Cross Country Men at Work . . . Beaver-Cougar Game Important Florida Preparing for Oregon

By Harry Van Dine

COACH BILL HAYWARD has his cross country runners out every night now, running over the strenuous three and one-half mile course and the men are training hard for the meet with the Oregon Aggie harriers, to be run as a preliminary to the Oregon-Oregon State homecoming battle.

This cross country racket is a real grind and the men work faithfully for a place on the team. After a lap around the track, the course stretches out over the hills and over some pretty rough territory before the runners return for another two laps around Hayward field at the end of the course.

Bill will not let his men exert themselves as yet, and he declares the time is slow. Recently the harriers have been making the course in a little over fifteen minutes. This fellow Ralph Hill, who represented Oregon in the National Intercollegiate Track meet in Chicago last year, is displaying great form and comes in fresh after the long grind.

EUGENE football fans sat up and took particular notice when Coach Prink Callison's yearling football team scored a 19 to 14 win over the varsity reserves in their annual tangle Wednesday night. The freshman team displayed great offensive strength in the game and some of the men certainly looked like coming varsity material. Both teams were fighting hard and the game was of great benefit to both sides.

Coach McEwan has been working hard with his varsity reserves in an effort to get them ready for conference competition and the freshman contest gave him plenty of opportunity to size up some of his men who seldom break into the varsity lineup. It also gave the first year men a chance to see what they could do against varsity material and the yearlings seized their opportunity and went into the game as though their lives depended on the outcome.

THIS Oregon State-Washington State game to be played in Portland this Saturday, should be a battle royal, with both teams fighting to remain in the running for Northwest sectional honors.

To dig out the old factor "if" once more: if Oregon State wins, the mythical title will depend on the outcome of the Oregon-Oregon State game November 23; if Washington State wins, the title will probably remain in doubt unless the Aggies defeat the Webfoots in the Homecoming battle; in other words, Oregon State will have to win from both the Cougars and Oregon to win the title, while Oregon only has to sit back and await the outcome of the Aggie-Cougar battle and then win from the Aggies to at least tie for the championship.

On the other hand, Washington State has two more northwest games to play after the Aggie tussle, meeting Idaho and Montana on successive Saturdays. Both Oregon teams have only one more sectional fray, their annual battle for state supremacy. There is the dope, figure it out if you can.

WORD comes from the sunny south that the great arena in which the Oregon-Florida game will be played in Miami, is nearing completion and that the coming game is drawing much attention in the Alligator state. The game will be played December 7 and is probably the most important on the Webfoot schedule, as Florida is considered one of the best teams in the country.

The 'Gators have suffered only one setback, and that one a surprise, at the hands of the Golden Tornado of Georgia. The game is being financed by an organized committee of leading citizens of Miami and it is estimated that six thousand tickets have already been sold. The arena is being constructed by the Madison Square Gardens company, and is said to be the finest in the south. It will be the scene of several championship boxing contests during the winter. A fast turf field has been laid and is said to be in condition for play already.

It would be a big blow to some of the Oregon dads to see the geology students digging in the excavation for the Fine Arts building. Just to think that they send their sons to college to play in the dirt.

Frosh Gridders Slated For Tough Assignment Today

Centralia To Give Yearling Team Battle

Jack Hughes and Morgan Injured; May Not Start Fray

Junior Collegians Have Good Record

Anticipating a hard contest in the game with Centralia Junior college scheduled to start at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, Prink Callison last night concluded the freshman football practice with a word of warning to his charges and sent them to the showers earlier than usual.

Though the yearlings will enter the conflict this afternoon heavy favorites, by virtue of their victory over the Washington Babes, who in turn beat today's invaders by a 6 to 0 score, Callison is prepared for a hard game, as Centralia has an enviable record thus far with the exception of their defeat at the hands of the Washington team, and will be anxious to balance this setback with a win over Oregon.

The Junior college has scored victories in three games, Linfield college, Pacific Lutheran college and Oregon Normal. A scoreless tie was also played with the latter institution. That Centralia deserves the compliment paid it by the attitude of Prink Callison, is borne out in a statement of their record thus far. In five games they have scored 99 points against a total of 12 for their opponents. This enviable record gives a graphic idea of the defensive strength of today's contenders as well as their offensive power.

If the yearlings' opponents live up to advance reports they will present a powerful air attack with their backfield ace, Harold Dirks, carrying the brunt of the work. He has been supported by Maloney, Brashear and Ely in his good work in previous games and this combination should provide an interesting afternoon for the Frosh.

Line-up Weakened
Due to injuries received in the Washington game last Saturday the Oregon Frosh may present a somewhat weakened lineup at the start of the game this afternoon as it is doubtful whether Bill Morgan, tackle, and Jack Hughes, guard, will be able to be in the starting lineup. Morgan, whose defensive work was outstanding last week, received a cut on his eye which has not healed as fast as it might have, and Hughes has an injured knee. For these reasons Callison deems it advisable to start Carson Mathews and Bill Bowerman in their places. The injured men, however, should see some service during the afternoon.

The entire lineup as given out by Callison is: Johnny Hare and Red Decker, ends; Carson Mathews and Sherwood Billings, tackles; Al Steehr and Bill Bowerman, guards; Bernie Hughes, center; Dan Sheehy, quarterback; Don Watts and George Currie, halfbacks, and Jack Rushlow, fullback.

PHI DELTA PHI TO MEET NOV. 7
Phi Delta Phi, honorary legal fraternity, will meet for dinner at the College Side Inn, Thursday, November 7, at 6 p. m., according to Clifford Powers, president.

