To Mel Cohn, tennis letterman, goes the month's free theater pass for coming closest to picking the all-coast team selected by the sports writers. He picked exactly the same team as the scribes except for one player. Bob Foster came second with 20 men correctly placed. Four men, Louis Mandell, Thornton Shaw, Carroll Watson, and Rex Tuning, guessed 19 right. Royal Boltman, Jack Hart, Clarence Hill, Walter Durgan, and Ralph David handed in ballots with 18 correct.

Approximately 150 all-coast teams were handed in by Emerald readers, including guesses by a half dozen Eugene fireman and a Eugene high lad. Only three girls hazarded a guess.

By JOE PIGNEY

The Oregon Professional Sport Writers' association is the victim of the Emerald-McDonald Pacific coast conference all-star contest. Staking its life on an eccentricity, the association consented to pick an all-coast eleven for the campus football fans to shoot at.

The association frankly asserts that its selection is not based entirely upon the comparative merits of the various players. Nothing is so absurd, it feels, as to attempt to compare men of one team with those of another when there is such a great difference in playing conditions.

All-star teams are becoming universally regarded as hokum. Put the eleven football men considered to be the outstanding players of the country on one team, and it is probable that O. A. C. or any other Pacific coast conference team could defeat them.

The measure of a man's qualifications for an all-star team is largely based on the amount of publicity he receives in the football season. The south knows little of the players of the north, and the north knows little of the players of the south. It is reasonable then that the man whose name appears in the newspaper columns the most often will have the chance of making the mythical eleven.

Oregon Football Men Pick Best Man They Played Against in 1928

Fifteen members of the University of Oregon football team were interviewed in an endeavor to obtain an all-star eleven composed of players selected from the conference teams the Webfoot gridsters met during the season just closed.

Each man interviewed was asked to select the particular players who caused him the most trouble in the various games played and it was hard for some of the Oregon players to remember the names of the men they stacked up against in the early season games. Then again, the reputed coast stars played only mediocre ball against the big Webfoot team. Many men were suggested for each position on the mythical teams and it was a case of picking the men with the most votes.

Only two of the men chosen were picked by every man interviewed. These men, Phillips, California's greatest end since the days of Brick

Artist Honored

An exhibition of the art work of Alfred Schreff, professor of painting, attracted much attention here recently. Professor Schreff has gained wide fame through his beautiful landscapes.

Dean Landsbury Back From Trip to Iowa

Tells of Wisconsin Game Seen in Eastern City

Dean John Landsbury, of the school of music has returned to the campus from a trip to Iowa City to the convention of music deans held there November 16 and 17. He arrived here Wednesday of this week.

Representatives attended the conference from the University of Kansas, University of Illinois, University of Missouri, University of Iowa, University of Indiana, University of Wisconsin, the school of music at Ann Arbor, Michigan, and the University of Oregon.

Problems bearing on music in the university were discussed by members attending the conference.

Incidentally while Dean Landsbury was in Iowa City he saw the Iowa-Wisconsin game. In commenting on the game he says, "Kincaid field, in the palmy days when we used to think it was a mudhole, looked like a parched desert compared with the field at Iowa City. The players were simply bedraggled with mud, sleet, snow and rain."

As another object of his trip east Dean Landsbury looked the field over for possible additions to the school of music faculty here and also for material for graduate assistants.

On his return trip Dean Landsbury investigated music conditions on the Pacific coast that might effect the music policy here. He passed through New Orleans, El Paso, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. While in Los Angeles the Dean witnessed the Oregon-U. C. L. A. football game.

Oregon Civic League To Hear Dr. Huffaker

Dr. C. L. Huffaker of the school of education will speak before the Oregon Civic League, Saturday, December 8, at a luncheon at the Benson hotel. The title of his speech will be "Is Australia Excelling Us Educationally?"

Honorary to Give Dance For Campus

Mortar Board Plans Hop For January 5; Dress Is Formal for Women

Kollege Knights May Play for New Affair

Ticket Sales in Houses Will Start Next Term

The University of Oregon campus is this year to witness its first premiere. No, it will not be in the line of those of opera stars, motion pictures and such. It will be the initial Mortar Board Ball, a campus dance which will become a tradition of the future.

The evening of January 5, the first Saturday of the winter term, has been set as the date for the premiere dance, which will be formal for women, with the men left an option as to their dress. The Woman's building is to be the scene of the ball, which will be competing with no other dances on the campus that night.

