

High Schools Prepare for Relay Meet

State Preppers Already Sending in Entries For Annual Carnival

By JOE PIGNEY

The high schools of Oregon already are eagerly looking forward to the third annual Oregon interscholastic relay track carnival on Hayward field, April 27. Interest in the relay meet sponsored by the University of Oregon has grown so rapidly in the three years that now practically every prep school in the state sends teams to compete.

Last year the entry list amounted to nearly 300 athletes, and this year's number probably will eclipse the 1928 mark. Virgil D. Earl, director of athletics at Oregon, who has general charge of the event, has received, at this early date, the applications of 13 high schools.

For several years the interest in track among high school athletes was on the decline. To revive the waning interest and to establish team work in the usually highly individual sport, the Oregon interscholastic relay carnival was organized.

The plan was a tremendous success even in its first year, and last season it reached a higher peak in development than was expected for several years. With the relay meet as their ultimate goal, the trackmen in the state high schools are now turning out in large numbers.

The benefits of the carnival are not limited to track alone. In checking through the freshman registration list, many men, undoubtedly influenced by their trip to the relay meet, have entered the university.

The comparison between the Oregon relay meet and meets held by other colleges also has impressed visiting coaches and athletes with the advantages of the university. The manner of housing the athletes and conducting them through the school has been as efficient as the track meet itself. The confusion of caring for 300 athletes which has been prevalent at other carnivals has been eliminated by the Oregon officials until now the meet is handled in perfect order.

The University of Oregon has done everything to make the relay carnival a success. All the officials are furnished, a cup is given to each winning relay team and to the winner of each special individual event. Members of the teams which place in the meet are presented with medals.

Practically the only thing which the university does not guarantee is transportation to Eugene. There will be no admission charge made at the gate for the meet as it is the desire of the officials to have the largest crowd possible.

The high school athletes will have 12 events in which to compete. Seven of these events are for team races and the other five are for individuals.

Drama Tourney For High Schools To Be Held Here

Ten Prep Institutions Will Send Actors to Campus On April 4 to 6

The third annual state high school drama tournament will be held at the University of Oregon April 4 to 6, Dr. Dan E. Clark, secretary of the committee, announced yesterday.

High schools competing will be Henley, Newberg, Corvallis, Marshfield, St. Helens, Milwaukie Union, Roseburg, Eugene, Mill City, and Baker.

The winning production will be awarded a silver cup given by the Guild Theatre company. Roseburg won two years ago and Eugene last year. The first school to win it for three times will have permanent possession of the cup.

The judges will be Mrs. Doris Smith, head of one of the little theatre companies in Portland; Dean Collins, dramatic critic on the Telegram, and Mrs. Kathleen M. Clarke of Grants Pass, who formerly coached dramatics in high school and who has written some plays.

Women's League Slates Meeting

Nominations Will Be Announced Thursday

Nominations for Women's league elections will be announced at the mass meeting for all women next Thursday, as was decided at the executive council meeting this week.

M. Edmunson has been appointed to take charge of all arrangements for the handbook issued each year by the women of the campus. It contains information and rules of interest to prospective university students, and is sent to high school seniors.

Bi-monthly teas will be given again this term, under the direction of Florence McNeerney. They will be out of doors when weather permits.

An auction sale will be conducted April 10, on the steps of the main library, of all articles which have been turned into the university depot and remained unclaimed. A chairman to handle all details will be selected within a few days.

Tryouts for all class slants in the April Frolic program will be held next week. Anyone desiring to turn in a drawing or plan for the programs may present it to Merdina Medler.

'Prink' Callison May Be Coach of Oregon Fresh

Prexy Denies Mentor of Medford Teams Is Offered Post

Reinhart's Position Put On Curb by Promotion

Although there have been some tentative negotiations between Prince G. Callison, Medford high school coach, and Virgil D. Earl, director of athletics at the university, the southern Oregon mentor, contrary to rumors, has not yet been offered the position as fresh football and basketball coach, according to Joe McKeown, president of the student body. Until the meeting of the athletic board at the Anchorage this noon, no definite arrangements will be made.

Since the promotion of Bill Reinhart to head varsity backfield coach, the job of directing the freshman teams has been left open. Callison, who is a former Oregon star, has been considered by the athletic officials and perhaps is the most prominent of the applicants.

Callison has had an unusually successful record with his football, basketball, and baseball teams at Medford high school. He competed for Oregon in '18, '19, '21, and '22. In 1920 he was a member of the Olympic club football team of San Francisco.

