

Five Coaching Courses Open This Summer

McEwan, Reinhart, Hayward, Fletcher to Direct Athletic Work

Five coaching courses are being offered at the 1929 University of Oregon summer session, June 24 to July 6. All of the classes are to be held in McArthur court. The instruction includes coaching of football, basketball, baseball, track, and a special basketball course open only to women. Most of the Web-foot coaches will be on the campus for the session, and those intending to specialize in coaching will have an opportunity to study under such men as Captain John J. McEwan, William J. Reinhart, William L. Hayward, and W. D. Fletcher.

The classes are so arranged that a person wishing to take all of the courses in theory and practice can take them without finding any one conflicting with the others.

Coach an All-American
The course in football will be taught by Captain McEwan, former head coach at West Point and present head coach at the University. McEwan is a former all-American center and has made an excellent showing at Oregon, having won the northwest championship last fall. His course will include the history of football, planning the season, fundamentals such as blocking, tackling, interference, line and backfield work, with practical demonstrations as far as possible. Last fall the Web-foot line was one of the best in the conference and McEwan plans to emphasize his system of play.

William J. Reinhart will hold classes in baseball from 1 to 3 o'clock each afternoon and will teach basketball coaching in the evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. He is well qualified to teach these sports as he is coach in both activities and has produced championship teams. His basketball teams are always feared by other conference members, and last year his baseball squad won the northwest championship, with a fighting chance to repeat the performance this season.

Short Pass to Be Taught
The course in basketball will include both demonstrations and lectures. Reinhart will explain the drizzle, various types of passing and of shooting, and all varieties of defense and offense. He will place much emphasis on the short pass and the pivot.

The course in baseball includes instruction in the best form for batting, base-running, pitching, and catching. There will also be demonstrations in the fundamentals of inside baseball.

Track will be taught daily from 10 to 12 by Bill Hayward, Oregon's grand old man of the cinder path. He has been selected five times on the coaching staff of the American Olympic team and has a long record of success. He plans to have practical demonstrations of the various forms and methods of training for all track events.

A new course will be given this year in the theory of basketball by W. D. Fletcher, head of the training department of the university. This class will be limited to women.

Theta Sigma Phi To Sell Books On Library Steps

Proceeds Will Finance President on Trip To Convention

An auction of modern fiction books will be held Wednesday on the library steps. Theta Sigma Phi, women's honorary journalism fraternity is sponsoring the auction, the proceeds of which will go towards sending east the new president of the organization, Elise Schroeder, to the national convention at Columbus, Ohio, in June.

Scotty Milligan, auctioneer supreme, and Don Johnston, co-author of the Junior Vod-Vil, will act as salesmen to inveigle the crowd into bidding once more before the cry of "going-going-gone" ends it all.

According to Dorothy Baker, who has charge of the affair more than fifty books, which include some of the very latest fiction, will be offered for sale at their own price.

The books are from a rent shelf started last year by Theta Sigma Phi, but which was discontinued this year.

Casey to Teach Portland Classes

New Ph.D. to be Assisted By Walter W. R. May

Journalism in Portland Summer Session will be given by Ralph D. Casey, Ph.D., member of the faculty of the University of Oregon School of Journalism, and Walter W. R. May, city advertising manager of the Portland Oregonian. Professor Casey is just now finishing his thesis for the Ph.D. degree, having done advanced work at the University of Wisconsin in the study of forces affecting public opinion in the United States. He has been at Wisconsin on a two years' leave from the University of Oregon to complete his work for the doctorate.

Ralph Casey

Dr. Casey will give one course in public opinion, the subject on which he is achieving recognition as possibly the best informed journalism instructor in the country, and one in magazine writing. Several years ago he was associate editor of the American Boy during his summer vacation from the University of Oregon.

Mr. May's journalistic experience has been wide and was obtained in several widely-separated parts of the country. Before the war he was assistant city editor of the Oregonian. Later he was financial editor of the Fargo (N. D.) Daily News, general assignment reporter on the Minneapolis Tribune and copy editor on the New York Daily News. Returning to the Oregonian, he was for two years executive news editor, leaving there to head the city advertising staff. He was in charge of the journalistic instruction in Portland Summer Session last year.

summer session, announced Dr. Dan E. Clark, assistant director of the extension division. The plan was adopted at the regular meeting of the faculty, Wednesday.

*All candidates for a degree must file their applications at the Registrar's office during the first week-end of the regular Summer Session or during the first week of the post session. The diploma fee must be paid by August 24.

A good speaker and some special music will be secured for the exercises, Dr. Clark stated and the entire program will be simple and pleasing if not elaborate. About thirty degrees will be granted.

Annual Boat Trip Portland Feature

Mrs. Sharp in Charge of Big Summer Bust

One of the high lights of the U. of O. summer session in Portland will be the boat trip down the Willamette and up the Columbia.

Plans are sponsored by the Summer School students. Last year about 250 faculty members and students made the trip, and from all reports a very enjoyable time was had by all during this six-hour cruise. Arrangements are worked out under the direction of Mrs. Margaret M. Sharp, secretary of Portland center.

Margaret Sharp

The program always includes a very jazzy, peppy orchestra for those wishing to dance, and dancing begins immediately after the boat leaves the dock. Singing and games provide amusement for those not participating in the dancing. Delicious refreshments are also a tradition of this affair, as no one is allowed to come home hungry.

Last year, not only the Portland session students attended, but both faculty members and students came down to Portland, for this trip, from Eugene. Members of the student body took care of the ticket sale and refreshments. On this trip the faculty folk forget their dignity and mix freely with the students, taking an active part in all the fun.

Geologists Will Travel During Summer Term

Field Work to be Done in Central Oregon; One Course on Boat

Field geology, a course involving a trip to central Oregon will be offered during the University of Oregon Summer Session, according to Dr. E. L. Packard, professor of geology, who is in charge.

This work will cover the entire period of six weeks, one week of which will be used to work in plain table and topography map-making on the campus. After this the summer camp will be made around Mitchell and Supplee. This country is within the Ochoco National Forest of central Oregon, offering unusual opportunities for the study of a wide range of geologic formations extending back into the Paleozoic. They include highly fossiliferous, Carboniferous, Triassic, Jurassic and Cretaceous marine beds and several horizons containing Tertiary vertebrates.

Fauna Fossils Sought
Several trips will be made around this district, some perhaps to the edge of the Blue Mountains. Most of the work will be done, however, in Dr. Packard's favorite territory, around Mitchell. Examples of fauna fossil will also be secured, it is thought, as in this district excellent specimens were secured by Dr. E. T. Hodge, professor of geology, who took the field trip last year.

After the group has spent one month in this study it will return and be allowed one week to make reports. These completed, each student will be allowed nine hours credit toward graduation. Six advanced students in geology have already signed for the trip.

Geography Course on Ship

This, however, is not the only course offered by the department of geology. In the Post-session trip to Alaska, Warren D. Smith, Ph.D., head of the department, will conduct a class in geography and geology of Alaska. Work on this will be done on the boat and trips inland upon reaching the destination.

Dr. E. T. Hodge, at the end of this term, will begin his year's leave. July 13 he will sail from Portland, arriving after a trip through Japan, China, Italy, and many other European countries, in New York on December 24. Dr. Hodge believes that the volcanoes of Italy and Africa are the same as those found here in Oregon, and it is this that he intends to study, securing enough material to make proof of his idea possible.
