

Spring Term Busy One For Oregon Men

Three Different Sports
Activities Open on
April 26

Oregon Staters First Opponents

High School Athletes Will Meet in Third Relay
Tourney at Eugene

By JOE PIGNEY

Oregon athletic teams are booked for a busy season once the conference schedules for the spring term get under way. Thirty-three contests in a little over a month make sport activities almost a daily event. The season will open April 26 when three different sports will start. Oregon State will furnish the competition in all three matches. A baseball game against the Aggies will be played in Eugene, a dual relay track meet will be held at Corvallis, and a dual golf meet at Eugene.

High School Relays Set

On the following day Oregon's baseball team will play a return encounter with the Oregon Staters at Corvallis. On the same day more than 200 high school athletes will compete here in the third annual relay carnival sponsored by the University of Oregon.

The season will continue until June 1, a few days before the beginning of final examinations. On that date the last of the Oregon and Oregon State baseball series will be played at Corvallis. While the ball team is away, the finals of the Pacific coast conference track and field meet will be run off on Hayward field.

Managers to Meet at Spokane
There is only one event of importance set for after June 1. It is the annual meeting of the Pacific coast conference of officials and graduate managers at Spokane, June 13, 14, and 15.

A complete list of dates announced by Jack W. Benefield, graduate manager, including those for varsity and freshman baseball, varsity and freshman track, and tennis and golf:

April 26—Oregon State baseball at Corvallis; Oregon State relay at Corvallis; Oregon State golf at Eugene.

April 27—Oregon State baseball at Corvallis; third annual Oregon high school relay carnival at Eugene.

May 2—Oregon State freshman relay at Eugene.

May 3—Idaho baseball at Eugene.

May 4—Idaho baseball at Eugene; University of Washington relays at Seattle; Washington golf, place undecided; Oregon State tennis at Corvallis.

May 6—Washington State baseball at Eugene.

May 7—Washington State baseball at Eugene.

May 10—Washington baseball at Eugene.

May 11—Washington baseball at Eugene; Washington track at Seattle; Washington tennis at Eugene.

May 16—Pacific coast conference golf tournament at Seattle.

May 17—Oregon baseball team starts on road trip; Pacific coast conference golf tournament at Seattle; Pacific coast conference tennis tournament at Los Angeles; Oregon State rook baseball at Corvallis.

May 24—Oregon State rook track; Oregon State rook baseball at Corvallis; Oregon State golf at Corvallis.

May 25—Oregon State track at Eugene; Oregon State freshman baseball at Eugene.

May 31—Oregon State baseball at Eugene; Pacific Northwest and Pacific coast conference track championships begin in Eugene.

June 1—Oregon State baseball at Corvallis; Pacific coast conference track meet at Eugene.

June 13, 14, 15—Coast conference meet at Spokane.

Unitarian Students To Give Play Sunday

"Finders Keepers," a one-act play by George Kelly, will be presented Sunday night, by a society composed of Unitarian university students, at the Unitarian church. In the cast are: Jean Tompkins, Evelyn Wainke, and David Williams. The play will begin at 8 o'clock, preceded by a lecture by Rev. Whit-smith on "The Fundamental Value of Honesty." "Finders Keepers" will illustrate the principle. It is the first of a series of dramatic services planned for Sunday evenings.

68 New Students Enroll This Term

Total Attendance Beats
Last Year by 112

A new high mark in enrollment at the University of Oregon has been set with the enrollment of 68 new students for the spring term. The total for the year is now 3240, an increase of 112 over the total for last year. This number is expected to be increased by 20 or 25, since students are still registering for graduate and other work this term. The figure does not include students taking extension, correspondence or summer school work, or in the medical school in Portland, all of which is given by the university for credit. Addition of these would more than double the campus enrollment.

Student Offers Instruction in Japanese Tongue

Yoshii Otsuka to Give Free
Evening Lessons in Native Language

Offer of free instruction in Japanese language is made today in the Emerald Campus Forum by Yoshii Otsuka, graduate student in sociology. Mr. Otsuka, a graduate of the University of Tokyo, is now attending the University of Oregon in order to further his aim of bringing the United States and Japan in closer harmony.