Still Only a Whisper

Although it is only a pleasantly anticipated whisper as yet, still there is a possibility that the symphonic harmonies of George Me-Murphy's Kollege Knights may again resound through the Woman's building for the delight of dancers. At the present time they are playing at McElroy's Spanish Ballroom in Portland. The name of Herman Kenin, whose orchestra is playing at the Multnomah hotel in Portland, is also whispered. At any rate Pod Sten, who has charge of the music, promises that it will be plenty good. Novelty is also promised in the programs, but Martha Swafford, heading decorations, has given no hints of her plans as yet.

Tickets on Sale

Tickets at $1.50 a couple are to be placed on sale at the Co-op, and at the beginning of the next term they will be sold from campus booths by members of Thespian and Kwama, freshman and sophomore women's service honoraries, who will also present the plan to the men's living organizations. Schedules of these and names of men to have tickets in the various groups will be given in a later Emerald, according to Charlotte Carl, who has charge of the ticket sale.

"The dance is sure to be a big success, and everyone will be there, because it will be the first week-end of the new term that everyone will be back to school, and besides there will be no other dances on the campus that night," said Ruth Burcham, who is general chairman of the ball. "Then, too," she added, "it will be the first strictly formal dance for women of the school year."

The complete committee in charge of arrangements for the dance is made up of the following: Ruth Burcham, general chairman; Charlotte Carl, tickets; Pod Sten, music and programs; Katherine Kneeland, patrons and patronesses; Martha Swafford, decorations; Dorothy Baker, publicity.

Ruth Pattee To Attend Gathering of Oregon Teacher Association

The Oregon State Teachers' association, which is to convene in Portland in its yearly meeting for a three-day session, December 26, 27, 28, will be attended by Mrs. Ruth B. Pattee, instructor in Latin at the University high, who is president of the Latin section of the association, and Fredrick S. Dunn, professor of Latin, who will preside at the Classical association of the Northern Pacific states.

These two meetings are to meet in conjunction and Professor Dunn will present two papers, one entitled "The Affinity of Jesus and Peter," bringing to light the close parallel of pagan and Christian ideals. A second paper, "The Vanishing Footprints of Virgil in Naples" is an account of Professor Dunn's appreciative inspection of the Virgil memorials during his war work in Italy.

Tryouts for Freshman Debate Team Put Off

Because too few candidates for the freshman men's debate team showed up at Villard hall Thursday afternoon, the tryouts will instead be held during the first week of the winter term, according to J. K. Horner, debate coach.

Horner requests that all freshman men who are interested in trying out watch the first few Emeralds of next term for announcements.

Burg Packs Parka, Leaves Northland

Former Student Takes Pictures in Arctic

Amos Burg, the boy who wasn't exactly born with a paddle in his hand, but has had one in it most of the time since then and knows every whirlpool in the rivers of the north-west, is coming back to the campus today.

For many frigid moons Amos has been in the icy Arctic taking moving pictures and "stills" for movie companies and the National Geographic magazine. With a single companion he has been living in Eskimo villages for several months, studying their life—a picturesque life if you like that kind.

Let him tell it: "Well, the voyage is ended, but the melody lingers on in the howl of the maelstrom under the Arctic stars and the grind of the ice pack in Bering strait under our forefoot. I can hear the song of the blowing breeze, the call of the moose . . . the roar of doom in Miles canyon. The migrating caribou trample the waters in the shallows. Brant and

Glee Clubs Sing St. Cecilia Mass In Latin Sunday

Music School Instructors Have Solo Parts; Evans, Bryson Direct Chorus

Combined glee clubs of the university make their first appearance of the year next Sunday afternoon at 4:30 singing Gounod's "St. Cecilia Mass." The concert will be at the music auditorium.

The glee clubs, which consist of 100 voices, have been working toward the presentation of the "Mass" since the first of term.

John Stark Evans, director of the glee clubs, who has spent a great deal of time training the group, will accompany the singers on the pipe organ. Roy Bryson, instructor in voice at the school of music and assistant director of the glee clubs, has also spent much time with the group in preparation for the concert.

Gounod's "St. Cecilia Mass" is a sacred composition and will be sung Sunday in Latin.

The men of the glee club will be in dark suits and black bow ties for the concert Sunday while the women will wear regular chorus vestments.

John B. Seifert, tenor; Roy Bryson, baritone; and Mme. Rose McGrew, soprano, all instructors in voice at the music school, will sing the solo parts for the concert.

