Varsity Goes To Corvallis To Play Today

Saturday 10 to 4 Win Makes Two Straight For Ball Nine

Columbia and Washington To Be Next in Week-end Jaunt Northward

Northwest Conference Division	Won	Lost	Pct.
Webfoots	3	1	.750
Huskies	3	3	.500
Aggies	2	4	.333

By HARRY DUTTON

Today the Webfoot nine trek to Corvallis for their third consecutive game with the Aggies. Last Saturday Oregon had things pretty much its own way most of the game, winning the tilt 10 to 4 and making it two straight from the Beavers.

Ray Edwards

"Big Train" MacDonald, although he allowed 11 hits to Coach Coleman's batsters, kept the bingles well spaced and gave his Scottish tendencies free reigh in the pinches. Ray Edwards came through with his customary circuit clout on his last trip to the plate, besides contributing a single and a double earlier in the game. He was at bat five times.

Robie Performs for Ags

MacDonald and the dimunitive "Rabbit" Robie played stellar roles with the bat, the "Big Train& getting two hits, one of them a triple, in four trips and Robie getting three for four.

Robie's last bingle of the day had a particularly dampening effect on the morals of the Orange nine. It came late in the game and almost broke it up. Ira Woodie and Les Johnson were on base and there were two outs.

MacDonald, masticating five sticks of one of America's premier brands of chewing gum, sauntered to the plate with his bat on his shoulder and looked inquiringly toward the outfield.

"Big Train" Scares 'em

The Aggie pitcher grew apprehensive, and he walked the "Big Train" purposely to get at Robie, who was next in the batting order. On the third pitched ball Robie came alive and when things were quieted a little later he was perched on second and three runs had crossed the home plate for Oregon, increasing the varsity lead to a comfortable five.

Oregon collected 13 hits off the Aggies. Both nines made five errors. Ira Woodie caught the entire game and did a good job of it. Dave Epps, playing with a badly sprained ankle, accounted for a number of putouts in left. Don McCormick was also on the boat at third, twice gathering in foul balls for outs from among the spectators.

Northern Trip Thursday

Including the game today, Oregon has four conference games yet to play. To win the Northwestern division the Webfoots must win at least one game from the Huskies and one from the Aggies of the contests remaining. Chances for the varsity taking the division look good.

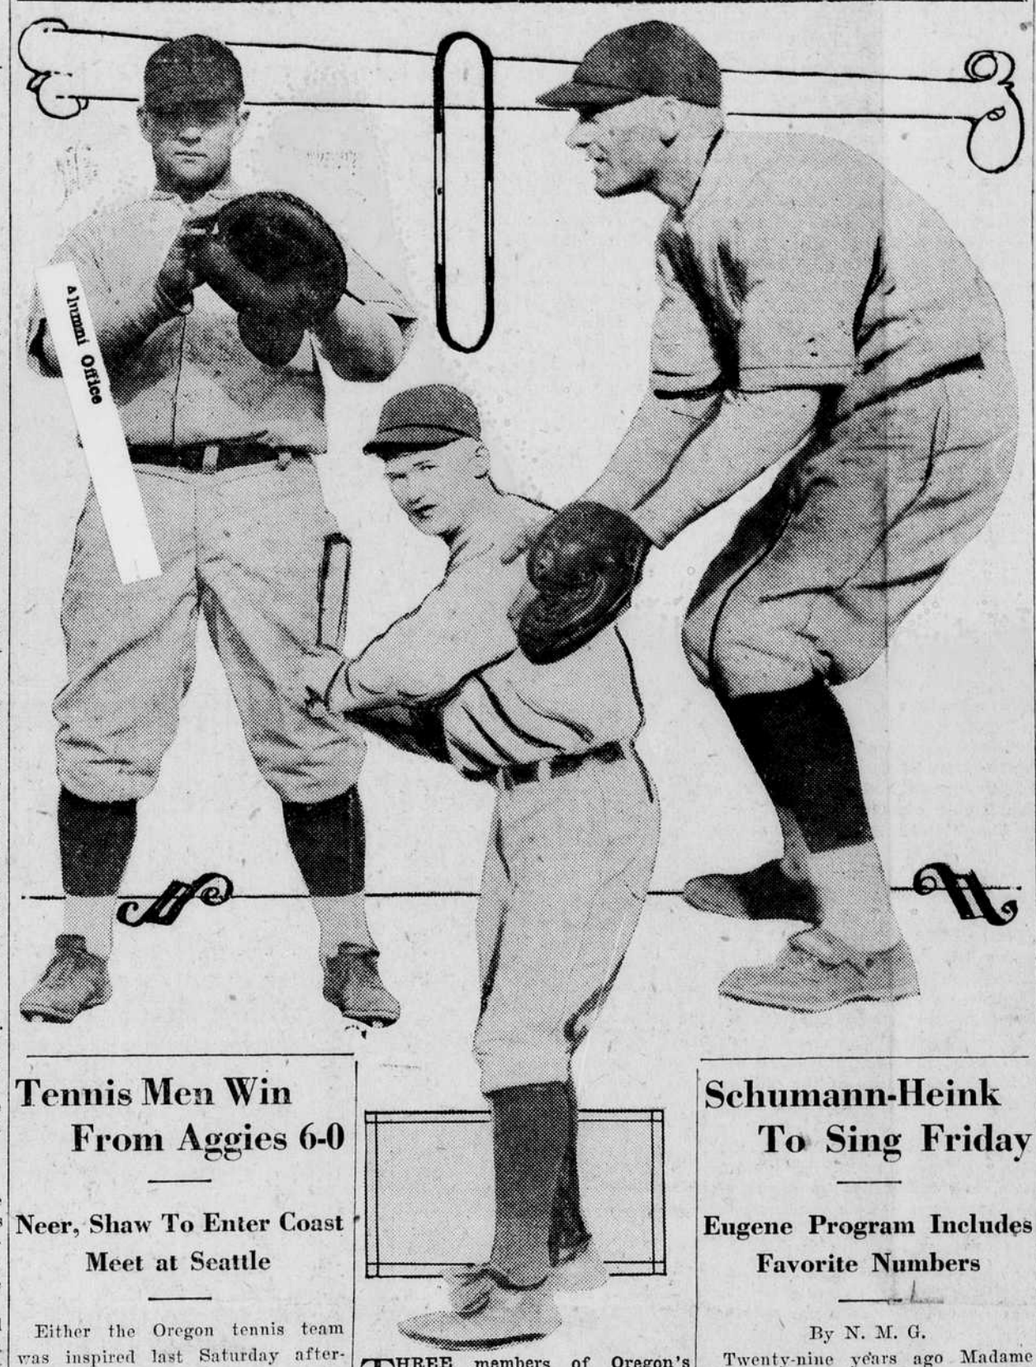
Tomorrow the Webfoots hold their last workout on Reinhart diamond before taking their northern trip. At present the schedule calls for a game with Columbia University in Portland Thursday as a preliminary to the Husky tilts, Friday and Saturday, in Seattle. This will mean that Billy Reinhart will entrain with his crew sometime Thursday morning for the Rose City.

