practical, that it was born when the school was small and that men did not necessarily have to be cross country timber to make the rounds. Today the school is so large and the itinerary so long that casualties are liable to result if the function continues. Those who favor it make many claims among which the most important is that it serves to democratize and in general make the campus better acquainted with itself. Both are good arguments and are by no means the only ones.

Again there were many names, this time of the business men, and farmers. Several were quoted on various questions. I could imagine how gratifying it must be to those men to see the words they had spoken printed so that everyone could read them.

I glanced through the paper again, rapidly analyzing each of the six pages. The conclusion that I drew therefrom was simple-names should form the basis for the news policy of the country weekly.

Plant Collection Is Housed in Friendly

The Herbarium, which for years has been hidden in the recesses of Deady Hall, is to be moved into Friendly hall this week, according to L. F. Henderson, curator, on account of lack of space and accommodations at the present location.

The Herbarium, a collection of dried plants, is stored in 13 large steel cases, and a number of wooden ones. It is a very large and valuable collection and the moving of it will be a long process, necessitating great care.

Two rooms at Friendly hall are being prepared to receive the collection.

One cave was exceedingly dangerous with its tight passages, etc. I spent three hours in this cavity, groping blindly with a "dead" flashlight and a severed guiding string.

To cut my story short, I was finally rescued by a searching party after a terrible experience. It was a wonderful feeling as I sat at the mouth of the cavern telling my friends that I would cavern telling my friends that I would not go back in there for love nor money. I meant it—until I reached for my can of Edgeworth. It was gone, and I recalled dropping something during the excitement in the cave.

It is queer what a man will do when his favorite tobacco is concerned. I realized that without my tobacco it would be as bad as being lost in the cavity-so I crawled back. It was a grand and glorious feeling as my hand came in contact with the Aristocrat of Tobacco.

Yours very truly,