Tentative plans for the course indicate instruction from 7 to 9 Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings. If these hours are not suitable, other arrangements may be made. Mr. Otsuka advises all who wish to enter the course to see Winchester Heicher, Zeta hall, where the courses will be conducted.

Credit for Degree Obtained by Radio

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, Los Angeles, April 3.—(UPI)—Credit toward a university of Southern California through its radio extension study degree may now be obtained. Lectures are broadcast nightly from Bovard auditorium on the campus and at the end of the course which requires the same length of time as a semester an examination is given under supervision and the credit entered.

All lecturers are members of the Southern California university faculty, and such subjects as the "Growth and Development of the Child," political science, psychology, aviation, business administration, short story writing, journalism, and literature of different countries are offered. Enrollment requires the paying of a tuition fee after which the study schedules are sent out by mail.

Although the student has almost the same advantage of contact with the professor as in the classroom he has the added advantage of being able to tune in on another station when the lecture is boring.

Frosh Dances to Start With All-campus Affair

Frosh matinee dances started last term will be resumed with an all-campus dance at the men's gymnasium next Saturday at 2:30. Campus dress will be the order of the day at the coming affair, according to Kenneth Jette, member of the committee in charge.

The dance will be under the supervision of five members of the freshman class recently appointed by Brian Minnaugh, president. Besides Jette, members of the group are Beatrice Lewton, Jack Stipe, Elizabeth Drain and Don Carvel.

Because the dance sponsored last term was not a financial success, girls attending the coming event will be charged a dime, Jette declared. A truck will call for all girls planning to attend.

Revision of Night Staff To Be Made by Tonkon

Revision of the present arrangement of night editors and assistants as well as of the personnel of the night staff of the Oregon Daily Emerald will be made at a meeting of all present members of the night staff and all candidates for positions on the staff to be held in the library of the school of journalism Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, it was announced yesterday by Harry Tonkon, chief night editor.

Non-members of the present staff have also been urged to be present at the confab.

Faculty of 100 Selected For Post Session

Interest Is Evidenced by Numerous States in Summer Work

S. S. Queen Leaves Seattle August 8

Graduation Exercises to Be
New Feature This Year
On Campus

With a faculty composed of more than 100 outstanding educators of Oregon and other states, and the innovation of a "floating university" cruise to Alaska as part of the post session, the University of Oregon summer school attendance probably will set a new record this year, according to Alfred Powers, director. Requests for information concerning the school have been received from practically every state in the Union.

The regular sessions will start June 24 on both the Portland and Eugene campuses. The post session at Eugene will start August 5 and close August 30. The S. S. Queen, which will take the party to Alaska, will leave Seattle August 8 and return August 21. Following the trip there will be a two weeks' session in Eugene.

Only in special cases will it be possible to earn more than 15 credits in the two sessions. The normal load will be nine hours for the first period, and six for the second. A new feature this year will be graduation exercises held at the end of the session for those who have just completed their work for a degree.

Professors Enlisted
Among prominent educators who will be at the Eugene sessions are Dr. Grace M. Fernald, professor of education at the University of California at Los Angeles; Dr. Jacob Zeitlin, professor of English, University of Illinois; Laurence J. Saunders, associate professor in experimental college, University of Wisconsin; Ernest Sutherland Bates, formerly a professor of philosophy at Oregon and University of California who is now on the staff of National Dictionary of American Biography; John R. Mez, University of Arizona department of economics; Charles N. Reynolds, associate professor of sociology, Stanford university.

Faculty members of the university who will teach in Portland include Thomas H. Gentle, professor of education; A. L. Lomax, professor of business administration; Ralph D. Casey, professor of journalism; and E. E. DeCou, head of the department of mathematics. At Eugene the staff includes Nowland B. Zane, professor of art; David E. Faville, dean of the school of business administration; O. F. Stafford, head of the department of chemistry; H. D. Sheldon, dean of the school of education; C. V. Boyer, head of the department of English; Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism; John J. Landsbury, dean of the school of music; Edmund S. Conklin, head of the department of psychology, and a number of others.

