

Dave Mason Is Injured In Late Practice

Star Halfback Fractures Ankle in Practice With Freshman Grid Team

Coach Must Rebuild Backfield Combination

Team Leaves in Morning For Willamette Game

Gloom has replaced the buoyant spirit of the Oregon football team.

John J. McEwan was yesterday rejoicing the fact that his Webfoot team was uninjured after the tough battle with Stanford last Saturday.

Now the Oregon mentor is gloomily wondering who will fill Mason's shoes.

Yesterday's scrimmage was not a strenuous one, and it was first thought that Mason's hurt was only a slight sprain.

X-rays later revealed the fracture.

New Combination Necessary

Oregon has plenty of backfield reserves, but none as good as Mason.

McEwan is planning to do considerable shifting until he can find a set of backs as nearly equal as possible to the original one.

Bob Robinson, who led the Oregon running attack against the Cardinals, may be moved over to half permanently.

Art Ord and Cecil Gabriel are other halfbacks likely to take Mason's place.

Russian Choir Will Entertain Monday Night

Popular Artists Return for Second Engagement on Campus of University

Singers To Appear in McArthur Court, 8:15

Critics Praise Members of Symphony Choir Group

Again Eugene will welcome the twenty-two singers of the Russian Symphonic Choir, and with even greater enthusiasm than two years ago.

Five years ago they came to New York for their first appearance in the United States and were received with utter amazement from the music critics who claimed never to have heard anything like them; but, after wagging their heads together, the critics proclaimed the Choir "wonderful," and the United States has now so embroidered that first praise that even the mention of the Choir brings thrills to music lovers.

Those who have heard Basile Kibalechich's Russian Symphonic Choir, say that it is like no other choir they ever heard.

Basile Kibalechich's able leadership, perhaps explains this.

Leader Is Famous

Mr. Kibalechich's life shows some reason for his remarkable success.

In 1906 he headed Russia's most famous choral organization, the Archangelsky Choir of Petrograd, now rechristened into Leningrad.

Since then he has toured Russia as a choral director and has led the choir of the Russian Cathedral of Geneva, as well as the choir of the Russian Cathedral in Paris, and has appeared throughout Europe as a Choral director.

He took the symphony orchestra as his model for his own choir and has given each individual voice the same value as each instrument has in the orchestra.

The effect has been mighty.

Frosh Honored At Big Assembly Held Yesterday

President and Deans Lead New Students to Section Reserved at McArthur

With the greatest dignity possible the freshmen of the University formed a procession just outside the doors of McArthur court yesterday morning, and led by President Arnold Bennett Hall and the deans of the school who were clad in full academic regalia, they solemnly marched to their places.

All freshmen were there—or at least enough to fill the whole of the center section of seats which was reserved in their honor.

Joe McKeown, president of the A. S. U. O., was the first person to greet the freshmen.

After welcoming them on behalf of the old students he asked them to keep up the traditions, the scholastic standards, and the spirit of Oregon.

The importance of securing other new students for the University was emphasized.

The new students were officially welcomed to Eugene by Frank Jenkins, president of the Eugene chamber of commerce.

True hospitality is something different than mere words, he explained, and added that Eugene wanted to display that real hospitality.

The purpose of the chamber of commerce was to build a real city here, he explained, and added that the only way to do that was to make the state grow.

This must be done by the citizens of Oregon, he went on, and as the young people were future citizens here he officially welcomed them.

Phi Sigma Kappa Awarded Plaque

Heads Fraternity List In Scholastic Rating

Phi Sigma Kappa, national social fraternity for men, was awarded the Sigma Nu plaque for having attained the highest scholastic average of any fraternity on the Oregon campus during the year 1927-28.

The plaque was awarded by the Sigma Nu alumni association of Portland and is given this year for the first time. It consists of a silver block, oblong in shape, and mounted on a fumed oak board.

In winning the honor, Phi Sigma Kappa took first place among the men's organizations last fall term, second place for the winter term, and second for the spring term.

Frosh Assured Protection by Senior 'Cops'

Class of 1932 Must Clean Bench Before Sports Affair at Hayward Field

Excitement is running high on the campus, especially among the humble freshmen, as the day fast approaches for the annual frosh parade and other festivities connected with the initiation ceremonies.

