erected for W. S. C.

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE, March 28.—(P.I.P.)—Tentative plans for the new Woman's building on the W. S. C. campus have been drafted by the Architectural department. Special features of the building will be a large hall to be used for teas, entertainments, and dances, an auditorium with a small stage and seating capacity of approximately 250, and a complete gymnasium including a large swimming pool. For the last few years Women's League has sponsored an all-college revue and a "brick sale" on Campus day, the proceeds of which go into a fund used to furnish the new building.

Annual Typing Contest Will Be Held April 13

The Lane county typing contest will be held at University high school April 13. Last year Eugene high was the winner with University high as a close second. This year, according to Mr. Morse, principal of University high, the contest promises to be still closer as all the teams have been working especially hard. The high schools to be represented will be Cottage Grove, Springfield, Marcola, Pleasant Hill, Eugene and University. Mr. C. E. Gray of the Office Machinery and Supply Company of Eugene is the original sponsor of these contests and has presented a cup to the winning school each year.

Oregon Grad To Sing Here

Arthur Johnson, '23, Wins Favor as Soloist in Northwest States

Arthur Johnson, tenor, who is being presented in concert at the First Congregational church today, is a graduate of the University of Oregon with the class of 1923. Johnson's rise as a concert artist has been truly phenomenal during the past three years, although he has long been known as a singer of great talent.

While in the University he was a member of the glee club and appeared with it as soloist during the entire time he was a member. He was tenor soloist at the church where he is being presented for nearly five years. He also directed the Springfield Methodist church choir for one year.

Johnson was very active in student affairs while on the campus. He participated in do-nut, debate and basketball, served on several committees, was in charge of the only Y. M. Y. W. mix that featured dancing, carried the first Junior Vaudeville to completion, was a member of the company and managed Guild theatre for one year. He is a member of Phi Mu Alpha.

Although he earned his entire way through college, chiefly as assistant in the library and later as instructor in dramatic interpretation, Johnson maintained a very high standard in his class work, being graduated with general honors and elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

After graduation he spent one year in a logging camp and another in various business offices in Portland, but since January, 1925 has confined his activities solely to singing. It is not too much to say that he has doubtless gone further in his chosen profession than any other Oregon graduate that has adopted music as a life work.

In November 1925, Johnson announced himself as a concert artist confining his appearances to the Pacific Northwest. It is significant that although many singers have attempted this procedure he is the only one to succeed. Many people tried to dissuade him from the effort on the ground that nothing but disappointment could accrue, but the fact that since that date he has travelled well over 10,000 miles, entirely in the northwest, and appeared in the following cities is proof of his success. Seattle, Spokane, Bellingham, Port Angeles, Vancouver, Tacoma and Aberdeen in Washington; Billings, Bozeman, Hamilton, Lewistown, and Roundup in Montana; Albany, Ashland, Corvallis, Eugene, Salem, The Dalles, Oregon City, Roseburg and Tillamook in Oregon; and Vancouver, B. C., have all been on his itinerary. Some of them have heard him as many as five times. In Portland he has sung on scores of programs.

His press notices have been most laudatory, practically every management has reengaged him, and the fact that he is under the management of Antonia Sawyer of New York City adds further indication of his outstanding position. An informal reception will be held for Mr. Johnson in the church parlors following the concert.

Dean Gilbert Gives Series of Lectures In Eastern Oregon

Dr. James H. Gilbert, dean of the college of literature, science and the arts, gave a series of addresses in eastern Oregon during spring vacation. In Baker and La Grande Dean Gilbert was entertained by number of Oregon students.

"The Farmer's Plight Since the World War," was the topic of the speech Dean Gilbert gave before the chamber of commerce in La Grande, Tuesday, March 20. This same address was made before the Rotary club in Pendleton, March 21. "Economic Aspects of Gambling" was the title of the lecture given before the Pendleton high school, Wednesday, March 21, and in the First Presbyterian church of Baker, Sunday, March 18.

"Foundation Principles of Tax Reform" was given before the Kiwanis club of Baker, March 19. "Management of Public Debts" was the address made by Dean Gilbert before the Washington club at La Grande the same day.

Kidd Publishes Poems In 'Poetry' Magazine

A group of poems by Walter Evans Kidd, graduate assistant in English here, as been published in the March number of "Poetry."

One of his poems, "Her Marble Sleep," has been written in tribute to Irene Stewart, '22, the young Oregon poet who died last year. The titles of the other verses are "Black Orchards," "Sea Petals," "Cattle Shading In," "The Old Ranch Widow," "New England Bachelor."

Repertoire Week Play Rehearsed

Productions Will Be Final Drama Reunion

"The Swan" cast went through a smooth rehearsal yesterday afternoon, in anticipation of the coming repertoire week when all of this year's plays will be presented. There will be very few substitutions made in the plays which are to be given during repertoire week beginning April 9, most of the roles remaining the same as they were in the initial performance.

Approximately 115 drama students will be presented during the staging of the four plays and one anthology which will constitute the repertoire productions. Five seniors who have been doing good work this year will experience the pangs of the "last play." According to Miss Wilbur, it will be the final big reunion of the drama family.

Glenn Potts, Ruth Street, Thelma Parks, Constance Roth and Cecil Matson—all seniors—have had roles in the various Guild theatre plays for the past year or so. The consistent work and interest of students such as these, with the guidance of Miss Wilbur, has brought the drama department out from the cobweb corner and has made it a department commanding the attention of the campus and, with the introduction of the high school drama tournament, the state.

The new and old students of the department will be brought together in the productions of repertoire week.