Portland People Engaged

In addition to educators from the university and other parts of the country, several Portland people will be on the instruction staff this summer. Art courses will be given by three Portland artists, Esther W. Wuest, supervisor of art in the public schools; Ruth E. Halvorsen, and Natalie Deatrich Grey, both instructors in the Portland center. Robert Krohn, supervisor of physical education in Portland schools, will be a member of the coaching school staff; Walter W. R. May, of the staff of the Oregonian, will teach journalism; and William H. Boyer, supervisor of music in the Portland schools, and Frederick W. Goodrich, organist, will teach music.

Noted educators from out of the state who will teach in the Portland session include Dr. Arthur E. Nilsson, professor of economics and sociology at Yale university; Dr. Homer P. Rainey, formerly professor of education at the University of Oregon and now president of Franklin college; Dr. Frank Chapman Sharp, professor of philosophy at the University of Wisconsin; Frank Prentice Rand, editor of the Signet, Amherst, Mass.; Melvin D. Solve, professor of English, University of Arizona; Dr. Joseph Schafer, superintendent of the Wisconsin Historical society; Benjamin H. Williams, professor of political science, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Ulysses Grant Weatherly, professor of sociology, University of Indiana; and Dr. Ada C. McCown,

Book by Professor Draws
Him to This State

Here for the dual purpose of promoting friendly relations between the United States and Japan and to gain a knowledge of sociology and social conditions in this country, Yoshi Otsuka, of Tokyo, graduate of Waseda university, has enrolled in the graduate school of the University of Oregon.

Although he has only been here a few weeks Mr. Otsuka is already active in promoting friendly international relations, and he believes that in such a project contacts between individuals will do most for a better understanding. Acting upon his theory, he has obtained the names of all students of the University of Oregon and has sent them to Waseda university students. These students will then send small gifts to their fellow students here, and an exchange of correspondence is expected to follow.

Mr. Otsuka was encouraged to come to Oregon by a book written by Dr. P. A. Parsons, head of the school of sociology here. He is studying on the campus this year. He will spend next year in the school of applied sociology of the university in Portland. From there he will go to Columbia university, and following a trip to Europe, will return to Japan.

While here Mr. Otsuka is devoting a large portion of his time to educational systems. He recently

SERMONS LISTED TODAY

This morning's issue of the Emerald contains a list of sermons to be given in Eugene churches tomorrow morning. This list will be made more complete as time goes on and will be published every Saturday morning for the benefit of those students on the campus who are interested.

Four Schools Present Plays On Guild Stage

Milwaukie, Marshfield
St. Helens, Newberg
Represented

Last Offering on Program Praised

Annual Prep Drama Meet
Ends Tonight; to Give
Cup to Winner

By PHYLLIS VAN KIMMELL

The high school drama tournament came to quite a decided climax last night when four plays were presented at the Guild theater. The plays, representing Milwaukie Union, St. Helens, Marshfield, and Newberg high schools, were, as a whole, a pretty heavy undertaking for high school students. With the exception of the Newberg play, "The Boor," the evening's repertoire was unusually heavy, consisting of a very tragic, a very poignant and a highly dramatic group.

The first play, "The Valiant," which was presented by the Milwaukie Union high school, is a play widely known in the realm of one-acts. It is a story of a stoical young man condemned to die who has built around himself an air of mystery which cannot be penetrated by the kindly warden, the saintly priest, nor even the charming young lady, who has the only feminine part in the play. The cast, I think, was extremely well-balanced. The three leading characters, Howard Steib, Charles Elwell, and Jenn Jameson, showed a degree of ability far above the average. Mr. Elwell was nearer to a high plane of character portrayal, both through voice intonation and gesture, than any actor throughout the evening.

The second play, "The Eldest," presented by St. Helens high school, was remarkable for its one outstanding character, Rose, played by Shirley McLennan. Miss McLennan showed very good pantomime technique and was most convincing. Her tragic sob as she bent over the torn remains of her only love letters, was realistic enough to obviously affect members of the audience. The rest of the cast did their parts smoothly, and the entire act was well coordinated.