The speaker for the evening will be Mr. E. O. Immel, president of the Oregon State Bar Association. All members and alumni of Phi Delta Phi are urged to be present, Powers said.

STUDENTS OF VIOLIN DISPLAY MUCH TALENT

more fitting for the night—Hal, Lowe'n. Other numbers played in this group were "Chanson Meditation" by Cottenet, and "Ballade and Polonaise" by Vieuxtemps. Presented by Miss Wicks in an equally commendable manner as "Sonata in D Major" by Handel in which many styles of movement were represented, a quaver and unforgettable rhythm prevailing. There was the slow and easy movement, then the lively and quick, only to be followed by the diminutive, then perhaps returning to the brisk.

Unlike other student violin recitals, last night's was amazingly free from boresome execution exhibitions of a half-way type. Instead it was nearing the professional class where each note has its place. Accompanists were Aurora Potter Underwood, Helene Robinson, and Geraldine Gardner.

Sigma Chi, Phi Delt, and Psi Kappa Come Out Ahead in Games

Sigma Chi, Psi Kappa, Phi Delta Theta, and Friendly hall emerged victorious in the four intramural basketball games played yesterday at McArthur court. Sigma Chi clinched the championship of League A, while Psi Kappa remained undefeated in League E. The Phi Delt victory had no bearing on the triple tie existing in League G.

Gamma hall threw a man-size scare into the Phi Deltis during the first half of their encounter by playing the Kincaid street boys off their feet and running up a 13-8 margin. Jacobs, angular Gamma center, did his bit with two hair-raising shots from the center of the court.

Urged on by their fire-eating coach, Scotty Milligan, the Phi Deltis became desperate and cleaned up sixteen points during the remainder of the game for a total of twenty-four, while allowing Gamma one lone basket, another mid-floor shot by Jacobs. Minnaugh and Rogers played outstanding basketball for the Phi Deltis during the second half. Jacobs was the big noise for Gamma.

Psi Kappa—Zeta Hall
Exceptionally close checking as well as erratic and ill-timed passing featured the Psi Kappa-Zeta hall fray, won by the former, 12 to 11. The score stood: Psi Kappa 8, Zeta 9, at the end of the third quarter.

Psi Kappa sunk two and Zeta countered with one field goal before calling time out. With one minute to play, Zeta tried hard but couldn't overcome the slim margin. Page played a good game at forward for Psi Kappa.

Notwithstanding the fact that Sigma Chi made ten personal fouls, they easily swamped Bachlorion, 36 to 12. Balsley was the chief offender with four personals opposite his name on the scorebook.

Most of Sigma Chi's scoring was done in the second half. The first period ended 11 to 6. Beechler warmed up during the final period and threw the ball in from all angles, individually accounting for fifteen points. Shaneman and Pyle divided second honors with ten each.

Friendly Victor
Friendly hall emerged from the Igloo with Phi Sigma Kappa's hide and a 14 to 10 count in their favor. Allan and Wadsworth had a big hand in the skinning of the Phi Sigs. Beckett remonstrated with six points of his own, but was overruled when the entire Friendly squad applied more headwork and less eagerness to the cause.

There will be no intramural basketball games today, but play will be resumed on Monday. The finishing touches will be applied to preliminary play early in the week so that the elimination round, with league winners as principals, can be introduced Thursday or Friday.

Coach McEwan May Use Number Of Reserve Men

Ucla Strength To Be Tested Before Second String Gets Chance

From all indications, tomorrow will be a big day for the knitting industry, as perhaps more than one Webfoot aspirant to varsity fame will get a chance to play a few valuable minutes toward a letter.

Coach McEwan may even start a number of reserve men, but it is hardly probable that many of the second stringers will get in until the real strength of the Uclas is accurately tested.

If it should happen that U. C. L. A. is as weak as comparative scores appear to indicate, there are going to be at least a half-dozen men on the reserve squad who will carve their names in the memories of the fans.

French Improves
Gilbert French, for one, is a most promising candidate for guard. At the start of the season, French, who played on last year's frosh eleven, did not get much attention from the coaches. Since then, however, he has stepped right up in the team rating, and is fortifying his position on the squad more every day. His main quality is speed, and though a trifle light, has a surplus of driving power.

Johnny Londahl and Al Browne are the coming backfield material on the reserves. Londahl is one of the best passers in the Northwest, but as yet has not completely rounded out the other requirements of a triple-threat man.

May Use New Ends
Al Browne and his brother Walt Browne, an end, are due for a lot of action tomorrow. Both of these boys have already practically cinched their letters, but have not been given steady assignments. Walt is a speed demon, and his specialties are covering punts and receiving passes.

Ervin Schultz may get a long spell at tackle if circumstances are just right for a substitution in that place. Schultz is a typical tackle. He is rangy and has a lot of fire in his drives. He may be assisted or replaced during the game by Ralph Bates or Norm Jesse, both of whom are big men with plenty of scrap and ambition.

At present the first string stands something like this: Colbert and Christensen, tackles; Forsta, center; Shields and Lillie, guards; Archer and Erdley, ends; Mason and Robinson, halfbacks; Moelner, fullback; and Kitzmiller, quarterback.

That is about as near as any one could come to picking a first string of McEwan's lineup, the only basis for selection being on the amount of time played. This lineup is more of a specialized group for open plays than a first string, however, and since passing has been the main style of play for Oregon so far this season, by the end of the year another outfit may have the edge in playing time.