Townpeople, as well as students and faculty of the university, are cordially invited by the directors and chorus to attend the program Sunday. No admission will be charged.

Schoeni To Hold Staff Shakeup Next Term

A shakeup of the Emerald staff will take place at the first next term, reporters will be assigned to new beats and some new members added to the staff, according to an announcement made yesterday by Arthur Schoeni, managing editor.

"The Emerald this term has tried to give a full coverage on all events that happened on the campus," he said. "Next term we are going to try to do even better, with something in every issue that every student will want to read—that is the Emerald's aim."

Two more issues will be put out this term, Tuesday and Wednesday morning of next week. After that the paper will be discontinued so that the staff will have a few days to study up for exams.

Roehm To Work in Lab During This Vacation

Richard R. Roehm, holder of the Fleischman yeast fellowship here, will work during the Christmas vacation on the extraction of about three ounces of semi-pure yeast nutritive from 500 pounds of rice polish, he announced yesterday. The rice polish was received last week from Sacramento.

Water, sulphuric acid, and wood alcohol will be used in the process of extraction. Roehm will attempt to purify the extracted yeast nutritive in his work for the Fleischman company.

Loving Cups Donated For Prep Papers

Prizes Planned for Best Publications Entering High School Contest

Trophies Must Be Won Three Times To Keep

Journalism Department Sponsors New Plan

Four trophies to be awarded the high schools of the state fulfilling certain requirements is a new and interesting feature of the high school conference to be held here January 11 and 12. This High School Press association journalism contest is fostered by the school of journalism, and is open to all high schools of the state where a school paper is published, or where the students supply news to local papers, George Godfrey, assistant journalism professor, announced.

Dr. Hall Gives Cup

A large loving cup, donated by Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, will be given the high school having the best all around paper in the state. For the best paper in high schools of over 500 the Eugene Register has donated a cup, and for the best paper in schools of under 500 the Eugene Guard has offered the award. The winner of the grand award will not be eligible for these. Harris Ellsworth, field manager for the Oregon Editorial association, is donating the cup for the best news furnished local papers by high school students. The trophies must be won three times to become the permanent property of a school.

Committee Makes Plans

George Godfrey, David Wilson, president of the press conference last year, and Estill Phipps, president for this year, form a committee for working out the details of the affair. Judges for the contest will be named soon. All entries must be sent in to the school of journalism here not later than January 9. Winners will be announced at the annual conference banquet, January 12.

Members of the directorate have named the personnel of their sub-committees, according to an announcement made by Jo Ralston. They are as follows:

Anderson Correspondence Head

Correspondence: Hal Anderson, chairman; Lois Nelson, La Grande; Elizabeth McCorrd, Woodburn; Charles Laird, Portland; and Marie Meyers, Portland.

Registration and Accommodation:

Helen Peters, chairman; Keith Hall, Marshfield, assistant chairman; Dorothy Eberhard, La Grande; Alice Morrow, Portland; Kenneth Curry, Portland; Elizabeth Crissel, Portland; Elizabeth Plummer, Portland; and Harriet Atchison, Portland.

Welcome and campus tour:

Paul Hunt, chairman; Jim Dezendorf, Portland; Dorothy Dunham, Klamath Falls; and Joe Frick, Garden Home.

Banquet Committee Named

Banquet: Shirley Rew, chairman; Katherine Langenberg, North Bend; Eleanor Schroeder, Marshfield; and Virginia Grone, Portland.

Entertainment:

Rosser Atkinson, chairman; Arthur Rogers, Eugene; Eleanor Flanagan, Marshfield; Joy Ingalls, Eugene; Duncan McKay, Bend; and Justin McDonald, Eugene.

Publicity:

Elaine Crawford, chairman; Clea McKennon, Portland; and Dorothy Kirk, Oregon City.

A faculty committee, consisting of Earl M. Pallett, George Godfrey, and Dan E. Clark, will assist the directorate in an advisory capacity.

Officers Selected

At the conference last year, students from various high schools in the state were elected to conduct

High Army Official To Lecture on War And What Caused It

Brigadier-General Charles R. Howland, of Camp Lewis, Washington, was on the campus yesterday to make arrangements with President Hall and Executive Secretary Onthank for a series of lectures which he will give on the campus January 21 and 22.

General Howland's subject will be on the causes and history of the World war. He is in command of the 3rd Field Artillery regiment at Camp Lewis, and is the author of a history of the war which has been published by the government.