Under Callison's coaching Medford high has lost only one football game since 1923, Callison's first year, and has won the state title twice. His basketball team has twice won the state championship, was runner up once, and finished in third place two other years. Since 1923 Medford has captured all the southwestern Oregon major titles.

Miss Collohan Spends 'Measley' Vacation

After successfully weathering the wave of epidemics which has engulfed the campus during the past year, and with which she came into close contact, Miss Margaret Collohan, head nurse of the infirmary, motored to Klamath Falls spring vacation, eagerly looking forward to a quiet rest from the ever impending menace of the insidious microbes and the malicious germ.

No sooner had she reached her destination, however, than the demon measles laid his hand upon her and she was forced to spend her vacation amid her usual surroundings, the sick bed, the hot water bottle, and the medicine bottle. She expects to return to the university within a few days.

Canoe Fete Leaders Selected by Hamaker

Keith Hall Gets Business Post; Anderson Named

Scenes of Floats Will Be Used in Campus Movie, Chairman Announces

The directorate of the 1929 Canoe Fete, probably the biggest event of Junior Week-end, was announced last night by Kenton Hamaker, of Klamath Falls, general chairman.

Those appointed: Business manager, Keith Hall, of Marshfield. Assistant chairman, Hal Anderson, of Portland. Secretary, Beryl Harrah, of Pendleton.

Decorations, Millard Schmeer, of Portland. Features, Art Rogers, of Eugene.

Grounds and staging, Del Richmond, of Cottage Grove. Lottery, Jeanette Gunthor, of Portland.

Programs, Katherine Talbot, of Portland. Judges and awards, Florence McNeerney, of Portland.

Advertising, La Wanda Fenlon, of Portland.

Transportation and traffic, Terrence King, of Mitchell.

Publicity, Wilfred Brown, of Camas Valley.

Appointees Active

Nearly everyone of the appointees to the positions on the directorate have been active in their special lines of campus activity, Hamaker said.

The Canoe Fete will be held on the night of May 10, the Friday of Junior Week-end. There will be about fifteen floats, two houses cooperating in the building of each float. All houses not represented in the 1928 Canoe Fete will enter this year.

An added incentive to the builders of the floats for this year's Fete will be the fact that the Canoe Fete will be used as an important scene of the campus movie, now under production.

Cost at $30

The rules for the 1929 Fete will be the same as last year. Each float will be limited in cost to $30. Pairings of the houses will be announced within a week, Hamaker said, so work may begin on the floats soon.

Two permanent cups in addition to two prizes will be awarded the houses entering the winning floats. The cups are now in the possession of Bachelor and Hendricks hall, who won the last year's contest with a large plaster representation of St. George in mortal combat with the legendary dragon.

Mrs. Warren D. Smith In School Board Race

Mrs. Warren D. Smith, wife of Professor Warren D. Smith, head of the Oregon geology department, has announced her candidacy for election to the Eugene school board in Eugene. She will receive support from the City Federation of Women's organizations.

At elections for several years, there has been talk of a woman candidate, but Mrs. Smith will be the first to enter the field. She has had a wide range of educational experience and has done considerable work of a public nature, including two years teaching math in high schools at Fort Wayne, Ind., three years teaching domestic science in the Philippine islands, and two years as president of the Eugene city council of the Parent-Teacher association. She is a member of the American Association of University Women.

Track Repairs Usher in Men's Sport

Track on the campus was officially ushered in this week with the removal of goal posts from Hayward field and the construction of new pits for the pole vault and javelin. Other changes include installation of markers necessary for measuring distances in the discus and javelin throws.

Worst Books Go Fast Shop-keeper Genial

A sign of unassuming appearance hanging over the sidewalk on West Seventh street, announces to the world that the dingy room behind it, lined with books, is the Oregon Book Exchange.

Inside a genial book-seller allows his clientele to browse among the rows of volumes, and encourages them to sit and read while, proffering suggestions only when they are solicited. He understands the value of books, both for reading matter and fine printing.

Many students buy books there when they cannot find them elsewhere in town.

"The best sellers I have are the books that are worth the least," he declared. "The western thrillers, the cheap romances, any book with a love interest and filled with daredevil escapades sells like wild fire."

The shopkeeper has these books on hand, he says, because it affords him the means of buying rare and beautiful works. His face lights up when he encounters another book-lover, and he draws carefully from his desk the editions which he prizes the most, to share the delight experienced in studying their pages.

