

Art Museum Construction Starts May 1

Building To Be Lighted By Artificial Means To Save Works

Interior to Have Two Floor Levels

Memorial Court to Prince Lucian Campbell to Be Beautiful Feature

By CLARENCE F. CRAW

With the construction of the new Campbell Memorial Fine Arts building assured when the sum of $153,253.50 was subscribed by enthusiastic Eugene business men and residents when the efforts of the workers were culminated at the banquet in the Eugene hotel Monday night, vice-president Burt Brown Barker, in charge of the public relations for the university, announced yesterday that construction on the first unit of the building, to cost $165,000 will be started May first.

Building Romanesque Style

The building, of Romanesque style, will be one of the most beautiful structures when completed. The exterior of the building is to be done in tapestry brick with stone and terra cotta trim. It will have two major floor levels, but will be the height of the usual three story.

In keeping with modern museum design the entire interior will be illuminated with artificial light. This course is taken because experiments have proved that daylight and sunlight have a harmful effect on many art objects.

Large Rooms Planned

The ground floor of the structure will have space for two large exhibition rooms, two medium sized rooms, and one small space. The second floor will contain one large room, two medium rooms and two small rooms. High ceilings will be provided in the rooms especially designed to hold oriental art works.

A feature of the unit will be the memorial court to the late Prince Lucian Campbell at the rear. This will be surrounded by a covered corridor, with music floors and ornate

Elections will be conducted Tuesday, April 9, with Gracia Haggerty in charge.

Co-op Taking Orders For Announcements

Commencement announcements for the 1929 graduating class have been selected, according to Paul Wagner, chairman of the committee in charge of this part of commencement. Orders will be taken at the University Co-op for the announcements. Aiding Wagner in selection were Doris Wells, Doris Gramm and Philip Holmes. Francis McKenna, class president, assisted with the design.

New Emerald Job Given to Gregory

Office Will Supervise News Coverage

Carl Gregory, assistant managing editor of the Oregon Daily Emerald, was appointed chief day editor to fill a newly created position, by Arden X. Pangborn, editor. Gregory is a junior in journalism and has had considerable newspaper experience, including work on the Wallowa Sun, a country weekly.

On the Emerald Gregory has held positions as reporter, P. I. P. editor, telegraph editor and day editor. He is president of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity.

"The new position will make possible more closely knit organization of news coverage," Pangborn declared in announcing the appointment.

Ruth Newman, sophomore in journalism, will assume the position of day editor vacated by Gregory.

Commence Work On Infirmary by Clearing Ground

Three Cottages Moved At Corner of 14th And University

School Health Chiefs Are On Inspection Tours

The task of removing the three cottages at the corner of Fourteenth and University streets to make way for the new infirmary has begun, with the garden force of the university assisting and clearing the ground. The largest cottage will be moved across the alley to a space directly behind the isolation ward and Thacher cottage. It was used formerly to house part of the staff and equipment of the school of physical education.

The remaining two cottages were sold, out to W. C. Hall and was moved to his property on the corner of Fourteenth and Onyx streets. The other was moved to the west portion of Eugene.

Heads on Trips

Both Dr. F. N. Miller, director of the health service on the campus, and Dr. John P. Bovard, dean of the school of physical education, are on investigation trips of recent developments in health service and student hospitals.

Dr. Miller left Eugene March 23 to visit the health departments of Washington State college, Iowa State college, University of Wisconsin, Cornell, Princeton and Dartmouth. Dean Bovard left on a business trip to California today during which he will visit the health services of California institutions. He will return in a week.

Plans Await Reports

Until these investigations are reported no plans for the building can be drawn up although the firm of Lawrence and Hollis of Portland and Dean Bovard of Lawrence, of the school of architecture and allied arts, is a member, has started work on the preliminary plans.

A committee of 100 members has started the drive for $50,000 to match the state appropriation for the erection of the building. It is expected that the canvassing which will cover Portland and every town where there are parents of students in the university will be completed by June 15. The building, it is hoped, will be finished and ready for occupancy by the beginning of fall term next year.

Forensic League Lays Plans to Meet East

The Pacific Forensic league has decided that member universities and colleges may prepare the subject, "Resolved, that the foreign indictment of American culture is justified," so that next year teams from eastern colleges may be met in debates. The purpose of the league is to study the eastern manner of debating. Attempts will be made to secure debates with Harvard, or with other schools in the eastern states.

Professor Rae Speaks

Professor John M. Rae of the school of business administration here, spoke last night to a class at the Portland extension school on stock and purchase records for industrial layouts.

