

Varsity Plays Frosh Teams In Hectic Tilt

Reinhart's First Year Men Tossed in Muddy Water By McEwan's Regulars

Wet Pigskin Causes Players to Fumble

O. S. C. To Have Strong Encounter With Oregon

Coach McEwan had his Oregon varsity at work again last night on Hayward field in the toughest kind of scrimmage with the frosh gridders. Playing in a quagmire of mud and water, the two aggregations went through a long practice session to continue preparations for the Oregon State varsity and Rook elevens.

The whole varsity squad took turns tugging with Billy Reinhart's first year team. As soon as McEwan would put one set of men through its paces he would call another to the scene of action and play would resume with scarcely a stop for rest.

Practice Intensive

The practice lasted until darkness made it almost impossible to see where the plays were going and even the ghost ball which has become a regular feature of the workouts did not aid greatly. There was not a big difference between the luminous oval and the ordinary pigskin because the mud soon covered the painted ball so that its advantages were cut down.

The practice yesterday was one of the few that the Webfoots have played in the rain this year. The dry season which has marked the season so far has made a big impression in the playing of both teams and the wet ball made it hard for the men to work.

Fumbles Frequent

While Oregon teams in the past have not been greatly bothered by a slippery pigskin, it was an entirely different story last night. Fumbles by both the varsity and frosh were very frequent and many times the progress toward the opposite goal line was interrupted when some back was unable to hang on to the ball.

Evidences of strength were present in the yearlings play. After many weeks of drill under the watchful eyes of Spike Leslie and Reinhart, the frosh work up as a smooth and powerful grid machine.

Even without the services of Jim DeMers, heavy line plunger, the frosh backs tore off big gains time and again through the varsity line. In fact, the big fullback who has been carrying the ball a lot on power plays so far this year, was not even missed when it came time for Reinhart's men to open up on the offensive.

The rejuvenated backfield tore into the varsity cohorts for lengthy gains many times during the course of the evening and even carried the fight to the varsity at some stages of the game.

McEwan followed his men closely last night through all of their plays and spared no efforts to polish up his attack for the coming contest with the Beavers. Several regulars got their share of fine points of the game last night after pulling bobbles on some of the plays.

All of the game was not in the favor of the frosh by a big margin. After the varsity men once got under way the ball was kept in frosh territory most of the time. Even on the wet field the Webfoot backs displayed a lot of clever broken field running once they got out in the open. Had it not been for so many fumbles the team would

Christensen and Colbert, Holders of Varsity Tackle Berths This Year

George Christensen and Austin Colbert are the pair of sophomore tackles who have been important factors in the Oregon line play this season. Both players were members of the frosh eleven last year, and have had high school experience in the tackle positions.

Standing six feet two inches in height, George Christensen weighs 217 pounds. He is a three year high school letterman, playing first for Weatherwax high of Aberdeen, Washington, and later for Pendleton high. He was coached in both schools by Homer C. Taylor, transferring schools with the coach. George played at tackle on both high school teams, as well as with the frosh last year. He is 18 years old, and a major in the school of architecture, intending to continue in that line of work after his graduation.

Unique Placards Homecoming Plan

Celebration Decorations Will Have Originality

Campus and field decorations for Homecoming will be unlike any used before in as far as it is possible for the decorations committee to achieve something unique, said Joe Holaday, general chairman for decorations.

Many ideas have been advanced by sub-committee composed of Brad Collins, Clarence Lilberg, Glen Gardner, and Nels Nelson. Several motifs have been definitely decided upon for use in decorating the campus, the exact nature to be kept a secret for the time being. The use of novel placards bearing the Homecoming slogan is planned as part of the street decorations and there is a strong possibility that a monumental arch will be thrown across the street in front of the Administration building, said Holaday.

Kenton Hamaker, chairman of features, has an idea, which if developed, promises to provide a game feature which will give the Homecoming crowd a real thrill. Hamaker has also enjoined strict secrecy as to the nature of the stunt.

Roy Herndon, general chairman for Homecoming, has called a meeting of the directorate for noon at the College Side Inn, at which time it is expected that definite plans for all branches of Homecoming activities will be made known.

Registrar Lists Students Eligible For Honors Roll

Pallett Urges Instructors To Hand in Any Others For Action of Council

A list of students, most of them juniors, who are eligible to work for honors this year, whose averages were not calculated last year, has been made under the direction of Earl M. Pallett, registrar. Mr. Pallett urges instructors wishing to hand in names of students who do not appear on this list to present them to the honor's council for consideration.

Rumor Spreads That Oregon Men May Raid O. S. C. Campus Tonight

Anderson, McKeown Ask Students To Cancel Date

Rumor has been rapidly spreading over the campus that preparations are being made for another annual hectic raiding of the Oregon State college campus by a large group of University of Oregon men tonight, according to Arthur Anderson, vice-president, and Joe McKeown, president of the A. S. U. O. Efforts are being made to prevent any such action by the officials of the two institutions and in the latest report the student officers had made standing promises to check any such endeavors.

