

Rally Committee Makes Plans For Oregon-Idaho Grid Battle

Portland To Be Scene of Celebration

Appointments Announced
By James Raley,
Chairman

Joe Freck to be Assistant
Chairman

Thirty appointments to various sub-divisions of the rally committee were announced yesterday by James Raley, general chairman. At the same time Raley told of preliminary plans for a huge rally to be held in Portland on the morning of the Idaho game, October 19th.

Joe Freck is to fill the position of assistant-chairman of the committee for the balance of the year.

Brian Mimmaugh will have charge of the colored card stunts at the games. He promises some unique pattern effects in yellow and green. He will have as his assistants Kenneth Curry, Wilson Jewett, Don Carver, Douglas De-Cou, Myron Griffin, and Virginia Moore.

Hall Appointed

Keith Hall will manage the send-off rallies for the team in the future. Acting as his assistants are Anne Stange, Ina Tremblay, Edna Dunbar, Virginia Peyton, Chuck Laird, and Stan Brooks.

Alberta Reeves and Emma Jane Rover will superintend the production of posters advertising the games and the rallies. Paul Hunt will make arrangements for speakers. Jack Sammons, Marjorie Clark, Vawter Parker and Anton Peterson will work under him.

Raley selected Kenton Hamaker to provide and direct the noise, fireworks, etc., for the rallies.

Bill Whitley will organize the rally parades. Rosser Atkinson and Paul Hunt will act as his assistants.

Dobbins Handles Features

Walt Norblad will have charge of arrangements for the rally trains, and Sid Dobbins will handle features between halves at the games.

Shirley Rew will handle the secretarial work of the committee and Dave Wilson will take charge of the publicity.

Raley announces that the proposed rally train to Seattle for the Washington game next month will not be scheduled, due to shortness of time in which the trip must be made and the high cost to the individual students.

MRS. HOOPER SAYS UNITY IS ESSENTIAL

of their wording, is Mrs. Hooper's contention. Such meetings as that of Hoover and MacDonald are indicative of a new era in world politics, she said.

Mrs. Hooper advocated United States entrance in the world court. "It is very important," she said, "that Congress have a proper understanding of the world court." That a unified public opinion would be the greatest help in promoting United States entrance into the world court was her opinion, for "representatives know they cannot go against a united public opinion."

"We can go to war on a majority vote of the United States senate but it takes a two-thirds vote for the same body to ratify a treaty of peace," Mrs. Hooper said. "History may be changed by the vote of one man in the United States Senate," she said. That it is only right that we should have the best representation with the best public opinion back of it, is her belief.

In a business meeting of the International Relations club previously to Mrs. Hooper's address, election of officers for the year was held and an outline of plans discussed.

Avery Thompson, senior in law, was elected president. LeWanda Fenelason, senior in history, was elected secretary. Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the department of geology, was selected as faculty advisor. A librarian is to be chosen later whose duties will include care of the club's library donated by the Carnegie Institute.

Meetings of the club will be held the second and fourth Thursdays of each month in the men's lounge of the Gerlinger building. Topics will be introduced by student and faculty members of the organization. Professor Walter Barnes, of the history department, will discuss "Russia vs. China and

TEN THOUSAND EXTENSIONERS PUT CAMPUS STUDES IN SHADE

When you speak of the "University of Oregon," what do you mean? The twenty-six or seven buildings on the campus and the some three thousand students who go to classes in them? Doubtless; and your conception of the university as an educational organization stops there.

What would you say if you were told that this three thousand which you call the Oregon student body composes not even a healthy third of the enrollment of this university? Applesauce? Yet it's true.

Ten thousand students enrolled in the university extension division last year. Miss Mozelle Hair, director of the correspondence school, gasped with astonishment when she assembled these figures. "I had no idea that so many were enrolled," she said, "and I'm sure that very few of the faculty and none of the students suspect that such a stupendous addition to the student body exists."

These figures do not include enrollment in summer school, medical college or campus proper.

The university began its first extension classes in 1913 in Portland with a mere handful of students, mostly studying English. Now it has 9070 taking courses in every branch available in the course of study.

The total number of students registered in the Portland Center during 1928 was 3442. The number enrolled in other towns about the state was 664. There were 1,746 individuals taking correspondence courses; and the Teachers' Reading Circle issued certificates to the number of 3,299. In Eugene alone there were 242 extension students.

The figures are not complete for 1929, but they will, Miss Hair states, show a decided increase, as the extension division is growing constantly.

Manchuria," at the meeting two weeks from last night.