Joint Concert Of Orchestra Choir Tonight

Campus Organizations Present Musicals At McArthur

Student Tickets Admit to Program

Groups Played to Capacity Audiences in Portland Short Time Ago

A joint concert of the university symphonic choir of 100 voices, under direction of John Stark Evans, and the university symphony orchestra of 40 pieces, directed by Rex Underwood, will be given at McArthur court tonight at 8 o'clock. Both organizations recently played to capacity houses in Portland, the choir presenting a program at the Portland auditorium, and the orchestra playing a full week's engagement at the Portland theater to audiences totaling 40,000.

May Be Annual Event

"Although this joint concert was not originally included in the season's program series, both season and student body tickets will give free admission," Ronald Robnett, assistant graduate manager, announced yesterday. "If students show sufficient interest in the concert, it may be staged as an annual event hereafter."

Members of the choir, including both men's and women's glee clubs, and solo members of the orchestra gave a radio program over KORE from 3 to 4 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, through courtesy of McMorran and Washburne, as a sample of the program to be presented this evening.

Orchestra Plays

The program will be as follows: "March of the Boyards" (Halvorsen), university orchestra. "Waters Ripple and Flow" (Czechoslovakian folk song arranged by Deems Taylor), men's glee club. "La Fera" (Lacome), university orchestra.

The Blessed Damsel (Debussy), women's glee club, with incidental solo by Doris Helen Patterson. "Overture, Ruy Blas" (Mendelssohn), university orchestra.

Cantata, "The Highwayman" (Deems Taylor), choir, with incidental solos by Ed Fisher and Jack Dennis. "March and chorus, 'Tannhauser'" (Wagner), orchestra and choir.

University Movie Gains Approval Of Mrs. Gerlinger

Regent Thinks Production Will Show High Schools Real College Life

Mrs. Irene H. Gerlinger, member of the university board of regents, who was in Eugene last night, inquired about the campus movie being filmed here, and expressed her highest enthusiasm for the undertaking.

"I am very pleased with the idea," Mrs. Gerlinger said. "This picture, when sent all over the state will surely prove a great benefit to the university."

Such a full length feature, the regent declared, will be indicative of the initiative ability of the students. The picture will be of educational benefit and will give high school students throughout the state a clear idea of life at the state university.

Mrs. Gerlinger expressed a wish to visit the campus before the end of the term, and view the filming of the movie. She offered all the help that she might give in furthering the success of the picture.

Sheldon, Gould Visit Schools in California

Henry D. Sheldon, dean of the school of education, has gone to San Francisco and Oakland with H. R. Gould, Eugene school superintendent, to study the system which the education school of the University of California uses in placing its advanced students in positions as practice teachers throughout the high schools of the bay cities. Purpose of the study will be to get ideas for effecting a closer cooperation between the Eugene junior and senior high schools and the education school of the university.

Sheldon and Gould probably will return to Eugene on Saturday.

Montana Debaters Ready

Don Moe Winner In Opening Play Of Golf Tourney

Oregon Captain Takes Lead Over Field of 12 in Tryouts

Scores Fail to Impress, but Doped to Improve

Don Moe, Portland, Oregon state golf champion and captain of the Oregon team, led the field of qualifiers for the varsity when he turned in a 36-hole medal tournament over the Eugene country club course. George Will was the second qualifier with 160.

The other six men who qualified for the ladder tournament organized by Moe to select the varsity team were Francis Heitkemper, 165; Nelson McCook, 170; William Palmberg, 171; Isaac Staples, 173; Dow Stephens, 180; and Steadman Shaw, 183. Each qualifier may challenge two positions above his own in the ladder.

Candidates for the varsity who did not qualify for the ladder may get into the tournament by challenging and defeating the eighth man. These candidates are Bob Hammond, Mike Gray, Dick Schroeder, Tom Chave, and Chan Brown.

None of the scores were exceptional, according to Moe, but the men are still in early season form, and by the time the first match with Washington here May 4, all the players should be down in the seventies.

Craftsman Club To Elect Officers At Annual Meeting

Entertainment Is Feature Of Gathering Held This Evening

An election of officers for the coming year, a short business meeting and a social gathering after the meeting are the events slated for the annual election meeting of the Craftsman club, campus Masonic organization, at 7:30 this evening.

Nominations of the candidates for the officers have already been made, and the officers, who will serve next school year, will be chosen and a short business meeting will follow the election after which the remainder of the evening will be spent in entertainment. President Leland Shaw stated yesterday.

"All of those who are eligible for membership who wish to join the club may apply at this time," Shaw said.

Much activity is planned for the club for the spring term, the chief of which will center around the degree team which will travel around the state conferring degrees at various points. The first of these trips will be about the middle of this month when the degree team will go to Ashland to put on the work for the lodge there.

Dean Allen Addresses Campus German Club

Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism, addressed the German club last night on "The Newspapers of Germany," contrasting American and German newspapers, and pointing out the good qualities of each. Dean Allen became especially interested in the German press last year, while on a tour with American journalists through Europe.