Payne, Voltaire, Huxley, and in general find popularity in the students who frequent his shop, although some of the cheaper fiction appeals to scholarly taste, he declared. Booksellers would go bankrupt if it weren't for Shakespeare and Zane Grey.

Oregon Debaters Going to Nevada, Southwestern U.

McKeown, Durgan to Meet Montana School Here; Three Tilts Taken

Oregon's debate squad has had a successful season thus far, with three wins, one not yet decided, and three remaining encounters to be held next week. Ellsworth Plank and Eugene Laird upholding the negative debated both Washington State, at Pullman, and the University of Idaho, at Moscow, on the question, "Resolved, that the jury system be abolished."

The decision of a radio debate over KGW, Portland, in which Joe McKeown and Walter Durgan represented Oregon on the affirmative and Harold Scott and Alfred Pence defended the negative for the University of Wyoming, will not be known until Sunday morning when the ballots submitted by radio fans will be counted.

A second negative team will leave for the South Monday noon, where it will meet the University of Nevada, at Reno, the Southwestern law school, at Los Angeles. The Oregon debaters will be Ernest Jacobetta and Paul Clark, both two year men and members of the law school. The debate with Nevada is a return contest. Southwestern is reputed as having the best team on its coast. Last year Oregon lost its debate with the Los Angeles school, but this year Oregon's veteran team expects to chalk up a victory.

Probably the last home debate of the year will be staged against Montana. The affirmative team of Joe McKeown and Walter Durgan will meet the invaders April 3.

Committee Appointed To Make Movie Copies

A script committee of eight that will make copies of the scenario for the campus movie was announced yesterday afternoon by Carvel Nelson, Ben Milligan and Jim Raley, production directors. The committee will be Marion Hubbard, Helen Winsor, Louise Dalton, Lena Thomson, Estelle Mays, Esther Bliss, Jessie Dean Dudley and Lois Nelson. Fifteen copies are to be made.

A NEW EMERALD FEATURE

Beginning today, the Emerald will publish a new weekly feature of interest to students who attend churches in Eugene. Each week the Emerald will publish a list of the sermon topics of ministers of the city. The list today will appear on page 1. Hereafter it will be printed on the editorial page.

Easter Day's Programs to Draw Students

Churches and Campus Groups Schedule Many Programs

Methodists' Club Slates Breakfast

Sermons by Ministers Sunday Announced

Students and townspeople of Eugene will join in the commemoration of Easter tomorrow. Special services have been planned in all downtown churches and campus groups have arranged programs in remembrance of the day.

Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian student organizations have all made plans for breakfast meetings tomorrow morning and the Wesley club will hold an evening reception.

The Wesley club breakfast will be held at the Methodist church at 8 o'clock. Those in charge of the affair, an annual event, will be Gertrude Mourer, general chairman; Pauline Lehman, toastmistress; Ruth Johnson, ticket sale; Jessie Winchell, Wendolyn Shepard and Helenarr Grisson, kitchen committee. The program will include vocal selection by Mrs. C. A. Rickabaugh, and a talk on "What Easter Means to Me," by Elizabeth Hall, freshman in English.

A reception honoring Mary E. Findley, for three years director of student work at the Methodist church will be held at 6:30 in the evening. Miss Findley will leave the church on Monday to take a position aiding the work of the National Council for Prevention of War. Katherine Winchell and Betty Hughes will be in charge of the reception.

Baptist students on the campus will hold their second annual Easter breakfast at 8:30 at their church. A short devotional service, led by Rev. Henry W. Davis, student advisor of the campus Y. M. C. A., will open the event.

A program arranged by Harry Lamb will include a vocal solo by Esther Saager, violin solo by Clarence Veal, and a piano duet by Harry Lamb and Harold Ayers.

Will Kidwell will lead the group in singing college songs and David Devaputra will give a short talk on "Easter."

The Westminster club will have its Easter breakfast at 7:30 at the Westminster house. Rev. Maxwell Adams, student pastor, will lead a short communion service. Recently elected officers of the Westminster forum, student discussion group, will be installed at the breakfast.

Topics announced for sermons are: "Reliability of the Redeemer" by Reverend J. Franklin Haas at the Methodist Episcopal.

"God and Immorality" by Reverend Clay E. Palmer at the Congregational.

"Reality" at the Christian Science.

"The Religion of Jesus in its attitude toward the problems of death and afterlife" by Reverend Ernest Whitesmith at the Unitarian.

