Rex Has Love Trap For Last Time Today

Laura La Plante will be seen today for the last time in "The Love Trap," her latest starring vehicle in the role of a woman who by determination alone saves her reputation and the love of her husband.

Movietone Follies Leaves State Today

The "Follies of 1929" will play its last day at the State today and will be followed by "Two Lovers," the latest co-starring attraction of Vilma Banky and Ronald Coleman. This is the last picture of this famous team, as each has reached the point of being a star in his own right.

Senior Kid Party To be Postponed Till Winter Term

Initial Meeting of Class Held in Villard Assembly

The annual senior "kid" party, usually held during the fall term, will be postponed until winter, it was decided at a meeting of the senior class in the assembly room of Villard hall yesterday afternoon.

The difficulty of finding a date in the crowded fall social calendar was the cause of moving the event, to which the guests come clad in juvenile costume, ahead to the winter term. The date of the party will be announced later. The senior formal ball will also be held during winter term, and senior leap week is set for spring term.

The treasurer's report stated that there is on hand in the class treasury more than $600, and that this sum does not include the tax, which is collected by the university in the registration fees, and which has not yet been turned over to the class.

About a hundred seniors attended the meeting, which was presided over by Eleanor Poorman, vice president, in the absence of Carl Nelson, president.

that I should study these two men and not Pelham, but you see, the papers of Pelham were most all lost or destroyed. The Duke of Newcastle and Lord Hardwicke, together with Pelham practically ran the British government from 1745 to 1754. Pelham was prime minister. They carried on a prodigious correspondence and kept most all the letters sent out and those received. Thus it is easy to get the material on Pelham. They had several secretaries who wrote in a beautiful hand, I should say, that is like the business colleges try to teach this Spencerian script, you know. Newcastle was spasmodic, though at times he wrote very well, but when he was peevish he was practically unreadable, and he was peevish most of the time.

It was an unusually severe and cold winter in 1928, and Dr. Barnes said by March he was rather tired out by his concentra-

McDonald Picture Has Humorous Plot

Lilting melodies and snappy dancing have made the rollicking comedy, "Twin Beds," even more of a success on the screen than it was as a stage play. Jack Mulhall sings the theme song which has been labelled "If You Were Mine," and Patsy Ruth Miller plays the part of his bride with great gusto. The plot, that of a newly married couple separated on their wedding night, affords a great deal of hilarious comedy.

Rod La Roque Stars In Hold 'Em Yale

Breathing the very spirit of undergraduate life, football, boxing, student activities of every description, "Hold 'Em Yale" comes to the Colonial theatre today with the dark, romantic Rod La Roque tearing his way to victory for his alma mater.

It abounds in action, life, romance, color, and reveals the actual heart of the modern American campus and the typical college hero.

tion and took a nine weeks vacation on the continent, mostly in southern France and Italy. The remembrance of charms of a little village, called Mentone, on the Mediterranean, almost sent him into ecstasy.

"The air," he sighed, "the blue sky, the sun; Mrs. Barnes and I stretched out on the beach and absorbed little violet rays all day long. The people are so kindly; and made one feel so at home, they are cheerful and bubbling with the joy of life. It makes you want to stand up and shout for joy, and most likely the people will join in with you, so different from London where you would be arrested for disturbing the peace, you know."

Dr. Barnes had not been there since 1922, during the post war depression, and he noted a vast improvement since then. Amazing strides have been taken in nearly all directions. The greatest change he noticed in Italy was the fact that nearly all the beggars have been run out.

"Quite different from London," he said, waving a small sharp knife around in a preoccupied manner; he had been playing with it all the time and it kept me on the edge of the chair worrying about it.

"London," he continued is infested with them. They draw pictures on the side walks and beg you for money for looking at their works of art. I heard rumors that they no longer are independent concerns but have been syndicated, and one man makes the rounds drawing all the pictures, then they hire fellows to sit with them and look mournful and hold out a hat. Most of them claim to be ex-servicemen, but few of them are about 21 or 22, so it's quite amusing.

"Another form of begging is to sell matches. But just try and get the matches after you think you have purchased them, why in their eyes it amounts almost to a crime."

Saturday Last Time To Register at U. of O.

Saturday, October 12, will be the last day to register in the University of Oregon for fall term it was announced yesterday by Earl Pallett, registrar.

All graduate students failing to register Friday will be required to pay late registration fees.