Other topics to come before the club will be concerning naval reductions, tariffs, Philippine laborers in the Northwest and the situation in India.

An entertainment committee was appointed by the new president with Vern Blue, chairman, and Mildred McGee.

Changes in Address Wanted for Guide

The student directory is being prepared and all students who have changed their address since coming to the university or who have not yet left their correct address and telephone number at the registrar's office, are urged to do so at once. The "piggers' guide" is being made up from information on file at the registrar's office and all changes of address and phone numbers left there will find their places in the directory.

Whitman to Establish New Publicity Board

Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., (P. I. P.)—At the present time there is a group on the Whitman campus working upon a possible plan of establishing a publicity board through which the college would be placed more fully before the public. A board of editors and managers, vice-president of the student body, head of publicity and head of athletics would determine the policy of the publicity bureau.

COLONIAL—Rod La Roque in "Hold 'Em Yale."

STATE—"Two Lovers," starring Vilma Bankey and Ronald Colman.

Musical Comedy Has Newly Wed Romance

The show business may be a fascinating game, but it has its drawbacks, according to Jack Mulhall, who stars in the musical comedy success, "Twin Beds," now playing at the McDonald theatre. For the show must go on whether a man is a bridegroom or not, even though his bride be the sweet and alluring Patsy Ruth Miller. In spite of the sad moments of separation, Jack makes up for lost time in romance when he does return to his loved one's side.

Many Swanky Types Play in Rex Comedy

Chorus girls with beautiful legs, college men with plenty of zip, tired business men who should know better, and middle aged wives who sleep with one eye open all contribute to make "Imagine My Embarrassment" a torrid, swift moving show breathing with life, and buoyant fun.

Adapted from "Cradle Snatchers," it is an assured success. Sue Carol herself is an eye-fel and with her are featured Nick Stuart and Walter Catlett, the Broadway musical comedy star.

Rod La Roque Plays Yale College Hero

Rod La Roque, attired in football togs, shows a side of college life that will no doubt appeal to romantic co-eds. As the dark, debonaire young Argentine, who is compelled as a Freshman to abide by Yale's age-old traditions, he runs the gamut of recklessness until a sock in the jaw recalls him to more worthy attitudes.

"Two Lovers" Comes To State Theatre

As a change from the "show type" of cinema comes "Two Lovers," a romantic, sixteenth century tale of sacrifice and devotion. The intense love scenes between the gorgeous Vilma and the heart fluttering Colman have become classic with American audiences and the setting a colorful historic atmosphere only serve to intensify the pleasure of a true and perfect love.

SATURDAY LAST DAY TO CHANGE COURSES

Not only will Saturday, October 12, be the last day for registration at the University, but it will be the last day on which courses may be added or dropped, according to Earl M. Pallet, registrar. Students are cautioned to observe the dead-line and to hurry with whatever changes they wish to put through before that date.

Society -

This week is characterized by several affairs in which attempts are being made to get the freshmen better acquainted. The faculty women's club met for the first time this year. There is, also, another early fall marriage, that of Miss Margaret Arnold to John Warren.

Faculty Women Hold First Meeting of Year

The first faculty women's tea of this year was held Wednesday, to which all housemothers were invited. There were about two hundred and seventy-five active and associate members present at the tea including faculty women, faculty wives, women graduate assistants, and graduate assistant wives, and the library staff. The new officers were introduced. They were: president, Mrs. Eric W. Allen; vice-president, Mrs. Timothy Cloran; secretary, Mrs. Charles G. Howard; treasurer, Mrs. E. L. Packard. Mrs. Arnold Bennett Hall is honorary president. Mrs. John McEwan acted as social chairman. The affair was held in Alumni hall.

Arnold-Warren Wed

Miss Margaret Arnold was married on September 4 to John Warren. The marriage took place in Portland at the Grace Memorial church, and Miss Ruth Fields was maid of honor, and Frank Mimmaugh best man. Both Mr. Warren and his wife were Oregon students; Mrs. Warren being a member of Pi Beta Phi and he a member of Sigma Nu.

"Get Wise" Party Set for Today

Another entertainment for the girl members of the class of 1933 is the "Get Wise" party, starting this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the women's gymnasium. The party is for all freshmen women, and all big sisters will be with their little sisters.

Gamma Phi Freshmen Hold Open House

A feature of freshman social life was the open house held yesterday afternoon by the freshmen of Gamma Phi Beta. Freshmen from all over the campus were invited.

Honoring music students in the University, Mu Phi Upsilon, national music honorary, will entertain with a tea at the music building between the hours of four to five this afternoon.