General Howland will also deliver lectures on the same subject at the University of Washington, and at O. A. C.

Collects Relics

A remarkable collection of Indian relics has been presented to the university by Mrs. Annie Knox, Springfield, and will be placed in the new Fine Arts building.

Dean Allen To Leave Soon for Ann Arbor

To Attend Three National Journalistic Meetings

Dean Eric W. Allen will leave a few days before Christmas for Ann Arbor, Mich., where he will spend several days attending three national journalistic meetings, on whose programs he will have an important part.

One will be a meeting of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism, which includes the 20 leading schools of the nation. At this the dean will be the only speaker. The second will be a session of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism at which the dean will address the group on "What Ought to Be the Academic Qualifications of the Journalism Teacher."

Dean Allen will also meet with the council on education for journalists of which he is one of the five members. He will leave immediately after examinations have been completed and expects to return Jan. 2 or 3.

Cosmopolitan Club To Erect Yule Tree

Group To Have American Christmas Wednesday

Members of the University of Oregon Cosmopolitan club will be entertained with a real American Christmas tree next Wednesday night at the "Y" hut.

A tree, the biggest and best, will be obtained, one that will reach nearly to the ceiling. It will be gaily adorned with all the colors of Christmas. Arrangements are being made to have it erected immediately. At this festival, the students will give gifts to each other and friends.

About fifty members of the Cosmopolitan club are at present on the campus and it is thought that all of these will attend the affair. This Christmas tree party is an annual affair and has been established for the purpose of getting the foreign students accustomed to American Christmas ideas.

The affair is in charge of Sam H. Whong, and many American students are also helping to make it a high success.

Christmas College Ball Shaping Up Well; Heads Report Progress

Plans for the Christmas College Ball are beginning to round up into definite shape. If all the reports of the committees are true, it will be one of the biggest social events of the season not only for the college students but the high school students and townspeople of Portland as well.

The dance, which is under the auspices of the Women's league of the University of Oregon, is to be given in the grand ballroom of the Multnomah hotel in Portland on Saturday, December 15.

Members of the publicity committee, Dorothy Kirk, chairman, Lavina Hicks and Margaret Clark, are at work advertising the dance with posters in many of the downtown stores of Eugene and the more prominent stores of Portland. Posters are also being placed in all the high schools of Portland.

Tickets are being sold in Eugene

Football Men For Hawaiian Trip Picked

22 Members of Squad To Make Island Invasion During Xmas Holidays

Gilbert, Earl Names To Go With Players

Two Games Scheduled on Christmas, New Years

Twenty-two members of the University of Oregon football team were selected by Coach John J. McEwan to make the trip to the Hawaiian Islands to meet the University of Hawaii and the Honolulu All-stars, and last night the scholarship committee passed on every one of the men selected. Each member of the squad had his grades in his studies above passing and the squad will leave the campus Tuesday morning for the first lap of their long journey.

The team will sail from San Francisco Wednesday noon aboard the Matson liner Wilhelmina. The squad picked to make the trip is composed of fourteen linemen and eight backs. It will be accompanied by a manager, two faculty representatives, and two coaches, Jack Benefield, graduate manager, of the university, will not make the trip. He was forced to cancel his plans to accompany the team due to important business. He is at present attending the meeting of the schedule committee of the Pacific Coast conference in Los Angeles, and will be busy straightening out his work at the university during the holidays.

To Play Two Holidays

The games in the islands will be played on Christmas and New Year's day and the team will leave on the return journey January 3. The men will be back in classes on the 9th of January and will, no doubt, bring many pleasant memories with them.

Gilbert, Earl to Go

Accompanying the team are: Captain J. J. McEwan and Dick Reed, coaches; George Schade, manager; Virgil Earl and Dean J. H. Gilbert, faculty representatives.

Coach McEwan will probably start his regular first string lineup against the All-stars on Christmas day. Every player on the travelling squad is in good condition and the team is determined to add two more victories to their string of wins this season. The probable starting lineup: Pope and Archer, ends; Colbert and Christensen, tackles; Hagan and Shields, guards; Stadelman, center; Burnell, Kitzmiller, Williams, and Gould, backs.

Eugene Night Classes To Continue Next Term

Night classes will be continued next term in Eugene and in various other Oregon cities, according to Dr. Dan E. Clark, assistant director of the extension division.

Most of the present courses will be offered and some new ones added if there is sufficient demand. The classes during the fall term have been the most successful ever held in Eugene, Dr. Clark said.
