

Debate Coach Gives Advice To Teachers

Excellent Opportunity For Argumentation Experts, Says Horner

Knowledge of Forensics Is Of Value to Instructors

"Students intending to teach are missing an excellent opportunity to get better positions with higher salaries when they don't train themselves to coach an extra-curricular activity, such as debate or drama," said J. K. Horner, debate coach, yesterday. He thinks that if intending teachers would take a course in argumentation and debate, even if they did not make any of the debate teams, they could coach forensics in a high school.

"If students are qualified to coach any extra-curricular activity they are more likely to get a position," confirmed Ida May Pope, secretary of the appointment bureau at the school of education, "because most of our positions here are tied up with that sort of thing." Miss Pope thinks that higher salaries are commanded by those who teach drama and debate as specialties in the larger high schools, but that the ability to coach extra-curricular activities will not raise the salaries attached to jobs in the smaller high schools. Teachers who can coach debate or drama, however, she said, are more likely to get the better positions.

Dr. Hicks Introduces Novel Game of Chess

Kriegspiel Is New Indoor Pastime, Says DeCou

Kriegspiel, a game of chess in which the two players sit back to back and play without seeing the positions of the opponent's men, was introduced on the campus last Wednesday night at a meeting of the Mathematics club at the home of Professor E. E. DeCou. Professor DeCou and Dr. D. R. Davis were the two opponents in this first game, while Dr. C. H. Hicks held the third board and directed the game. Dr. Hicks had formerly played Kriegspiel at the California Institute of Technology.

Although there is a great deal of guessing in this new way of playing chess, it is really a great indoor sport, according to Professor DeCou, who came out the loser in a close game. With practice, a person can become quite an accurate guesser.

The person who holds the third chess board had all the chess men for both sides on it, and moves them according to the moves of the two players. He tells the players when it is their turn to move and the consequences of their moves.

Kriegspiel's popularity is spreading and seems to offer a new diversion for chess players, according to Professor DeCou.

Y. W. Will Sponsor Discussion Groups

God, Relations of Men and Women Will Be Talked

Arrangements for three discussion groups to be given under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. for university women have just been completed.

The subject for two of these groups will be "The Relations Between Men and Women."

The first of these, which is to be led by Miss Dorothy Thomas, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., will be held from 4 to 5 o'clock on Mondays beginning January 28. This group will meet at the Y. W. Bungalow.

Dr. Wilmoth Osborne is to conduct the other group on "Relations Between Men and Women." This group, which is limited to 12 members, is barred to freshmen. Meetings will be held at Dr. Osborne's residence at 1206 Mill street on Tuesday evenings from 7:15 to 8:15, beginning January 29.

"What Can We Still Believe About God, Prayer, Jesus, Immortality, the Bible, and Religion?" are the topics of six discussions which are to be led by Rev. Clay E. Palmer of the First Congregational church. The discussions will show the trend of modern thought on these subjects. The point of view is not to be orthodox or theological. The discussion will be held every Wednesday from 5 to 6 o'clock at the Y. W. Bungalow.

Women who wish to join these groups may sign up for them on lists which will be posted on the bulletin board at the Y Bungalow, or they may call Eldress Judd at the Delta Zeta house. Names must be in by 4 o'clock Monday. These discussions are to last for six weeks. If groups are desired at other hours or on other topics, arrangements may be made with Eldress Judd or Miss Dorothy Thomas.

Tourists Treated to 'Old Faithful' Sight As Water Line Spouts

Shades of Yellowstone park! Not many students know that Eugene was treated to a geyser such as some people travel thousands of miles to see.

Yesterday morning between 9 and 10 o'clock, a city water main valve, located at Ninth and Alder streets, right beside the railroad tracks, blew out and spouted a geyser-like column of water as high as a telephone pole.

There was no danger of flood or water damage, however, as the water seeped away through some subterranean channel almost as fast as it gushed from the main.

Damaged a week ago when an errant autoist ran off the road and struck the cap, the valve had been leaking ever since. Whether from ignorance or neglect, the leak had not been attended to and so it was necessary for the large main to be cut off for a short time while the valve was repaired.

By 10:30 the hole had been plugged and Eugene's first and only geyser was extinct.

Today's Question: What do you think of the Frosh Glee?

Teresa Cooper, senior in English: "I think it is a good idea. It gives the frosh a chance to show what they can do on the campus. It takes good management and leadership to put it over successfully."

Max Carman, sophomore in business administration: "It is the only social event of which the freshmen have complete charge without any outside influence. The outcome will prove the future success of the 1932 class."

Murdina Medler, junior in English: "I think for its pleasure for the students on the campus it is an enjoyable event, but it seems to be a difficult undertaking for freshmen, who have had no experience in that sort of thing."

Evan Hughes, sophomore in business administration: "I'm all for it. It is an opportunity for all of the campus to get together and it is the one big social event of their freshman year."

Evelyn Erickson, sophomore in education: "I think it is fine. It is nice for the freshmen to have a social event as the other classes have. It gives them a good foundation to start their activities in college."

Rainbow Tracked to Blue Tin

Newton, Ill., Feb. 22, 1928
Larus & Brother Co.,
Richmond, Va.
Gentlemen:

The tobacco samples you sent me have been received, and they are great.

If you can picture in your mind the lonesomeness of a traveling man in a small town on a rainy night, not a friend in a hundred miles, nothing to do and no place to go:

That was the position I was in when your samples of Edgeworth came. It was like a voice from above when I opened the package and got the old pipe steaming.

I have smoked various brands of tobacco for the past fifteen years, but never in my life have I found a tobacco at any price that will equal Edgeworth. It does not bite the tongue, and a beautiful aroma follows. With the good old friend pipe and a can of Edgeworth you can dream of the rainbow's end.

Please count me in the future as an Edgeworth booster.

Very truly,
(Signed) Al Stanley

Oregon meets Washington this week end at basketball in a series of three games. The games will be at Seattle, where Washington won three straight from O. A. C. last week.

Now that the new plunge is open every co-ed is going to learn to swim before she receives her diploma, according to Dr. Bertha Stewart. She estimates that about ten women in the university are able to swim.

"Work Fast Like Me Al"---

"One of my moments is like another man's week-end." And moments count when "we gotta greet 'em, grab 'em, goal 'em and go." Which is what happens when you're in the Navy and you don't want to miss a good thing like Clara Bow. When "The Fleet's In!" get going you "hard-to-get-babies" and get a "look at a guy with a past." Even if your "Alpine physique" isn't so much, you'll add a few inches to your "girdle" when Clara Bow and the boy friend get going on George Marion's titles in "The Fleet's In!" Clara's got everything. As Eddie says he "never seen a kid so completely equipped." End Eddie's no slouch either, as he advises himself "Get a load of Briggs, the vampire of the Vermont." So all in, "The Fleet's In!" and ready to land a load of laughs.