Callison Chosen New Freshman Coach; To Assume Post In Fall

Medford Mentor Agreeable to Terms of University After Negotiations of Long Standing Finished

His Teams in Southern Oregon City Have Won Two State Football and Basketball Titles

By JOE FIGNEY

Rumors that Prince Callison, athletic coach at Medford high school, will coach the Oregon freshmen next year were confirmed last night when his appointment was announced by Joe McKeown, president of the student body and chairman of the executive council. Negotiations have been underway by Virgil D. Earl, director of athletics, for sometime, but until last night no definite arrangements had been completed.

Callison succeeds Bill Reinhart as frosh mentor. Several weeks ago Reinhart was made varsity backfield coach and first assistant to Captain John J. McEwan, vacating his position as freshman coach when Gene Vidal, varsity assistant, resigned to go into business in the east.

The Oregon officials have expressed themselves as being particularly satisfied with the new frosh coach. Callison, a former Oregon star, has made an impressive record at the southern Oregon school where he coached since 1923.

Since 1925 Medford has been considered the unofficial interscholastic football champion of the state. It was not, however, until 1928 that recognition was gained. In that year Medford defeated Grant high school of Portland and claimed an undisputed right to the title. Last year the southern team successfully defended its title by trouncing Benson Tech at Portland.

In his first year at Medford, 1923, Callison lost his only game in seven years. Through his success Callison has attracted the attention of all sport followers in the state.

Callison's triumph as a coach has been none the less great in basketball or baseball. Medford has twice won the state hoop championship since 1923. The first was in 1924 and the second this year when Medford defeated Astoria in the finals of the annual state tournament at Salem. Medford has represented the southern district each year since 1923, and besides winning two championships, finished second in 1928 and third in two other years.

Is Ex-Oregon Star

Since 1923 Medford has won four southwestern Oregon baseball championships. As there was no organized state baseball tournament, the southern Oregon team has had no opportunity of capturing a state title in that sport.

Prink Callison graduated from the University of Oregon in June 1923, and was immediately appointed coach at Medford. He was star center on the Webfoot grid teams of 1918, '19, '21, and '22. Although Callison did not play for Oregon in 1920, he was a member of the Olympic club team of San Francisco.

MEDFORD, Or., April 2.—(Special)—Prince Callison, coach of athletics, will assume his duties as freshman coach at the University of Oregon in the fall.

Beta Alpha Psi to Hold Lunch at College Side

Beta Alpha Psi, national accounting honorary, will hold its weekly luncheon forum at noon today in the College Side Inn.

Speakers of today's program will be Clifford Stalsberg, John Scrivner and Emerson Bolz, all of Portland, and former students in the school of business administration.

Plans for the entertainment of the Oregon State society of C. P. A.'s will be discussed. Last year the society was entertained by the Corvallis chapter of Beta Alpha Psi.

The annual meeting will be in Eugene this year, and members of the Corvallis chapter will be in attendance, Carl Rodgers, president of the local chapter, said.

Professor's Music Recital Held Pleasing

Critic Praises English Instructor

Arthur Hicks Called Delightful Pianist

By ALICE GORMAN

Arthur Hicks, winner of the Juliard extension scholarship, last night opened his piano recital at the music building with Beethoven's Sonata Quasi Una Fantasia, Op. 27, No. 1. Mr. Hicks is another of the campus' excellent technicians. He is a calm, cool, self-possessed artist; his legatos are smooth; his runs are easy, light and delicate; his shadings are nice and well-toned. In short, Mr. Hicks is a delightful pianist. There was a simplicity and deliberateness about the last two movements that Mr. Hicks brought out in the Beethoven style.

The first number of the second group, the Moszkowski Barcarolle in A Minor, was undoubtedly the best achievement on the program as well as the most popular. It is a number particularly characteristic of Moszkowski and his countrymen, in the minor key and with a bit of melancholy beneath its lightness.

Mr. Hicks also played a composition of his teacher, George Hopkins, the Gavotte in A Minor, another bit for technical display in its staccatos, and Arthur Hicks doesn't fail in the technique. Schumann's familiar Vogel als Prophet or Prophet Bird, is always a well received number perhaps because of the modern note we catch in it, and it was played like a modern too.

The last number was the MacDowell Concerto in D Minor, Op. 79, No. 2, played with organ accompaniment by Frances Pierce. The MacDowell Concerto is a different sort of concerto, not too heavy and hinting of the wien, superstitious and supernatural. The Presto Giocoso movement was especially fearful and hectic and showed a virile attack.

The main thing that is lacking in all the recitals that have been given at the music building with a possible exception or two, is temperament, feeling, emotion. Too much emphasis is being laid on technique.
