World Confronted By Knotty Problem

Progress! That golden word! The United States is making progress, Europe is making progress, Ford is making progress, Herbert Hoover is making progress, Everybody is making progress (with the possible exception of Al Smith.)

What will we do with all this progress? Where will we put it? All the dynamic energy of the world is combined in the task of making progress and nobody gives a thought to its disposition.

Alas, it is not about time we had another progressive party?—L. H.

Puritan Collegians No 'Angels' Either

College students of today have nothing on their Puritan exemplars.

Brawls, hazing, wrangles with the faculty, extreme dress, excess smoking, the reading of bad books, the holding of "senseless" and disorderly commencements, religious negligence, free thinking, waywardness,—all such portentous out-breakings and disrespectful conduct, which, we are told, mark the spirit of the 20th century collegiate, played as apparently large a part in the lives of the college students 300 years ago.

Dr. Henry W. Lawrence, professor of history, Connecticut college, has revealed these facts after gathering material from authentic sources such as contemporary church records, diaries, and histories.

"We commonly think of the American college man of the 17th and 18th centuries as so incurably addicted to studious piety that he found little time for play and none for dissipation," Lawrence says. "It is hard to reconcile with this view such an incident as the following—recorded by one Ezra Clapp, in 1738.

"Last night," this earnest Yale student has recorded, "some of the freshmen got six quarts of Rhum and about two payls fool of Sydar and about eight pounds of sugar and mad it in to Samson, and evited every scholer in college into Churtis is room and we mad such prodigious Rought that we raised the Tutor, and he ordered us all to our rooms and some went and some taried and they gathered a gain and went up to old father Mousher dore and drumed against the dore and yeled and screamed so that a body would have thought they were killing dogs there . . ."

Students of Harvard at an earlier date took a strong dislike to the president of the time, which was Harvard's third, and forced him to resign by turning "cud-weeds," as the Rev. Mather writes in his diary, and, by violating the fifth Commandment, "set themselves to travestie whatever he did or said."

Petting was quite as much, if not more, of a problem 300 years ago than now, although it did not play as large a part in the college boy's life, there being no co-eds and few girls' schools in college vicinities. But despite the immediate absence of the fairer sex, the college fop abounded, to such an extent, in fact, that laws had to be made to regulate the clothing worn.

For instance, in 1754 the undergraduates of Harvard college were forbidden to wear silk "nightgowns." These were a sort of dressing gown of silk or damask, "suitable for printers and importers, perhaps, but too luxurious for college students," for "plain thinking and high living was not to be tolerated by day or night, it might seem."

In Campus History That Tell How The Collegians Used to Act.

Fifteen Years Ago

From Oregon Emerald, November 8, 1913

University women, under the supervision of Doctor Stuart and a swimming instructor, will have the use of the new tank in the men's gym on Mondays.

The varsity yell leader has announced that underclassmen only will be allowed to wear rosters' caps at the game with O. A. C. today.

The Oregon Citizens' Educational league plans to raise a $1,000,000 endowment fund for the university from individual contributions.

Twenty-five Years Ago

From Oregon Weekly, November 9, 1903

The time has arrived for seniors to consider the question of a suitable class pin. Several designs have been suggested and one of these will be approved at the next class meeting.

Last year Albany college tied with Oregon for the intercollegiate football championship of the state and won the track championship, but lost this season's first football game to Oregon, 22 to 0.

A number of students surprised a certain popular Oregon co-ed at her home Tuesday evening on the occasion of her birthday, and spent the evening with cards and music.

...but a mosquito blocked the way

THE Panama Canal diggers had engineering brains and money aplenty. But they were blocked by the malaria and yellow-fever bearing mosquitoes, which killed men by thousands.

Then Gorgas stamped out the mosquito. The fever was conquered. The Canal was completed.

The importance of little things is recognized in the telephone industry too.

Effective service to the public is possible only when every step from purchase of raw material to the operator's "Number, please" has been cared for.

This is work for men who can sense the relations between seemingly unrelated factors, men with the vision to see a possible mountain-barrier in a mole-hill—and with the resourcefulness to surmount it.

DUCK SOUP

Send in your original contributions for this column sometime before Friday noon and maybe you will be the lucky person to get two tickets to the McDonald. We like both the contributions that have come in so far.

(From Wed. Register)
In this precinct the judge, after administering the oath, added each time that, "an unmarried man's residence is where he sleeps according to law."

Is there a law telling people where they can sleep?

Mary plays a little golf,
Her game is very bad;
So is what our Mary said
One day when she got mad.

Our new Dean of Men, Hugh Biggs, says it is a sin to brag. But, we say, who ever saw a guy with a big fish sneaking up an alley?

MARY K. JOHNSON was seen on the campus recently, where she plans to attend a few classes before returning to her (more or less) permanent home in Portland.

FROSH BEN DOVER WONDERS WHERE THEY GET ALL THE GARTERS THEY USE IN THESE "SNAP" COURSES ON THE CAMPUS.

We hear the knives over at the Sigma Pi Tau shanty are awfully dull. Looks as though the boys were in for a long whet spell.

ONE CLOSING THOUGHT, IF CONTRIBUTORS TO DUCK WOULD PLEASE SIGN THEIR NAMES IT WOULD MAKE AWARDING OF PRIZES CONSIDERABLY EASIER.

To the editor:
By the way, what has become of the "Student Union?" We voted on ourselves, more or less willingly, a $15 a year "tax to the tune of "A Student Union"—let's see—was it '28—no, impossible, it must have been '25. One of the chief benefits of being a graduate student is an exemption from this and other taxes. But how about the poor frosh who are paying their $15 a year? We voted the tax on them—yes, even us who are graduate students and who are now exempt. Don't we owe even an explanation to the frosh?
GRADUATE.

The Ambler

YESTERDAY WE SAW:
STUART MACDONALD downing java and two sinkers—AL WINGARD reading "Duck Soup"—FRANCES WHITE sitting next to a handsome boy in a booth—SAM VAN VACTOR headed straight for the library—MARY GOLDSMITH erasing her neck—ANTON PETERSON gnawing an innocent finger—VERNA MAY LINNEBERG mailing a letter—ARTHUR TARLOW having words with ROWEN GALE—DOROTHY CREATH smacking sweetly.

"Making a blindfold test is like conducting a movie tryout. But in this competition I found my star 'right off the reel.' I named OLD GOLD for the lead part the moment I tasted its thrilling flavor and its soothing gentleness to the tongue and throat."

Dick Barthelmess

RICHARD BARTHELMESS...endured to movie-gone the world over for his superb acting in such First National pictures as, "The Patent Leather Kid," "The Noose" and "Out of the Ruins."

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant

MR. BARTHELMESS was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing his taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked: "Which one do you like best?"

Why you can pick them

Three types of leaves grow on the tobacco plant . . . coarse top-leaves, irritating to the throat . . . withered ground-leaves, without taste or aroma . . . and the heart-leaves, rich in cool and fragrant smoking qualities. Only the heart-leaves are used in OLD GOLDS.
