Friday—Washington vs. Oregon at Eugene, Montana vs. Idaho at Moscow.

Saturday—Montana vs. Washington State at Pullman, Washington vs. Oregon State at Corvallis.

The University of Washington Huskies will invade Oregon to play the last two games of their Northwest conference schedule against Oregon, at Eugene Friday night, and Oregon State, at Corvallis Saturday.

The Purple team will endeavor to keep its record of victories intact with wins over the Webfoots and Beavers, and enter the play off series against California at Seattle March 1, with a total of ten wins and no defeats.

Both Oregon schools are down in the conference standings with Oregon State occupying fourth place, as a result of its win over Idaho Tuesday night.

Washington has, by far, the best five in the league. A smooth working machine on both the offensive and defensive play can best describe the Husky quintet.

The California Bears have defeated all the teams in the southern section of the conference, to run up eight straight victories.

has won several coast titles during the last few years, and he is out to annex the flag this year.

Oregon's basketball team went through a hard workout last night in preparation for the Washington game. The Oregon team, after getting off to a slow start, showed fair form in the last few games, only to lose two close contests to Washington State and Idaho.

The varsity game Friday night will be preceded by a contest between the Oregon frosh and the Washington babes. Due to the press conference which will be held on the campus Friday and Saturday, the frosh game will start at 7:15 Friday night with the varsity game to start at 8:15.

Class Offers Two Operas Tonight at Music Building

Madame McGrew's Pupils To Present 'Carmen,' 'La Boheme' at 8 P. M.

"La Boheme" and "Carmen" are the two parts of the program to be presented tonight at 8 o'clock by the pupils in Madame Rose McGrew's opera class.

"I feel that this program should be a success," Madame McGrew says. "The characters in the two operas have worked hard and have lived their parts."

"In 'Carmen,' Agnes Petzold is singing the title role. She will give an exceptionally good rendition of the part. I think she is very commendable and the audience will find her very interesting."

Emmeline Roach has the part of Micaela, a village maiden, in Carmen. "She sings very well and has developed into a charming actress," Madame McGrew says.

The leading male part of Don Jose is taken by Hollis Carey, who has come back to the campus this year after being in business for a year. "He has a tenor voice," Madame McGrew says, "and makes of himself a splendid Don Jose."

Herbert Pate, who has also come back to the campus this year after being in business, takes the part of Zuniga, captain of the dragoons.

Oregon Fencers Begin Tourney At Men's Gym

Free Lance Championship At Stake; Change Made In Challenge Rulings

The men's gym will ring with the clash of steel this week as the university's fencers battle their way to the individual free lance fencing championship. The tourney starts this afternoon and is open to anyone desiring to prove his worth with the foils.

Powell has changed the regular free lance rules so that the loser of a bout may challenge the winner of any other, and if he wins, may again enter the competition. If a man loses twice in succession, he is dropped out of the competition.

dropped out of the tourney while those he can defeat enter into the final brackets.

The entries include Warren Heicher, Jesse Douglas, Joe Black, James Whitman, Fred Radtke, Rodgers DeLashmitt, and Allan Palmer.

According to Powell the men on the squad are becoming clever with the foils, and he predicts some very close and fast matches will be fought during the week.

held in Seattle during the next term. There also will be meets with Reed college at Portland and the University of Washington.

Home Economics Gives Luncheon for Guests

Student dinners and lunches are being prepared at the Home Economics building, these meals being planned, cooked and served by the students of the class, and eaten by the girls themselves, or by friends they invite as guests. Occasionally Miss Tingle, head of the department, herself acts as hostess, and sometimes a mixed party is entertained.

A luncheon and a dinner both are on the program for today, Miss Tingle entertaining at noon, and Reba Brogdon acting as hostess tonight.