"Dust of the Road," with a cast from Marshfield high school, labored exceedingly well under a big difficulty. The lighting for their play was intended to include footlights, and without these a certain amount of effect was lost. The play was a weird commanding thing. There were dramatic passages which did not receive all they should have, but Cynthia Hall as Prudence Steele, was exactly the cold, heartless woman that she portrayed. The atmosphere of the play was enhanced by a strange green light that shone steadily on the figure of the "Presence."

After approximately two hours and a half of very serious drama, the last play, "The Boor," from Newberg, relieved the tension with a lot of good laughs. Gordon Devine should be commended for his lack of restraint, which is the essence of burlesque and farce. He was good, and the audience showed its approval. He had enough stage presence, too, to carry off any unexpected hitches which occurred.

The casts of the three plays in full are as follows: "The Valiant," Charles Elwell, Mario Bisio, Archie Ballis, Howard Steib, Edwin Fenwick, and Jenn Jameson.

"The Eldest," Shirley McLennan, Beulah Sharp, Louise George, Vernon Peck, Bertram Trossell, Olleta Boyed, Edward Bothe.

"Dust of the Road," Cynthia Hall.

Physics Professors Receive Fellowships

Hubert J. Yearian and Bruce E. Foster, graduate assistants in the physics department, have received appointments to positions in other schools. Yearian will be teaching fellow at the University of Purdue with opportunity to study for a Ph.D. degree. Purdue is the second largest technical school in the United States, ranking next to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Foster has accepted a graduate assistantship at Stanford university where he, too, will study for a Ph.D. Foster was offered a research fellowship in X-rays at Purdue, but was unable to accept, having previously taken the other position.

Frolic Programs Called in Today

Head of Women's Party
Picks Committees

Sketches for the programs for April Frolic will be handed in to Merdina Medler, chairman of the programs committee, sometime today. The programs will be printed with the name of the artist appearing thereon.

The Frolic is an entertainment for women only and will this year be given on the evening of April 20, in the Woman's building. Jane Cochrane is general chairman and heads of committees are Elizabeth Strain, Alberta Rives, Eleanor Flanagan, Sally Hughson, Merdina Medler, Marion Sten, Dorothy Kirk, Edna Dunbar, Dorothy Eberhard, Gladys Chusen, Augusta Gerlinger, Grace Gardner, Reba Brogdon, Dorothy Leusch.

It has been announced that there will be no men's smoker held that evening, due to the trouble that was caused last year.

Private Preview Of Campus Movie Held at Theater

Eastman, Comedian, Gets
Laughs With Roller
Skating Scene

The lights went out; then came a streak of white, and Norman Eastman appeared roller skating down University street in front of McArthur court. Such was the first scene of the campus movie released at a private preview at the McDonald theater last night.

Norman gave the impression of being a first-class roller skater as he did his stuff on the screen while laughs came from the audience consisting of the movie cast, the directing staff, and general assistants.

There followed a scene showing Phyllis Van Kimmell as an unsophisticated freshman driving up to the Woman's building in a typical campus Ford. The next was a picture of Verne Elliott and Dorothy Burke, leads in the film, ambling through the campus between the main library and McClure hall, and meeting Marian McGowan in front of the senior bench so that Dorothy could take a camera picture of Verne, who sat on the bench with a sun umbrella. James Lyons also appeared in this scene.

Further scenes will be viewed by the cast as they are developed, according to the directing staff, headed by James McBride of Hollywood and including James Raley, student head, Bea Milligan, Carvel Nelson, Ronald Hubbs and George H. Godfrey, faculty advisor.

First Meeting of Revision Group Scheduled Today

Committee Will Consider
Amendment of Student
Constitution

The committee on constitutional revision appointed on Thursday by Joe McKeown, president of the associated students, will hold its first meeting this morning. McKeown announced last night. Individual members of the committee yesterday spent time in consideration of the constitution in effect at other colleges, particularly those on the Pacific coast. McKeown has a complete file of such documents and a general comparison between them and Oregon's constitution will be one of the bases for the decisions of the committee.