U. of O. Students Are Given Questionaires

Questionaires are being given to the 9 and 10 o'clock classes in the University to gather data for the study which Harl Douglass, professor of education, and Roland Humphreys, research assistant, are making of the possibilities of predicting academic success in college.

These questionaires supplement data gathered from the registrar's office and from questionaires sent to the principals of the schools from which the students graduated. Mr. Humphreys is in charge of the investigation under the direction of Mr. Douglass.

They'll Attempt to Bring Home Third Win From Aggies



THREE members of Oregon's league-leading baseball team who meet the Oregon Beavers in Corvallis today in the third contest of a series of four. Left to right, Cecil Gabriel, playing his first year on the varsity but recently forced to the bench by veteran Ira Woodie. Ira Woodie, lettered catcher, who has staged a comebackk and regained his old position behind the plate. Below, Harry Dutton, fleet-footed center fielder, who will probably start today's tilt.

Tennis Men Win From Aggies 6-0

Neer, Shaw To Enter Coast Meet at Seattle

Either the Oregon tennis team was inspired last Saturday afternoon with a desire to vindicate the ranking of tennis as a major sport on this campus, or else tennis, as played here, is superior in all ways to that played in Corvallis. At any rate, the Webfooters made a clean sweep of the series with the Oregon Aggies last week-end, winning by a 6-0 score, and allowing the Staters only one set in the six matches. This gives Oregon undisputed claim to the championship of the Northern division of the Coast conference for the first time in the history of the sport.

The Oregon freshmen also trounced the Rooks in masterly fashion, though the Aggie yearlings did manage to squeeze through a win in a singles match; score, 5-1.

Next week-end will see Henry Neer and Howard Shaw in action at Seattle, where they will go Wednesday to represent Oregon in the first Pacific Coast conference individual tournament. The affair will be run off with the straight elimination system in the singles and doubles.

A unique feature of the Oregon representatives is that both men are left-handers.

Stanford, with Herrington and McElvenny, is favored to show best in the tourney, though the Webfoot pair is conceded an excellent chance to break through in some of its matches.

The bleachers for the Aggie matches were filled at 9:30 Saturday morning, but through some misunderstanding the Oregon State players failed to show up at the scheduled time, so the varsity matches were postponed until afternoon.

Bradshaw Harrison, Stan Almquist, Sherm Lockwood, and Henry Neer substituted in the morning with exhibition sets for the customers.

