

Grizzlies Bare Teeth at Webfoot Squad

Sport Scribe Sees Victory Over Montana

Northern Grid Machine With All To Gain Is Ready for Wild Play

Sophomore Football Man Milburn's Ace

Missoula Team Six-footers; Giants of Conference

By RICHARD H. SYRING
BUTTE, Mont., Nov. 23.—(Special)—With everything to gain and nothing to lose, the University of Montana Grizzly football team, which meets the University of Oregon eleven on Hayward field on Nov. 24, for the first time in history, will cast "care to the wind" and strive for victory at any cost. Not since the days of "Wild Bill" Kelly have the Grizzlies tasted the sweet morsels of a conference victory and that at the expense of the University of Idaho gridsters in 1925.

It is hard to say just what the Grizzlies might exhibit on the Webfoot gridiron. It is a certainty that it will be the unexpected. If the field is dry, look out for the passes! As the season comes to a close Coach Frank Milburn's boys have developed a dangerous passing attack. In fact, he now has an air-minded team, which made consistent gains via the ozone against the Idaho Vandals last Saturday.

Hold Heavy Practice
Practices held on Dornblaser field at Missoula this week have been terrific ones. At the expense of the cubs, playing the Oregon style of football, a growling, snarling Montana Grizzly eleven has clawed and fought its way up and down the gridiron. Although there can be little chance of a Montana victory, the Missoula team will fight its hardest in the last contest of its schedule.

From present indications, Tom Moore, sophomore, may be expected to start in the backfield, with Chinske at quarter, Davis at full-back, and Waldo Ekegren at half-back. Moore made a good showing against the Oregon State Beavers and for that reason may be given the preference in the game against the Webfoots. Morrow, Parmalee, Carpenter and Kermit Ekegren are sure of getting into the fray before the timer's gun draws it to a close.

Lineup Indefinite
The line does not appear definitely settled. Peterson will be at one tackle, with Walker or Spence most likely to start at the other tackle post. Murray will be at one guard, and Schotte and Foss have been fighting it out for the other guard job. Foss has been shifted back to guard after playing several games at tackle.

Ray "Feet" Lewis, the lanky center who picked up an Idaho fumble and ran 18 yards for a touchdown last Saturday, has little competition for the pivot position. Harmon and Rogulien will probably pair at ends. Recent injuries have handicapped Rogulien. Tiernan or Rule will be first choice for wing duty in case either Harmon or Rogulien are out. The Montana Grizzlies may reasonably be called the "giants" of the coast conference. Of the squad of 40, 17 are six-footers or taller. The two tallest men are Russell Peterson and Emil Perey, tackles, each of whom is six feet and two inches tall. While a good many giants make up the personnel of the team, its captain, Eddie Chinske, quarterback, is probably one of the small-

Homecoming Grads Nominate Officers

Five Scintillating Oregon Backfield Aces

Pictured above are five perfectly plausible reasons why Montana is not doped to win today's game with Oregon. All five of the men may see service in the annual Homecoming game which starts at 2:15 p. m. Kitzmiller and Burrell are prominent candidates for all-coast honors and will have a chance to perform today against a team that has never faced Oregon before.

Are Football Men Waning in Physique? Coach McEwan Negatives Suggestion

You hear a lot about the rapidly declining physique of over-fed America. It is said that men no longer have the legs to carry on as did the athletes of old, and that instead of doing something to build themselves up, men continue to drive around in soft, plush-lined automobiles.

"It's not true," said Captain McEwan. "They used to think it quite a stunt when a team could play through a whole game without making a substitution. But the game is different now from that old push and pull style. It has become so complicated that it is a hard strain on the players' nerves, and that is why we have to make so many substitutions."

He explained that it was no longer considered intelligent to play a battered and tired star when there

Keene, Bailey Competing for President Job

Move For Homecoming Every Other Year Held Impractical by Grads

Angell Gets Position Of Delegate-at-large

Group Merger Is Topic For Today's Meeting

Nominations for president and two vice-presidents were made at a meeting of Homecoming alumni held yesterday afternoon, the opening gun of the second convention of the alumni state board of delegates. Homer Angell, '00, was elected delegate-at-large at the meeting.

These nominations will be passed on at the regular semi-annual meeting of all alumni, to be held at 10 a. m. today in Guild theater. Further nominations may be made. Later, ballots will be mailed to alumni all over the state, and the offices will be filled.

Nominations were as follows. For president: Clarence Keene, '06, of Silverton; Ed Bailey, '13, of Junction City.

For vice-president, two to be chosen: David Pickett, '13, Portland; Carl Neal, '10, Roseburg; and James Donald, '15, of Baker.

Discuss Relations
A discussion was held of the questions and resolutions to be brought up at the regular meeting. A motion was made to have Homecoming alternate years, the week-end of the O. A. C. game, and all officers to continue in office two years. Consensus of opinion in the group was that this change should not be inaugurated as it would lessen the spirit of the association.

They considered taking the big games off the campus to Portland, but decided it inadvisable, and voiced the opinion that at least the O. A. C. game should be played here.

