

Six Professors Serve Careers As Clergymen

Faculty Men Ex-heads of Four Church Groups In Various Locations

Pulpit Oratory Replaced By Classroom Lectures

Six members of the University of Oregon faculty became teachers after having had experience as ministers of the gospel. The six are: Dr. Andrew Fish, assistant professor of history; Victor P. Morris, assistant professor of economics; Dr. Philip A. Parsons, dean of the school of social work and professor of applied sociology; Harold S. Tuttle, assistant professor of education; Dr. Louis Aubrey Wood, assistant professor of economics, and Leavitt O. Wright, assistant professor of romance languages.

Dr. Fish, a native of England, began preaching in the Methodist church before coming to the United States. After coming to this country he secured a bachelor of divinity degree from the Pacific Unitarian school in 1917. He served as pastor of the Unitarian church in Eugene for four years, at the same time carrying on studies in the University of Oregon. After gaining his bachelor of arts degree in 1920, he became a graduate assistant in history, receiving the master's degree in 1921. From Oregon he went to Clark university for further advanced work, receiving his Ph. D. in 1923. Dr. Fish returned to Oregon in 1923. His courses are popular because of the broad scholarship and liberal mindedness he brings to bear on all questions.

In Dad's Footsteps

Victor P. Morris, of the economics department, patterned after his father in combining both teaching and preaching, which he continues to do. Mr. Morris is a graduate of the University of Oregon with the class of 1915. He was awarded the master of arts degree from Oregon in 1920 and then did graduate work at Columbia university from 1920-22. Prior to becoming a member of the Oregon faculty in 1926, Mr. Morris taught at Grinnell college, Iowa, 1922-24, and at Oregon Agricultural college, 1924-26. He supplied pulpits of the Christian church while attending the University and teaching in secondary schools, and while at Columbia, Mr. Morris was pastor of the Christian church at Upper Troy, New York. At present he is serving as pastor of the Christian church at Monmouth, Oregon.

Harold S. Tuttle is an active member of the Congregational church and frequently takes the pulpit of the Central church here when the regular pastor is absent. Mr. Tuttle holds a B. D. degree from the Pacific School of Religion and was a member of the faculty at Pacific university engaged in promoting religious education before coming to Oregon in 1926.

On Two Studies

Dr. Parsons combined graduate study and preaching between his graduation from Christian university, Missouri, in 1904, and becoming a member of the Syracuse faculty in 1909. The years 1904-1906 were spent in study at the Union Theological seminary. In 1909, he went to Columbia for work in sociology and anthropology, receiving his doctor of philosophy degree. Social work has occupied his major interests, especially in connection with penal institutions, public health, and Red Cross work. Dr. Parsons has been a member of the Oregon faculty since 1920.

Another preacher-economist on the Oregon faculty is Dr. Louis Aubrey Wood, now on leave of absence to do research work at Yale on the employment of labor by large railroad corporations. Dr. Wood is a Canadian by birth, with a bachelor of arts degree from Toronto in 1905 and a bachelor of divinity from the Montreal Presbyterian college in 1908. After preaching for a short while, he found a greater interest in economics and began to specialize in a study of labor problems and agrarian movements. "The Farmers Movement in Canada," written by Dr. Wood, is said by economists to be one of the best works in that field of economics. Professor Wood received his Ph. D. from Heidelberg in 1911. He taught at Robertson college, Alberta, in 1912-1913, and at the University of Western Ontario from 1914-1923.

Taught in Mexico

Dr. Leavitt O. Wright, of the romance languages department, was director of del Colegio Internacional, Congregational mission school at Guadalajara, Mexico, 1918-1921, after attending Harvard, with an A. B. in 1914, and receiving the bachelor of divinity degree from the Union Theological seminary in 1917. Dr. Wright was born in Mexico and educated at a mission school conducted there by his parents. Since leaving Mexico, he engaged in graduate work at Columbia and California, receiving a Ph. D. from the latter in 1928. Dr. Wright taught for a period at Pomona college before coming to Oregon in 1926.

'Book a Month' Club May Be Formed Here Y.M.C.A. Planners Say

Plans are being made by the local Y. M. C. A. to form a Religious Book a Month club on the campus. A meeting is expected to be held next week for the purpose of discussing and organizing the club, according to Henry W. Davis, advisor of the Y. M. C. A.

The Religious Book club which is now international in scope, was organized in November, 1927, as a "movement for the development of religious reading." The club has grown rapidly from a membership of 980 on last December 1, to an enrollment of 6839 on July 1, 1928. Members of the club are located in every state in the Union, in Canada, Alaska, Hawaii, Panama, Porto Rico, Cuba and 32 foreign countries, notable examples of which are: England, Scotland, Wales, France, Switzerland, Poland, China, Japan and India.