Following is a summary of the Oregon-Oregon Aggie matches:

Varsity singles—Neer, Oregon, defeated Ayers, Aggie, 6-0, 6-0; Shaw, Oregon, won from Speros, Aggies, 6-1, 6-2; Hartman, Oregon, beat Klahn, Aggie, 6-2, 6-2; Peterson, Oregon, defeated McGrew, Aggie, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2. Doubles—Shaw and Edge, Oregon, won from Speros and Ayers, Aggies, 6-1, 6-4; Neer and Hartman, Oregon, beat Klahn and King, Aggies, 6-1, 6-2.

Freshman, singles — Almquist defeated Bixler, rook, 6-1, 6-2; Lockwood, frosh, defeated Winters, rook, 6-0, 6-0; Lutz, rook, defeated Anderson, frosh, 6-4, 6-0; Buel, frosh, defeated Elle, rook, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Doubles — Almquist and Lockwood, frosh, defeated Bixler and Winters, rooks, 6-4, 6-2; Buel and Kneeland, frosh, defeated Sjoblom and Elle, rooks, 6-2, 8-10, 6-3.

Memorial Coins of Oregon Trail Arrive At Business Office

Three Oregon Trail memorial coins, part of the six million dollar issue of United States legal tender, were received at the office of the comptroller of the University yesterday. These coins, which have a face value of fifty cents, will be sold for a dollar each, to provide a fund to commemorate the pioneers who crossed the plains to Oregon in 1852.

One face of the coin portrays a covered wagon, drawn by oxen toward the setting sun. On the other side the full figure of an Indian is shown. The coins were issued by an order of Congress, under the auspices of the Oregon Trail Memorial association, of which Ezra Meeker, now in his 98th year, is president.

A letter from Mr. Meeker, who is the last survivor of the adults who came to Oregon in '52, writes of twenty years of labor spent to honor the memory of the pioneers and explains that the money raised from the sale of coins will be used for historical purposes and to erect new monuments and repair old markers on the Oregon trail.

Hurray! Don't Shove! Circus Here Today!

Perhaps University students have passed the stage of desire to carry water for elephants to gain admission to a circus.....Perhaps they don't even believe in throwing away perfectly good peanuts to the circus pachyderms. But at any rate, many of them will be interested to know that this morning at 8 o'clock the A. G. Barnes, five-ring circus, is scheduled to arrive in Eugene from Klamath Falls.

The outfit of lions, 'n tigers, 'n everything else will be camped at Second avenue and Blair boulevard and two performances will be given at 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. respectively. No, don't get excited. No parade will be held.

Schumann-Heink To Sing Friday

Eugene Program Includes Favorite Numbers

By N. M. G.

Twenty-nine years ago Madame Schumann-Heink made her American debut in opera when she sang the role of "Ortud" at the Metropolitan Opera Company's performance of "Lohengrin" in Chicago. On Friday evening one of the concerts that mark her farewell to the America concert and opera stage will be given in the McArthur court of Eugene.

During her American career Madame Schumann-Heink has endeared herself to both laymen and critics through her simplicity and naturalness of manner, the rich quality of her voice and her dramatic power. Her Eugene program will include some of her favorite numbers, in which she has won universal recognition for her profoundness in the interpretation of human emotions and the overwhelming force of her climaxes. This is particularly true of Franz Schubert's "Erlkonig" and Mary Salter Turner's "Cry of Rachel," in which the intensity of paternal love is tragically portrayed.

As a relief from the grimness of these numbers will come the dreamy mood of "Pirate Dreams" by Charles Huerter and the mirth of Malloy's "Kerry Dance." "Kennst Du Das Land" (Knowest Thou that Fair Land?) in which "Mignon" of Ambroise Thomas' opera describes in a tender song the beauties of her native land, is among the more delicate numbers on the program, as well as the "Ich Liebe Dich" of Beethoven.

Descriptive numbers which the proma donna will sing are "Taps," "Dawn in the Forest," by Ronald, "Dawn in the Desert," by Ross, and the familiar version of Joyce Kilmer's poem "Trees."

The assisting artist on the program is Miss Florence Hardeman, a former student under Leopold Auer, the famous Russian violinist. Her violin solos will include Edouard Lalo's "Symphonic Espagnole" Hubay's "Butterfly," Bohn's "Mosquito Dance" and the popular "Largo," (Dvorak-Kreisler) from the New World Symphony.

University students may obtain tickets for the concert by presenting their student body tickets at the Co-op. Others may purchase tickets there or at the A. S. U. O. office.

Campus Newswriters To Hear Editor at Noon

Frank Jenkins, editor of the Eugene Morning Register, will speak at the weekly meeting of Sigma Delta Chi this noon at the Anchorage. Mr. Jenkins will treat with problems which arise in the handling of news by newspapers. All members and pledges are urged to be present.