"If Christ Be Not Risen Again Then Our Preaching Is in Vain and Your Faith Is Also in Vain," high mass by Father Leipzig at St. Mary's Catholic. Mass also at 8:00.

"The Risen Lord" is the topic announced by Rev. R. E. Snodgrass who will fill the Christian pulpit. Choral Eucharist at 6:30 a. m. Holy Eucharist at 8:00, children's flower service at 9:30, sermon at 11:00 at St. Mary's Episcopal.

Magazine Comments On University Work

An editorial item in the April issue of the Industrial Arts magazine discusses a small pamphlet written by Professors F. L. Stetson and C. L. Huffaker of the education department. The work was published by the University Press.

The pamphlet outlines the method of procedure, the use of intelligence and achievement tests, how to obtain information about occupations, and how to make use of the factors in the actual processes of counseling.

'Incomplete' Grades To Be in by 5, April 10

The deadline of grades for incompletes has been set at 5 o'clock, April 10. Any grades turned in after then will not be counted for the grade points for house averages. Those who make up their incompletes have been requested either to check at the registrar's office to see that a grade has been reported or visit the professor to make sure he has sent a grade to the office.

Two New Actors Chosen for Movie

Lyons, Overstreet Given Posts Left Vacant

Two important changes in the cast for the Campus Movie were announced last night by the directorate, Jim Raley, Carvel Nelson, and Ben Milligan, with the selection of James Lyons and Bill Overstreet to replace Fletcher Udall and Web Hayes in the photoplay. Udall was unable to take on the additional work of the movie and Hayes did not return to school this term.

Lyons will portray the tricky villain in the film. Overstreet will be the athlete who is an upperclassman and has made quite a success of himself. He assumes rather a fatherly attitude towards the freshmen and sophomores on the campus.

James McBride, film supervisor, and Carvel Nelson will film the first shots of the screen play today, weather permitting. They will be comedy scenes featuring Norman Eastman and Phyllis Van Kimmell.

Work on the scenario was completed last night and it will be given out to the cast soon.

The appointment of Stan Cowins as chairman of the lighting committee, Tom Flanagan as head of the properties committee, and Amos Lawrence and Pauline Kidwell as assistants to Bob Miller as call boy, were also announced yesterday.

Production on the photoplay will get under way today if possible.

Pre-medics Men Form Honorary Club on Campus

Morris Temple Elected President of Group; 18 Members Chosen

'Asklepiads' Novel Name Of Upperclass Group

The organization of an honorary club for pre-medics students, to be known as "The Asklepiads," has just been completed, it was announced yesterday by Morris Temple, newly elected president of the group. There are 14 charter and four honorary members of the club. Dr. R. R. Huestis, professor of biology, will be adviser.

Jack Dowsett "The Asklepiads" will be an upperclass honor for students whose primary interest is in the medical field. Members of the club were chosen on the basis of interest, activity, and cooperative spirit from the highest 25 per cent of juniors and seniors.

The formation of such a group was conceived by Morris Temple who, with George Snyder and Maurice Schorenberg, worked out organization plans.

To Foster Fellowship The purpose of the club will be "to promote and foster fellowship, interest, research, learning, and scholarship among the pre-medics men who are students at the University of Oregon, and to foster a closer cooperation and understanding between the students and the faculty, and to promote the dissemination of knowledge of pre-medical and allied nature." The club was named for Aesculepius, Greek god of healing.

Four Professors Named Honorary members are: Dr. R. R. Huestis, professor of biology; Dr. A. R. Moore, head of the department of animal biology; Dr. Harry B. Yeocum, professor of zoology; and Frederick S. Dunn, professor of Latin.

Election to membership in the club will be made during the spring term each year, and men will be selected from the highest 25 per cent of the sophomore class. Election this year probably will include juniors and seniors.

Airplane Will Be Given to Group Of Student Pilots

Flying Instruction Offered Club at Cut Rates by Major Eckerson

A chance to obtain instruction in flying at less than the regular price and at the same time become part owner of a late model Waco airplane, fresh from the factory, has been presented to students and faculty members interested in forming a flying club of 15 members by Major G. H. Eckerson, head of the Eckerson Flying Service, and until recently chief pilot for the Habi Airways of Eugene. Offered the dealership for the well-known Waco plane for southern Oregon, Major Eckerson, one of the best known pilots on the Pacific coast and well known in army circles, has decided to form a company of his own. Yesterday he discussed the proposition with Leonard H. Delano, head of the University of Oregon Aero club.

The offer is an unusual chance for those interested in taking flying instruction, but who have been held