The O. S. C. student body president and vice-president assured Art Anderson and Joe McKeown of Oregon that they would do everything possible to prevent any destruction of property, painting, and undue peregrinations on the university campus by their students.

New Uniforms Will Be Issued To R.O.T.C. Soon

'Slacks' Will Replace Boots And Breeches; Juniors To Keep Former Style

Uniforms will be issued to R. O. T. C. students in the near future, is the information released by Major Barker, head of the University of Oregon military science department.

The new trousers, or "slacks" as they are called, have the appearance of regular everyday trousers. The advantage for the students in wearing them instead of the boots and breeches of former days, lies in the fact that they can change clothes faster without having the boots to lace or unlace.

Shipping receipts have been received for the new trousers, stated the major, and it is expected that a supply of sufficient size to outfit the entire enrollment will be received soon.

There has been some talk on the campus, that the R. O. T. C. was going to go without uniforms this term. "This is," said Major Barker, "quite untrue."

It is true that considerable delay has been experienced in having the order filled, he said, but it is only a matter of days now until the new trousers will be ready for distribution.

The junior officers in the R. O. T. C. unit, composed of juniors and seniors, have elected to continue the custom of wearing the boots and breeches.

"They like the shiny boots," smiled the major, "and take pride in their appearance. I am glad of it, for I have noticed that a man who is not proud of his personal appearance seldom makes a good soldier."

Co-op Exhibits Books At University High

Next week is national Book Week, and in observance of it, the University Co-op is exhibiting books, both old and new, in the library of the University high school, according to Marion McClain, manager.

The exhibit consists of about 50 books from the "High Hat" library, and is for the purpose of stimulating interest in good literature among the students. Those chosen were thought to be of special interest to high school students.

Perhaps the most important of these is an edition of "Phillip the King," by John Masefield, illustrated by Laurence Irving. It has been photographed by both the author and the illustrator, and the edition was limited to 750 copies.

Another illustrated and signed edition which is also on display is "The Graphic Bible," by Lewis Browne, a Portland man. This book is a history of the Jewish people and has been very popular.

Frosh Women Guests At Kwama Formal Tea

Members of Kwama, sophomore women's honorary, entertained several hundred freshmen women yesterday afternoon at a formal tea in Alumni hall. This is an annual affair given toward the first of the year to afford an opportunity to get acquainted with the first year students.

Violin selections were given by Anna Louise Delph, and Helen Williams gave several piano solos. Those in the receiving line were Edith Dodge, president of the Women's League; Helen Webster, secretary of the student body; Miss Hazel Prutsman, dean of women; Kathryn Langenberg, and Helen Peters.

Social Work Discussed By Henry Knight

National Secretary Gives Students Review of Task Carried Out in Country

"The trend of modern social work is toward a scientific fact basis, toward the basing of the understanding of social problems, and the methods of dealing with them on an investigation of the causes that bring about the problems," said Howard R. Knight, secretary of the National Conference of Social Workers, speaking before the Oregon students at assembly yesterday morning on the subject "Modern Trends in Social Work."

There are five important trends in social work of today as contrasted with that of some years ago, Mr. Knight said. These are: The trend toward a scientific understanding; the trend towards co-operation or centralization in community work; the trend towards professionalism among social workers; the trend towards the actual control of social problems; and the trend toward public support of social work.

Soccer Squad Meets Portland College Today

Physical Education Majors Ready To Tackle Reed Team This Afternoon

Nineteen physical education majors at the University of Oregon will go to Portland today to meet the Reed college soccer team at 4:00 o'clock. This is the first soccer football team to represent Oregon.

Edward E. Abercrombie, who is in charge of the team, has organized the majors of the physical education department primarily to give them actual training in this sport to aid them in teaching and coaching after graduation. Some unusually good material has been uncovered, according to the coach.

Bill Hayward, veteran track coach, has recommended soccer to his track candidates as an excellent means of conditioning. Several of the cinder stars have taken advantage of the training opportunity. The game with Reed will be less than the regular time, and substitution will be permitted to give all the men the experience.

The first team includes: Cliff Horner, Norville May, John Anderson, Earl Alexander, Hubert Allen, Howard Lowry, William Baker, Loyd McGee, Francis Sullivan, Henry Patton, Clyde Kershner. Substitutes: Gilbert Sprague, Lowell Nobley, Harry Polcar, Fred Sears, Firmin Fallour, Robert Knox, Lloyd Boggs, Frank Smith.

Manager of Co-op Reveals Talent On Library Book Covers

When Marion McClain, manager of the university Co-op, drew a picture of a high English hat, little did he realize that it would come out in print.

The "High Hat" library has purchased new covers for their rent books which have this very excellent drawing printed on their backs. The lettering above and below the cut was done by another budding artist, Bob Warner, librarian.

The covers are made of very durable paper and are to be used for preserving the general appearance of all rent books.

