Fair Play With Oregana?

THE belligerent attitude of the finance committee and the executive council toward the Oregana popped up again last week when the former group adopted a provision stating "That, unless the Oregana be out by April 15 and the copies for campus distribution be out by May 1, the profits shall not be distributed to members of the Oregana staff." Junior week-end, the traditional distributing time, comes May 10. Which means, that some unfortunate circumstance arising the last minute when the yearbook is on the press may deprive the editor and manager from any remuneration for their labors during the year.

While there is probably little danger of the book being unable to appear May 1, it is the attitude of the committees which irks. The resolution was made in the form of a permanent motion by the executive council on May 1 of last spring term.

It might prove embarrassing for the council if the book should happen to be late this year as they would have to recall the money now being advanced to Lester McDonald, editor, for his work. McDonald, being one of the myriad students who is working his way through school, insisted that the advances be agreed upon before he consented to become editor this fall.

The point has been reached in the economic scheme of things where the salaries paid the editor and manager are pitifully inadequate in proportion to the time they are forced to put in to make the book a successful one. Last year the book, by skillful management, paid profits into the student body funds. In the neighborhood of $200, was all the money that went to the heads of the book for their year's work.

Two things are necessary if the Oregana is going to be able to get competent men and women to take the jobs:

1. The executive council and finance committee must play fair with them by consulting with them before taking any drastic steps regarding the policies of the Oregana.
2. The salary must be put on a more stable basis and at least some remuneration must be assured. The present system of paying the editor and manager a cut out of the profits, if any (and there are usually none), must be junked!

A Possible Development

AT NOTRE DAME UNIVERSITY this year there are no less than 900 men engaged in playing football, according to an interview with Knute Rockne published in the current number of the American magazine. In addition to the several score men that make up his regular working squad, Rockne has organized class football, and intramural football among the various dormitories and organizations of the campus. As many of the intramural games as possible are played, so that the men who are not able to make the varsity squad will obtain a maximum of gridiron experience.

We can see no reason why the system in effect at Notre Dame would not be feasible at the University of Oregon. Of course it would probably strain the resources of most any of the campus fraternities or halls to support a football team, but it would be possible to have the organizations paired, say by lottery, and allow each two to support a football team to play for the championship of the university. Then the sophomore, junior, and senior classes could each organize a team, with the champion class team, perhaps, meeting the champion intramural team.

The inauguration of such a system at the University of Oregon would do much toward the development of football here. There are undoubtedly many players with excellent possibilities who become discouraged and drop out of competition when they fail to make the freshmen or varsity teams. Under the proposed plan they would be given an opportunity for continuing to play and develop their possibilities, as well as to enjoy themselves in a field where competition isn't excessively strong. It is entirely probable that many players developed through class and intramural football would become valuable recruits to the varsity squad during their latter years on the campus.

NAME FOR MEN'S DORM

Editor of the Emerald:
 I want to thank the Emerald for suggesting that the New Dormitory be named in my honor, but I want to suggest the names of two others whose memory should be perpetuated first.

The three men who gave nearly "their all" were Hon. Thomas G. Hendricks, Judge Joshua J. Walton, and Hon. Ben Dorris, former regents of the university. These men spent day after day, weeks and months, going over the county raising money with which to pay the laborers on Deady hall. They went out and begged a cow from some farmer, leading it to the butcher or asked for some of their grain stored in the local warehouse. And not only this, they almost impoverished themselves in giving their own money. Had it not been for these men, there would probably be no university in Eugene.

We have "Hendricks Hall," and the new Dormitory could be divided into North Hall and South Hall and named "Walton Hall" and "Dorris Hall," two worthy names in the annals of Lane county. I think I shall recommend that this be done to the Board of Regents at their next meeting, if President Hall will consent.

If I can live in the hearts and memory of "my boys and girls" of the last fifty-two years, then when the last one shall have joined me on the other side, I shall be willing that my name on this side be forgotten.

Gratefully yours,
 JOHN STRAUB.

Love letters of a college man

WE WISH TO SPIKE THE RUMOR THAT THE HEILIG SEATS ARE BEHIND POSTS. IF BACHELORS WIN THE CONTEST, THE USHERS HAVE OFFERED TO HOLD THEIR HANDS DURING INTERMISSIONS.

However all football men will be penalized for holding—too long.

Foul—Why does Harry Wood always put his notebook on top of his head before taking a quiz? Ball—Search me.
 Foul—So the knowledge will sink in, yokel.

SASSY SUSIE

She calls the boy friend "Man-lla," because... he knows... the "ropes."

Female—Did you attend the meeting of the bowlegged brethren last night?
 Mailman—Oh yes, they had a big "turn-out."

TODAY'S PUTRID PUN

"Honor" in a sentence.
 That's right, big boy, step honor.

Editor's Note: Love-making is an art which partakes of the nature of its abode. In the different schools and departments of the campus each love-sick sheik uses his own peculiar phraseology. Realizing this, the Emerald is herewith presenting letters proposing marriage, written by four campus lovers.

LAW SCHOOL

John Rocks (Bachelor)
 vs.
 Jane White (Spinster)
Statement of Facts
 This comprises an action for damages. The plaintiff charges that on or about September 1 he delivered his heart and all appurtenances thereto, unincumbered, to the defendant and that she stood as bailee, receiving candy, flowers, etc.

Argument

The fact that the plaintiff is suffering in manner outlined is duly attested by the familiar symptoms of loss of appetite, falling off in weight, hollow eyes, etc. The lone remedy to be the payment prayed for on the doctrine that similia similibus curantur (Blackstone 112).

Therefore the plaintiff prays that the solution to this evil be consummated and that the necessary legal and religious steps be taken without undue delay.

"I'll slay myself with bloody dagger, cruel flame-lipped love pirate. Oh, my revenge! My heart! Heavy Sugar Daddy sues for heart balm. We're way over deadline, let's go!"

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT

THESIS: PSYCHIC URGE A NATURAL RESPONSE (See Pillsbury.) The first kiss opened a new neural pathway to the midbrain and repeated performances brought connected synapses which abetted further reactions. My perceptual learning told me your physical contour was excellent. Every night my mental imagery works overtime and I see you in a concomitant light. It was by sensory-motor learning that I succumbed to your visual stimuli and now I have a mental set for you. Be mine and we will open some new synapses and undergo affective changes in so doing. Introspection tells me we should unite at once.

"Don't be like that"

WHAT's the use of getting the good suit pressed for a date if the rain is going to make it look like a wet sack before you arrive? None whatever. But if you put on your Fish Brand Slicker your clothes look precisely as well when you get there as when you start. A real Fish Brand Slicker is good-looking too. It has set the campus style for years. And it will stand any amount of wear and rough usage. Look for the Fish Brand label. A. J. Tower Company, Boston, Massachusetts.