Committee Plans To Visit Number Of Oregon Towns

Group Intends to Discuss Student Problems With Parents

With the twofold purpose of discussing student problems with parents and others interested in the university and of organizing units of the state Mothers' association, a committee composed of Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, Dean Powers of the Portland extension division, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Cook, of Portland, will visit 13 eastern and southern Oregon towns next week. Mrs. Cook is president of the state Mothers' association.

This is the first time such a trip has been taken. Cities in the Willamette valley will be visited in a later trip.

The itinerary for the trip includes: October 21, Hood River and The Dalles; October 22, Pendleton with possible side trips to Milton-Freewater and Hermiston; October 23, La Grande and Baker; October 24, Burns; October 25, Bend and possible stop in Prineville; October 26, Klamath Falls; October 27, Ashland; October 28, Medford; October 29, Grants Pass and Roseburg; and October 30, Marshfield.

the employees were swollen to the elbows." The wages for her nine and a half to ten hours labor were about five dollars a week.

"The room in which I stayed," she went on, "was about five by seven and reminded one of a cell. It contained a very narrow cot and a locker the size of those used at the gym in which to keep all of my clothes. There was one dingy little window opening out on a court where garbage cans were kept." Miss Edmunson stated that sanitary conditions in general were very bad.

"Of course," she said, "we could not tell anyone that we were students or everything would have been spoiled. One of the most frequent questions was 'What nationality are you?'—something else which we could not tell. One time we counted the different nationalities which were represented at the table where we worked and there were seven. Another question frequently asked was 'are you married?' and the main topic of conversation was the latest boy friend."

Miss Edmunson was able to actually see several very interesting events, one of which was a communist riot, when the people were "just like a herd of cattle." Another was a newspaper strike. A dope raid was also staged in a nearby hotel. It was found that a system of bells had been worked out in the rooms whereby the occupants could be warned and escape by means of a trap door.

"The first week seemed like an adventure," Miss Edmunson declared but after that it was drudgery. Many of the girls working in the factories got married to escape working but after they are married they find that they must continue to work. Many of them are also carrying a great deal of responsibility. One who made forty dollars a month was obligated to send thirty of it home. As her room cost one dollar a week and her board four it was impossible for her to make ends meet. It is very hard for a girl to live under the conditions which are present and on the amount of money she earns."

The college women who were living in Chicago met twice each week to discuss problems and to hear lectures. Miss Edmunson affirmed that Chicago girls who knew of the students said: "We don't expect you to go out and revolutionize the world but this will help you to make yourself a better person in your profession." Those people who are more fortunate than those who live in the slums may help them by buying union made articles and by legislation.

Miss Edmunson says that she would like to go back again next year but different people are chosen by the Y. W. C. A. each summer.

Grad Returns From German University

Miss Elizabeth Karpenstein, who is a graduate of the university, has returned from a year's absence in Germany. She attended the University of Heidelberg and is now an instructor in German and French at Albany college. The University of Heidelberg is offering a holiday course for foreigners from June 30 to August 9, 1930.

Lectures will be given on German literature, music, art, pedagogy, history, economics and the intellectual problems of Germany. A conducted visit to the city, the museum and the botanic gardens and many other interesting attractions are scheduled.

University Style

University men have very definite ideas about style—they must have exactly what they want to the last fraction of an inch.

This store has the authentic university style always—styles that are right in every detail.

The new topcoats, suits and furnishings are all here. They're so good we say, "Satisfaction or your money back."

mony in conveying to Beverley the information that he was to run the gauntlet, which, otherwise stated, meant that the Indians would form themselves in two parallel lines facing each other about six feet apart, and that the prisoner would be expected to run down the length of the space between, thus affording the warriors an opportunity, greatly coveted and relished by their fiendish natures, to beat him cruelly during his flight.

This sort of thing was to the Indians, indeed, and exquisite amusement, as fascinating to them as the theatre is to the more enlightened people. No sooner was it agreed upon that the entertainment should again be undertaken than all the younger men began to scurry around getting everything ready for it. Their faces glowing with a droll cruelty strange to see, and they further expressed their lively expectations by playful yet curiously solemn antics.

"The preparations were simple and quickly made. Each man armed himself with a stick three feet long and about three-quarters of an inch in diameter. Rough weapons they were, cut from boughs of scrub-oak, knotty and tough as horn. Long-Hair unbound Beverley and stripped his clothes from his body down to the waist.

Now, in 1929, the old Spanish—pardon, Indian—custom is going by the boards at the University of Oregon. With slight modifications of the Indians' methods past generations of sophomores have initiated each year's class of freshmen into the mysteries of college spirit. But this year and probably from now on, the freshman anatomy is safe from applications of lumber in large quantities.
