The Mother's Organization

JUNIOR Week-end has incorporated one very worthwhile feature... Mother's Day. It was undoubtedly the greatest success on the program. Very well planned and efficiently conducted, the student committee entertained several hundred mothers, presenting them with a more intimate perspective of Oregon. The mothers, quick to respond, found the week-end an incentive for state-wide organization.

The value of such an organization is immense. It is the mothers who take the greatest and more personal interest in student life. Their intense interest can now be expressed in creative work. Mothers have always been an eager ally in development of educational facilities and student living conditions. The more we encourage parental interest in our scholastic and extra-curricula activity, the greater will be the stability and value of the university. The originators of such a move are to be heartily congratulated.

International House at Oregon

IT is easy to foresee possibilities for large benefits to come from the movement just inaugurated on the campus of the University of Oregon for establishment of an international house, where young men students of all nations will live and study together and get to know each other well. The project is almost an innovation in American college life, as but two other universities, Columbia and California, have had international houses up to now. These houses are maintained by endowment. Perhaps some day somebody will endow the one at Oregon. Philanthropy could find no nobler outlet.

It is fair to assume that the foreign students at Oregon are quality men, just as most of the American students there are quality men. That is they have minds and ideals and aspirations above the general run of people. If they were not of that type they would hardly have taken the trouble to come to a far country for the sake of an education. Living in the international house these young men will come to know and to understand each other. They will learn from each other about the ideals and life of each and all of the nations represented there. With understanding always there come respect and esteem. Distrust is usually due to lack of understanding. It is human nature to suspect that which is not known or known about. So by the time the young men from foreign lands have finished their university education and are ready to return to their home lands they will carry with them knowledge concerning each of the peoples represented in the international house. The Americans of the house left behind will be similarly equipped. As, with the succeeding years, more and more young men go forth into the world from the international house here and the international houses at other universities they will carry with them an even larger leaven of the understanding viewpoint. It will be a good thing for the world.

World peace will never be made permanent by confining viewpoints within national bounds. It can only be encompassed through the promotion of international understanding—through the recognition of the fact that "A man is a man for a that," under whatever flag and under whatever conditions. So the international house movement is significant.—Morning Register.

By OSBORNE HOLLAND

Edna Ferber's "Show Boat" has been receiving applause from all over the country and Eugene is just now contributing its share. All the hits from Ziegfeld's Broadway version have been rolled into this production to make it one of the most outstanding talking pictures ever produced. For fully two and one-half hours the screen presents a variety of entertainment never before gathered into one great show. Laura La Plante and Joseph Schildkraut are superbly cast as Magnolia and Gaylord Ravenal and with their excellent dramatic technique and irresistible personal appeal.

Emily Fitzroy, fresh from the spoken stage, reaches the very heart of the audience as Pathy Ann Hawks and she, together with Joseph, furnishes most of the laughter. Of course we don't really hear Laura La Plante's singing "Old Man River" and "Can't Help Lovin' That Man," but Carl Laemmle has almost succeeded in deceiving the audience, so what's the difference? Laura's voice is not of the grand opera variety anyway and we probably don't know how well off we are not hear her gargle and gasp with good music. The director might have cut out a lot of silly nonsense too and made a much greater picture, but he fell for the La Plante features and tortured the poor defenseless audience with a lot of close-ups. Two and one-half hours is a long time and theater seats aren't Coxwell chairs, you know.

One should have a good sense of humor to thoroughly enjoy "Show Boat," for many of the discrepancies are so obviously silly that laughter is inevitable. The picture is certainly wet enough. Everybody takes his turn filling the tear trough and when a dry spell does come around the director orders rain or a good sized flood. However, in spite of its faults "Show Boat" deserves to rank as perhaps the greatest singing and talking feature yet produced. If anything better comes along, it will have to go a long way to satisfy the critics as well as this living version of Edna Ferber's masterpiece.

ART GOEBEL

Shortly after we broke the non-stop Coast to Coast record with Richfield Gasoline, we made a comparison of four well-known motor fuels. We discovered in this test that Richfield, in addition to giving us greater power and speed, would enable us to remain in the air two hours longer per one hundred gallons than any of the other fuels. Naturally, we used Richfield in our most recent victory, the Los Angeles to Cincinnati non-stop race.

One of America's foremost pilots...winner of the Dole-Hawaii flight; first to shatter the Army's five-year old transcontinental record and winner of the Los Angeles to Cincinnati non-stop race

Goebel adds his tribute to those of dozens of other leaders in the field of motordom, who endorse and use Richfield products—such men as Harry Miller, Fred Duesenberg, Anthony Fokker, Allan Loughead, Harry Hartz, Captain Wilkins and Ralph Snoddy—men whose achievements as designers and pilots are internationally recognized.

Richfield's qualities—proved in grueling competitive events—are the same qualities you need in your own motor car—instant power, speed and acceleration without loss of mileage. What gasoline do you use?

RICHFIELD

Ever sigh for a little real action?

The hard-looking stranger only yawned at the pay-day activities of Red Gulch.

Piqued at his indifference, several citizens asked why, if Red Gulch wasn't tough enough to interest him, he didn't go back where he came from.

"I can't," the stranger drawled. "That place is so all-fired hard, they kicked all us sissies out!"
A clear case of relativity. If you've smoked merely mild cigarettes all your life, you can't imagine how much you'd cotton to a cigarette that's mild and something more! We refer, as you guess, to Chesterfield.

For mild as they are, they satisfy. You know you're smoking them—and you're right glad of it. They're rich with taste, tobacco taste. They... there's no other word, and no other cigarette that fits it... they satisfy.

CHESTERFIELD

MILD enough for anybody... and yet... THEY SATISFY