Subscribers in Many Lands
Subscribers in these countries consist chiefly of missionaries, teachers, and Y. M. C. A. workers.

The Religious Book club was founded for the purpose of sending each month to its members the best book in the religious field. The book chosen for August was "Attitudes Toward Other Religious Faiths," by Daniel Johnson Fleming.

Mr. Henry W. Davis, advisor of the Y. M. C. A., said that the books chosen each month were not picked solely for their religious worth but also for their moral and ethical content.

Prominent Men Make Selections

The editorial committee which selects the books each month is composed of some of the most renowned ministers in the United States. The committee consists of: Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, bishop of the diocese of western New York in the Episcopal church; Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick of the Park Avenue Baptist church, New York; Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal church, and Miss Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke college. Rev. Samuel McCrea Cavert is editor and secretary of the organization.

M. H. Douglas, librarian of the University, has promised to get the religious book each month and keep it at the library for the convenience of the members of the club. Any students or faculty members who desire to know more about the club may see Mr. Davis.

Rent Shelf Has Late Books for Long Evenings

Outstanding Novels, Short Stories and Biographies Among Fall Releases

Many of the new fall releases of the University rent shelf at the main library waiting to afford interesting reading these wet, rainy evenings. Mrs. Mabel McClain, head of the circulation library, promises an enlargement soon.

"The Children," Edith Wharton's latest, a commentary on American family life and its accompanying evil, divorce, is widely discussed, and considered another one of Mrs. Wharton's revealing novels. "Bambly," a translation from the German, by Felix Salten, portrays the birth and growth of a fawn in the German forests. It does not reach the fantastic, but stays close to the verdure of Germanic nature.

'A Mirror For Witches'

Perhaps one of the most intriguing of the shelf's offerings is "A Mirror For Witches," by Esther Forbes. Inside its wood-cut cover is the life and machination of Doll Billy who preferred a demon to a mortal lover, and the "righteous and awful judgment that befell her, destroying her corporeal body and immortal soul."

The Literary Guild of America has chosen for its October novel, "Point Counter Point," by the interesting young writer of the British Isles, Aldous Huxley, grandson of the scientist, Thomas Huxley. It is an amazing panorama of contemporary London life, and its scientific presentation is softened with a firm stand against the trivial and sordid. "The Happy Mountain," by Maristhan Chapman, another Guild child, is being mentioned by some for the Pulitzer prize novel. Mrs. Chapman has understandingly given us the Tennessee folk in their own peculiar circumstance. It is beautiful and authentic.

D. H. Lawrence has a collection of his short stories in a new edition. "The Woman Who Rode Away," and other stories are good reading for short hours.

Non-fiction Displayed

Non-fiction includes a well developed biography of "Frances Villon," by Wyndham Lewis; "Goethe," by Emil Ludwig; and "Peter Stuyvesant," by Hendrik Van Loon. These follow the lines of the new idea of biography, interesting and humanized.

Two books that Mrs. McClain recommends highly and which, though they have been on the shelves for some time, have not been given much notice are "The Life and Letters of Joseph Conrad," collected into two volumes, and "The Letters of Gertrude Bell," which detail amazing adventures in Arabia and other eastern lands.

Pathos Note Added To Dads' Day When Widow Writes Hall

The annual "Dads' Day" at the University of Oregon last week-end brought joy to hundreds of fathers and their boys and girls, but it had its note of pathos as well. This came this week in the form of a letter to Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the University, from a mother who said that she now had one child here and two more coming next year, but that their father had passed away a short time ago.

In the letter the mother asked Dr. Hall to find a "Dad" next year who would adopt her three children for "Dads' Day," and it stated that she would be glad to buy them all tickets for the banquet. Like a real mother, too, she thought of other boys and girls here who could not participate in the event, and suggested that her plan be carried out to include others who had no fathers to accompany them during the day.

The letter will be turned over to the Dads' Day committee, and it is hoped that some plan along the line suggested may be worked out for next year.

... with their feet on the ground

MEN of vision, yes. But don't overlook the fact that those old Roman road builders and empire builders kept their feet firmly fixed on the ground. They faced the facts squarely. They were demons for detail. They were the world's first great organizers.

Pioneering in the telephone industry is like that. It is a work of vision and of leadership into new fields. But back of it all must be the ability to organize men, money, material and machines.

The telephone executive must coordinate his machine before he can run it. He must understand the possibilities in his organization before he can lead it. That done, his opportunity is empire-wide, vision-broad and ambition-deep.
