

Chest Drive Workers Give Lunch at Dorm Campaign Contributions May Be Placed on Fees

The consolidated community chest drive of the university formally opened yesterday noon at the men's dorm, where a luncheon was given for about 50 of the workers. Printed forms were distributed to the organization representatives upon which to record pledges made to the chest, and pledges were also given to the workers for themselves. Response was instantaneous and very generous.

Bob Hynd and Joe Holaday, joint chairmen, made short talks, explaining the origin of the drive and the reason for it. They also made an explanation of how the solicitation was to operate, mentioning the fact that contributions may be made either in cash or may be placed upon winter term fees.

Harold Gulde, chairman of the unaffiliated solicitation committee, outlined the team system which is being used for actual canvassing, and made a plea to all team captains to appoint their team members and perfect their organization.

Headquarters have been decided upon, and all team captains and officials are urged by campaign heads to keep in close touch with them. Headquarters will be the office of Henry W. Davis, director of United Christian work.

There will be a luncheon for team captains and major officials at the men's dorm Friday in order that they may report progress made.

The purpose of the drive, according to Joe Holaday, is to carry on the various charity work on the campus that come under the supervision of the Y. M. and Y. W., such as a student employment service, the maintenance of the reading room, and other student aids. A small amount of the money obtained will also be apportioned among the Disabled Veterans, the Red Cross, and the anti-tubercular fund of the Red Cross, so that there will be absolutely no other drives on the campus this year for funds for these charitable organizations.

Varsity

sler's gridders to trample the Web-foots.

Various punting and passing combinations were being put through the final stages of perfection yesterday to complete Oregon's offensive drive. Woodie and Kitzmiller were doing the brunt of the heaving. Considerable time was spent in breaking up passes which were being played through Schisler's formations by the varsity reserves.

George Christensen was in suit last night in spite of an attack of the flu but neither Weems, McCutchan or Donohue were present. The loss of Weems, who is a sub tackle, may be felt next Saturday because at the best Christensen's bad ankle is still in a weakened condition and it is important that good reserve material be on hand.

New York Scout on Hand
Pete Reynolds of Syracuse, N. Y., was on hand at last night's practice. Reynolds is in the west for the purpose of scouting the Oregon State part of the game Saturday for New York university. The Staters have a game scheduled with N. Y. U. and Reynolds was sent out here to get a line on the big Orange team. Reynolds last night said that the Oregon State aggregation was certainly a rugged looking outfit, but he would not make a comparison between Oregon and the Beavers.

Although he is now in business in Syracuse, Reynolds was formerly head football coach at Bucknell for five years and after that he was head mentor at Syracuse university for two seasons.

Probe

everybody to come back, as a doctor assumes if a person does not get better he will come back of his own accord."

Dr. Miller said that the health service treats a hundred patients a day. He explained that the service dislikes sending a person to bed at home as the doctors are apt to lose touch with him. Instead they keep patients at the infirmary. There are only six beds, and the day Glenn came, all the available space was taken. Therefore he acted upon Glenn's own suggestion that he go home and to bed. He said that he was later told by two faculty members they had seen Glenn at the football game, and Miller thought the patient must be better.

Bob Benjamin, a fraternity brother, said that since Glenn had been playing a first string position up until the day before, he naturally was anxious to see the game. And this spirit prompted him to forget his pain a bit and that he attended, but only for a short time. That then his discomfort caused him to leave the field, and later to seek medical advice in Portland.

Miller replied that he conceded one doesn't have to be in perfect health to go to a game, but in this instance it might be a test of the severity of Glenn's illness at the time, which, though it might not have much effect on the rewarding of compensation, would be more important if the case were meant as an attack on the health service. Glenn answered that he wished only the compensation.

Other questions were raised, such as: Has the Emerald previously distorted the facts in its articles about Glenn's case? If the case had developed under the care of the health service, would they have called a consultation with other doctors, or would they have handled it by themselves? Was the nature of the trouble such that it might have gained seriousness after the Friday morning inspection of Dr. Miller, and Glenn's attendance at the game Friday afternoon?

The recommendations of this committee, based on its probe, will be handed to the executive council when Glenn's bill of more than $200 is presented.

Music, Tea, Bridge Will Feature Eugene Girls' Affair at 2:30

Eugene university girls and their mothers will play bridge and have tea together this afternoon in the palm room of the Osborn hotel from 2:30 until 5 o'clock. Helen Barnett, president of the club, and Evelyn Hollis, in charge of the tea, urge all university women who are residents of Eugene to take advantage of this opportunity to get acquainted.

At 4 o'clock, when tea is served, a regular 50c ticket will admit any two women who do not care to play bridge. Alice Carter, chairman of the program committee, has arranged several musical numbers for their entertainment. The program includes a flute solo by Maxine Moore, a violin solo by Martha Patterson, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Doris Helen, and a vocal selection by Evelyn Hollis. Those who will serve during the afternoon are Carola Rawling, Dana Logan, Beatrice Milligan, Reba Brogdon, Grayce Howe, Alice Kaille, Jennie Klemm, Dorothy Hauffman, and Bertha Devaney.

Four prizes are offered the bridge players. Admission is 50c.

High School To Give Comedy at Guild Hall

"The Creaking Chair," a clever mystery play by Anne Morrison and Patterson McNutt, which has been chosen for the university high school play, will be produced in a few weeks at the Guild hall theater. The production is under the direction of Mrs. Edna Assenheimer, head of the department of drama at the high school, and Grace Gardner, of the drama department of the university.

Library To Prepare Special Book Shelf

In acknowledgement of good book week, the university library has prepared a special shelf of general interest. These books are on a rack near the circulation desk. The purposeful reading course prepared by Mrs. Mabel McClain, head of the circulation desk, is also posted near the special books, along with two other suggested reading lists called "Recent Books of General Interest" and "One Hundred Good Novels" compiled by A. E. Newton.