Gerlinger And Koyl Awards Made at Prom

Junior Honors Won by Edith Dodge and Roy Herndon

Past Week-end Considered Successful, Says Joe McKeown

Edith Dodge and Roy Herndon were awarded the Gerlinger and Koyl cups Saturday night at the Junior Prom for their selections as the best all-around woman and man in the junior class. The rewards were based on character, scholarship, service, and interest in activities. The two were picked by a faculty group.

Edith Dodge

The Koyl cup was donated by Charles W. Koyl, graduate of 1911, who is now connected with Y. M. C. A. work in California, and has been presented to the outstanding man in the junior class every year since 1914. The Gerlinger cup was conceived by Mrs. George T. Gerlinger, a member of the University regents, and since 1919 has been awarded to the highest rating woman of the junior class.

Activities of Two Great

Miss Dodge's activity list is one that began the first year she entered the University and has been increasing every year. She was elected president of the Women's League, campus organization of women, this spring as a climax to her endeavors. She is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honorary, Kwama, Mortar Board, and Phi Theta Upsilon, women's upperclass service honorary. She was chairman of University Day which was held throughout Oregon during spring vacation, and assistant chairman of the campus luncheon this year, and has been connected with the Emerald staff for three years, the Oregana staff, and the Greater Oregon directorate.

Roy Herndon

Roy Herndon holds the distinction of having the highest scholastic rating of anyone who has received this singular honor. Since his entrance in school he has averaged 1.52. He is a member of Friars, Scabbard and Blade, military honorary, and the Oregon Knights. In the recent elections he was chosen senior man on the Student Council, and he was also chairman of this year's canoe fete. He is connected with the Greater Oregon directorate, International Relations club, and the varsity debate squad. He is now assistant manager of forensics.

Fete Awards Made

Virginia Judy Esterly, dean of women, presented the cup to Miss Dodge, and E. L. Shirrell, dean of men, made the award to Herndon. They also awarded first and second prizes to the winners in the canoe fete. Hendricks hall and Bachelordon won first and Delta Delta Delta and Sigma Pi Tau second among the floats entered in the event.

According to comment floating around the campus, the Junior Prom Saturday night was considered the most successful class dance given in several years. The decorations, features, music, programs, and all were held excellent and representative of an enormous amount of work on the part of the Prom committee, headed by Ed Winter.

"I consider the Junior Week-end program a success from all angles," was the comment of Joe McKeown, general chairman of the affair. "Every member of the directorate cooperated remarkably well on their individual function and the weather was ideal for all events. The students showed their appreciation by their splendid attendance at everything."

H. R. Taylor To Speak At Corvallis Saturday

H .R. Taylor, assistant professor of psychology, will be in Corvallis Saturday to speak before the class in home economics at O. S. C.

Vigor of Interpretation and Skill Mark Concert of Mrs. Thacher

By NAOMI M. GRANT

Dramatic intensity and technical skill were combined in the program of Mrs. Jane Thacher, pianist, which was presented last evening in the school of music auditorium and which will be given again at Cornell University, New York, early next month.

A certain naive and appropriate simplicity characterized the interpretation of Scarlatti's "Pastorale" and Couperin's "Butterflies." The third number of the first group, "Rigaudon" by Raff, with its marked accents descriptive of the vigorous swing of a dance popular in the days of Louis XIII ended in the free time and lagging legato of weary feet.

Two numbers that were outstanding in the freedom of interpretation were "The White Peacock" of Charles Griffes and Liszt's "Nightingale." The softness of tone in the introduction to the latter number was intriguing, while the melody itself was characterized by a variety of effects. To the natural interest in the modern harmony of "The White Peacock" was added a certain pompous deliberation of rhythm and movement that gave the number a descriptive merit.

For the "Funerailles" of Liszt, Mrs. Thacher gave two possible sources of inspiration, the death of Chopin or the death of the patriot heroes of Poland. Its tragic grandeur was carried throughout her interpretation of the first and last movements and relieved by the calmness of the intermediate passage. The dynamic control in the rapid parts of the bass and the intensity of climatic development made this number one of the most striking on the program.

The elusive quality of Debussy's "Reflections in the Water" was brought out by contrast in the chords and single tones, the subdued sparkle of the runs and the clarity of melody snatches that were awaited with interest.

The most contrast was shown in Chopin's "Scherzo in C Sharp Minor." From the lightness of descending runs, phrases were closed by the deliberate and heavy chords of the bass. The vigor of the active passage and the abrupt brilliance of the finale were encored by the audience. The left hand melody of The Chopin "Nocturne" in its dramatic achievement, and the perfection of its embellishments was of singular merit.