Members of the senior class through their class officers have assured the frosh that the "cops" will be on hand to see that the freshmen are not treated in any too brutal manner.

The senior police force will also attempt to prevent unappointed paddlers from making their way into the ranks of the chosen 31 who have been named to do all the paddling along with the varsity lettermen.

Frances Hill, president of the sophomore class, who was slated to direct the entire affair, will journey to Salem Saturday morning with the football team to play Willamette university, and thus will not be able to act as general chairman of the parade.

Chet Floyd, sophomore man on the student council, will substitute for Hill.

All freshmen must meet on Kincaid field back of Condon hall at 8 o'clock Saturday morning to form the line of march, and receive whatever instructions are necessary.

The line will then march down to Skinner's butte where the dimes will be collected by Clarence Bates and his aids.

The first-year men will then proceed up the hill to paint the "O." After a short slide down the butte, the boys will tramp their way back up to Villard hall where the frosh will one by one kiss the Oregon seal.

Then, the gang will proceed to the senior bench where the lowly frosh must repeat for violation of a sacred tradition when the bench was marred with a splash of green paint spelling "1932."

The freshman class must have that bench completely washed up on Saturday morning," declared Francis McKenna, president of the senior class, "and we advise the freshman class to bring plenty of kerosene with which to clean off the dirty numerals."

Nurse at Infirmary Is Ill; One Student Undergoes Operation

One can hardly blame a mere student for falling sick and being removed to the infirmary, when a nurse, a head nurse at that, fortified as she is with medicines, catches a cold and is put to bed in her own hospital. That is exactly what has happened to Miss M. L. Callahan, the head nurse at the infirmary.

Edwin Chase, senior, who was informed because of appendicitis, was removed to the Pacific Christian hospital at a late hour last night, where Dr. Hurly operated successfully.

At present, seven occupy beds in the infirmary. They are: William Prendergast, third year law; Fred Stanley, senior in economics; Ralph Fisher, senior in prelaw; Elmer Hauke, Frank Walton, Miriam McGowan, and Hensonia Campen, all freshmen.

Dr. Wm. McGovern, Famous Explorer, To Speak In Villard Hall October 18

Stories of travels through the dark heart of South America where white men are practically unknown, of canoe journeys along treacherous rivers whose bend might hide an ambush, of days spent in Indian villages learning the strange customs and beliefs of the natives, of digging in the nameless ruins of lost pre-Inca cities whose builders were forgotten before Pizarro sailed from Spain—these are just a few of the tales which can be told by Dr. Wm. M. McGovern, explorer, author, and lecturer, who is to speak here on the afternoon of October 18, at 8 o'clock in Villard hall.

Although a British subject, he is a native American. He was born in New York and his mother is a native of Georgia. Dr. McGovern received his Ph. D. from Oxford. He has been about all over the world, but his most important expedition, that of the South American trip was made in 1922, when he went to Lhasa in disguise. And with it all he is barely 35 years old.

Tales of Paul Bunyan Reissued by Company

"Paul Bunyan Comes West," a book written in 1921 under the direction of Ida Virginia Turney, then an instructor in the English department here, and printed at the university press under the direction of Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism, will be reissued, according to word received by H. H. Douglas, librarian, from the Houghton Mifflin company in Boston.

The stories in this 34-page book Miss Turney's classes in English. They are western adaptations of the stories of Paul Bunyan, put into the mouth of a survivor of the "fairly" days in the Willamette valley.

The illustrations are from linoleum blocks made by students in the school of architecture and allied arts, under the direction of Helen N. Rhodes.

The book was reissued October 11 and will be sold for $1.25 a copy.

University To Help

"The purpose of the University is to help you with your problems and equip you with intellectual power," he said. It should also give one a clearer understanding of society and politics, he explained.

The University of Oregon's four great traditions of obeying the United States' laws, of being democratic, following the rules of chivalry, and getting the Oregon spirit were explained to the students by President Hall and their support in carrying them out asked.

Dean John Straub presided over the meeting. Roy Bryson, of the school of music faculty, accompanied by John Stark Evans, sang Kipling's "Boots" and Ireland's "Sea Birds."

Immediately after the assembly a panoramic picture of the student body was taken in front of the Woman's building.
