'Childhood of Genius' Discussed by Sheldon

Dean H. D. Sheldon of the school of education spoke before the Kindergarten association of Portland last Thursday night on the subject of "Childhood of Genius." He discussed the childhood of Goethe, Wordsworth, Froebel and Rousseau, and also the effort that has been made to put children through the regular school work rapidly. In his talk he tried to arrive at a conclusion as to the conditions under which a genius would be apt to develop.

Dave Mason Is Candidate For Varsity Honors at Third Base

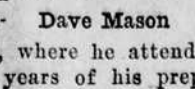

One of the strongest aspirants for the third base position is Dave Mason, varsity half-back on the 1927 gridiron squad.

Mason held down the hot corner with the frosh nine last year, and his fielding ability was a big help to the team. He also earned a numeral with the freshmen eleven of that year.

Dave gained his early baseball experience with the team of Albany high school, where he attended for the four years of his prep school career. In the high school, Mason played three years with the eleven as quarter-back, one year of basketball as forward, and the entire four seasons with the nine, playing at shortstop. In Dave's second season with the gridsters, they capped the Willamette Valley title, defeating Salem high, their worst contender, by a large score. Mason has played for two summers with the Albany town team in the Portland Valley League, holding down his favorite position on the third sack. During his frosh season at the University, Dave had a batting average of .357.

A sophomore in pre-medics, Dave is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He is nineteen years old, stands about 5 feet 9 inches in height, and weighs 167 pounds.

Sample Furnishings For New Dormitory Grace Dean's Office

What good-looking furniture. Are these permanent acquisitions to the dean's office? Wouldn't I like to occupy that study chair. These and other thoughts flit through the student's mind as he enters the dean of men's office, and gazes at the samples of furniture which will be purchased for the men's new dormitory.

An easy chair, the very personification of comfort, one of which will be placed in each room, is one of the attractive displays. It has not been decided whether English fostered or tapestry will be used for the chairs. Two study chairs of dark wood faced with blue, and card chairs of the same design and material also attract the observer's eye.

Each room of the hall will have two built-in dressers and closets, and the same number of desks and study chairs. One easy chair and a brass folding lamp will also be included in the furnishings, according to Elmer Shirrell, dean of men, who is on the furniture committee for the dormitory.

The rooms will provide accommodations for two men, and the sleeping porches will be built for four. There will be twelve single rooms in the hall.

Follies

In addition to these settings, a number of scenes and drops have been rented from Portland. The total value of the entire stage effects has been estimated at $4000. The scenery has been personally selected in Portland by Mason and was chosen to harmonize with the variety of scenes found in the show.

Film Tips

REX—"MIDNIGHT ROSE." The midnight rose blooming at the Rex shows some signs of hot house artificiality, especially in the miraculously transformation of Frederick Kohler from a ruthless underworld villain to a benevolent friend of his erstwhile victims, Lya de Putti and Kenneth Harlan. The picture holds one's interest, however, in spite of its occasional lapses. Little Sonny does some delightful work. —W. S.