Those appointed were Bob Hynd, Ron Hubbs, Tom Stoddard and Helen Peters. Although McKeown will be an ex-officio member of the group he will not exercise a vote, he declared last night.

A second meeting of the group has been planned for Sunday, since intensive work will be necessary if faults in the present document be remedied before the annual election of student body officers on May 2. Provided changes suggested by the committee affect the number of elective officers, the amendments proposed will have to be acted upon by the student body before the regular elections.

According to McKeown it is probable that the committee will be able to make some kind of report by the middle of next week.

Goodwin to Return

Charles Goodwin, who was on this campus last year as a graduate assistant in the physics department, will return next fall to complete work for a Ph.D. degree. During the present year Goodwin has been a physics instructor at Oregon State.

Carvel Nelson Is Winner Of Yearly Prize

'Then Ask Not Where-
fore' Adjudged Best
Short Story

Bob Hunt Named For Second Place

Anne Bricknell Third and
Wilfred Brown Fourth

John Carvel Nelson, senior in English, Portland, was yesterday announced winner of the first prize of $50 in the Edison Marshall short story contest for this year. "Then Ask Not Wherefore" is the title of his story. Second place, for which no prize was offered, was taken by Robert Hunt, a special student in journalism, with "In Any Language." "Past the Popcorn Wagon," by Anne Bricknell, junior in journalism, placed third, and "The Fern," by Wilfred Brown, also a junior in journalism, was fourth. A difference of 1.5 points separated the last two manuscripts in the judges' scores.

Nelson was the last-elected member of Ye Tabard Inn of Sigma Upsilon, men's national honorary writing fraternity, which Edison Marshall, donor of the $50 prize, was active in founding on the campus in 1914. Nelson, Miss Bricknell, and Hunt are members of Professor W. P. G. Thatcher's class in beginning short story writing, while Wilfred Brown is enrolled in the authorship class. Hunt is a member of Ye Tabard Inn.

Judges for this year's contest, which was the thirteenth annual awarding of the prize, were Mrs. Constance Hitchcock, of Eugene, who writes occasional book reviews for the Eugene Register; C. M. Hyskall, of Portland, writer and manager of the Portland Press club; and Eleanor T. MacMillan, also of Portland, who is in charge of the literary section of the Journal. Forty manuscripts were submitted to the judges. This was ten more stories than were entered in the competition last year.

Nelson's story, "Then Ask Not Wherefore," carries at the beginning a quotation from Wordsworth: "—Then ask not wherefore, here alone,

Conversing as I may,
I sit upon this old gray stone,
And dream my time away."

The story concerns an apparently shiftless dreamer by the name of Balt McCreedy who surprised his wife and friends in the dusty town of Littleton, Illinois, by putting over a clever hoax, gaining several thousand dollars for himself and a job for his jobless son-in-law.

Lutheran Student Group Will Hold Party on Sunday

Plans Will Be Made for Joint Meeting to Be Held in Future

Lutheran students of the university will be guests of the Bethesda Lutheran church Sunday evening from 6:00 to 9:00 p. m. This is the third meeting of the students to be held in the various local Lutheran churches.

The speaker for the occasion will be the Rev. Spencer Peterson of Portland, a pastor of the Danish synod.

An hour of entertainment and refreshments will precede the address. Miss Helen Elliott will play two violin solos during the social hour and other special numbers are being arranged for the devotional program.

Chief business to be taken up at this meeting will be the selection of a time and place for the annual joint meeting of the Lutheran students attending the Monmouth, Corvallis and Eugene schools. About eighty students from the out of town schools are expected to come here for the meeting which is to be in the nature of an all day outing.

Women's Gym Open Saturday Afternoons

Beginning today the women's gym will be open for use every Saturday afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock. Baseball games will be held each week, and those out for intramural sports will be permitted to practice at this time if they wish. The swimming tank also will be open.