Consider Amalgamation
The question of amalgamating the medical and alumni associations was considered, and a resolution was passed that the matter be taken up at the meeting of the larger group. Dr. A. B. Bettman of Portland, a member of both groups, outlined the plan. The medical society has expressed its approval, but some members of the alumni association object in that it might prove a financial strain to publish the lengthy proceedings of the medical group.

John C. Veach of Portland, and president for the past year, presided. Margaret Boyer was acting secretary in the absence of the regular secretary and treasurer, Miss Jeanette Calkins, who is ill with the flu. Ed Bailey, of Junction City, and one of the two vice-presidents, attended.

Others who were present at the meeting were: R. M. Eckerson, Corvallis; Frank D. Matthews, Roseburg; Frank Carter, Edith, Kerns Chambers, Dorothy Collier, and Harold White, all of Eugene; Homer Angell, Dr. Leland Belknap, Dean Hayes, Esther Magley Justice, David Pickett, and Dr. A. B. Bettman, of Portland; Clarence Keene, Silverton; Mrs. Laurence T. Harris of Eugene was proxy for J. H. Upton of Bend.

Will Drop From Plane With Ball for Game

Ernie Stolls, famous low altitude parachute jumper, will drop from an airplane this afternoon with a football during the half which will be used for the remainder of the game, according to Kenton Hamaker, chairman of the Homecoming feature committee.

This act will be done through the courtesy of the Hobi Airways Co. at a surprisingly low altitude, making it, according to officials, an extremely difficult stunt. It is said that many times lives are lost through this same act, and it is only on special occasions such as the University of Oregon Homecoming that it will be attempted.

Sign Cup Prize For Best Entry Won by S. A. E.

Bachelordorn, Kappas and Gamma Hall Mentioned For Clever Offerings

The Bristow cup, awarded annually to the living organization displaying the most original and effective Homecoming sign, was captured by Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The winning sign portrayed a duck in hot pursuit of a grizzly bear, with the Administration building looming up in the background. Prominently displayed was the caption, "Get the Grizzlies."

Gamma hall was the favorite of those which received honorable mention. They depicted a football stadium, very realistic in miniature, with the Oregon and Montana teams in action. A grandstand filled with a colorful crowd, a yell king and substitute players along the sidelines, completed the picture.

Kappa Kappa Gamma, also awarded honorable mention, displayed a procession of ducks, mamma, papa and the whole family, wending their way toward Oregon.

Delta Epsilon, another honorable mention, showed a bear looking fearfully over his shoulder at an

Alumni Due To Get Gift Of Grid Win

First Homecoming Victory In Four Years Looms For McEwan's Eleven

Three Varsity Regulars Absent From Lineup

Five Touchdown Margin Given to Eugene Men

By JOE PIGNEY

Since 1924 Oregon's homecoming grads have not been cheered by football victories. O. A. C., Stanford, and then O. A. C. again humbled the Webfoots as they vainly fought to present the alumni with victory. Today on Hayward field at 2:15 o'clock, however, the first Oregon Homecoming win in four years looms when the Webfoots meet the Montana Grizzlies.

Montana's football team has been down in the mouth all season, kicked about by all the teams in the north, and a possessor of the cellar position of the Pacific coast conference. Another loss cannot affect its standing on the coast, but a victory over Oregon would culminate the Grizzly season in a whirl of glory.

Webfoots Expect Battle
So it is with everything to win and nothing to lose that the Montana gridders hurl themselves at the Webfoots this afternoon in a last desperate effort to break into the win column. And it is just this sort of spirit that is going to make it a tough afternoon for the Webfoots.

A team so eagerly seeking a win as the Montana outfit is dangerous at all times. An ounce of over-confidence, a hitch in the offense, a sudden break may mean defeat for Oregon against the fast coming team from the north. But Oregon has proven itself this year and it is unlikely that there will be any hitches.

Oregon Is Favorite
Oregon is a top-notch favorite to win, and to win by a large score. There is always a chance, though, that an alert underdog team may spoil Oregon's hopes for a Homecoming triumph. But there is every assurance that Oregon will win, and that the Webfoot team will leave for Los Angeles Monday to play Ucla Thursday one notch higher in the Pacific coast conference.

A fast, thrilling game is predicted for this afternoon. Montana cares little for its defense, and will stake everything on a wide sweeping offense to get the jump on the Webfoots from the first. Oregon, with its powerful line, should sweep aside the Grizzlies with ease and pave the way to the goal line for the scoring combination.

Football history will be made this

Bombs, Rockets Pierce Fog in Pep Fest; Vintage of 1894 Leads Gang Down Ave.

Bang! A tremendous report burst the stillness of the night resounding again and again over the town, and a jet of red fire shot dimly upwards through the fog. Then another, and another, bang! bang! and then the sound of martial music and of tramping feet.

The noises drew nearer in the obscurity, and then the fog was parted by an auto, a Franklin of 1894 vintage, loaded down with hilarious students. Behind came the band, lads in green and yellow uniforms, and back of them a serpentine of green-capped Webfoot rooters, some carrying torches, swinging back and forth across the street, and all yelling "Oregon! Oregon! Rah, rah, Oregon!" The ancient Franklin disappeared in the fog and then the band, but still the marchers came "Oregon! Oregon! Rah, rah, Oregon!"

Over town the howling procession proceeded, the noise increasing every instant. Bombs exploded, rock-
