hibit his wares. The loss of Gordon Ridings will be sorely felt by the Webfoots as he is a brilliant player. He has been slow to get started this season and has failed to play up to standard to date. Siekness has hampered his training, and if he is able to play tonight he will not be in good shape.

The delegates are beginning to arrive. From all parts of Oregon come preppers to attend the ninth annual high school conference sponsored by the university. Arrangements have been made to meet them at the trains as they arrive and bring them to the Administration building where they will register. The houses have appointed members to escort them from there to the house at which they will stay.

The session will open Friday morning at 9:00. At this time Joe McKeown, A. S. U. O. head, will welcome the delegates to the university and introduce the presidents of the