E. H. Ford To Address Portland Journalists

E. H. Ford, professor in the journalism school, will speak before the Portland association of trade and class journalists next Tuesday, basing his talk on experience in trade journalism in New York and other Eastern states. Harris Ellsworth, who in addition to being field manager of the state editorial association and a member of the journalism faculty here, is field manager of the trade journalist association, will accompany Mr. Ford to Portland Tuesday.

Faculty Clog Dance Proves Progressive

According to Miss Ernestine Troemel, the faculty clogging class is one of the most apt and progressive in the whole university. They have just completed the Arkansas Traveler and are about to start on the Buck and Wing clog.

Students Will Go To Conference This Week-end

Y. M. and Y. W. Joint Meet Planned; Dr. Bossing Will Lead Discussion

Twenty-seven members will represent the University of Oregon at the joint Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. C. A. conference which is to be held this week-end at Newport. A number of faculty members will accompany the party.

Women who will represent the Y. W. include: Margaret Edmundo, Leone Ely, Elsie May Cimino, Margaret Knapp, Nedra Vernon, Betty Hughes, Gwendolyn Shepard, Mildred Wharton, Christine Holt, Nellie Franklin, Margaret Schaefer, Louise Huls, Lois Tuttle and Medora Servin.

The following Y. M. C. A. members will attend the conference: Alton Bristol, Glen Brown, John Scrivner, Frank Shimizu, Leonard Gee, Augusto Esperito, Wilbur Bushnell, Wilbur Sohm, Jack Rice, Gilbert Sprague, Fred Christensen, Ted Mueller and Don Campbell.

Some have not yet decided definitely but are expected to go according to Elsie May Cimino who is in charge of the conference.

Others who will make the trip include: Miss Fanny McCamant, Miss Ernestine Troemel, Dr. Clara Smertenko, Dr. and Mrs. Bossing, Rev. and Mrs. H. W. Davis and Miss Dorothy Thomas, secretary to the Y. W. C. A.

Saturday Dr. Bossing will lead the discussion on "What are the essentials of religion?"

Representatives from every college in Oregon will attend the meeting.

Members of Faculty To Attend Institute

Two members of the school of education faculty will attend the Polk county teachers' institute at Dallas this week. Harold S. Tuttle will speak on Thursday and Dean H. D. Sheldon Friday.

Flap Jack Queen Flips 208,000 Hot In Seven Years at Men's Dormitory

Flap jacks! Dozens of them, hundreds, thousands of them. To be correct, 208,000 hot cakes in seven years is the record of Mrs. Ida Patton, chief hot cake maker at the new men's dormitory.

If all these golden brown flap jacks were gathered together at one time, and laid edge to edge, there would be 17 miles of them. Enough to reach to Junction City and leave three miles over.

Piled in one big stack, said hot cakes would make a pile 4333 feet high. Enough of them to make eight piles as high as the Woolworth building, and a ninth pile as high as Deady hall.

After seven years of work at Friendly hall, Mrs. Patton starts her eighth at the new dormitory, where she hopes to bring her hot cake record up to the million mark. Every Sunday morning when the fellows come to breakfast hungry for a bite of those golden brown cakes, Mrs. Patton is in the kitchen slinging batter on the griddle, and the finished flap jacks off onto

Twelve Men Form Varsity Debate Squad

Tryouts Find Twenty-one Competing for Places; Seven Veterans Named

Speaker's Discussion On Federal Ownership

Hoover-Smith Campaign Arguments Find Use

Twenty-one men, representing the aspirants for the men's varsity debate squad, participated in the annual debate tryouts held yesterday afternoon in Villard hall. From this group the judges selected eight of the highest rated who with Ernest Jachetta, Paul Clark, Eugene Laird and Joseph McKeown, will form the men's debate squad for the ensuing season.

The four men just named are those of last year's team who elected to pass the tryouts and were selected by Debate Coach J. K. Horner to form part of the squad.

The men selected by the judges were Avery Thompson, Errol Sloan, Elsworth Plank, Stanley Bryan, Lawrence Morgan, Calvin Bryan, Leland Fryer, and Ralph Geyer. In addition to these Hal Paddock, Arthur Taylor and George Chery were named as alternates.

Water Resources Question

During the course of the afternoon the question, Resolved: that the nation's water resources should be government owned and operated, was attacked and defended many times with occasional reference to the Hoover-Smith campaign in which this question was an important issue.

Affirmative speakers advanced the arguments of government distribution of electricity and power, and cited the Boulder Dam project as an outstanding example of the success of government operation of the water resources. Another of the speakers gave information to the effect that the United States was wasting its coal supply and therefore the government should develop and operate power plants for the sole purpose of conserving this part of our resources.

Using the government corporation plan as outlined by Al Smith in his presidential campaign, one of the speakers of the affirmative maintained that it was the only system under which the United States could ever hope to overcome the great amount of graft and corruption that is so prevalent.

There seemed to be a slight divergence of opinion between them and the negative since the latter maintained that under government ownership there was no one ready to accept the responsibility and the
