Dynamite Charge Shatters Old Oregon Emblem

The student administration of the university has no intention of blaming students of Oregon State Agricultural College for the dynamite blast which tore a section from the concrete "O" on Skinner's Butte early Saturday morning, according to a statement made yesterday by Tom Stoddard, student body president.

"We have no evidence at all which would lead us to believe that this piece of vandalism is the work of Corvallis students," said Stoddard. "On the contrary, I am inclined to believe that the dynamiting was done by persons living in Eugene. Whether they were students or not I do not know."

Explosion Saturday
The charge was set off about 3 o'clock on Saturday morning, and was heard all over the city. So violent was the explosion that a piece of concrete, weighing about 25 pounds crashed through the roof of a building near the foot of the butte, endangering the lives of occupants.

The explosion took a section out of the lower right corner of the "O" about three by four feet in size. The cement is four feet wide and four feet deep at this point.

The freshman class will be responsible for repair to the "O," said Stoddard. Work will begin on it today, and it will be its old self again when alumni begin to arrive for Homecoming Friday.

Mutual Policy Outlined
Ransom Meinke, president of the Oregon State student body, and Carl E. Totton, editor of the Oregon Daily Barometer, called on Stoddard Friday afternoon for the purpose of outlining a mutual policy of non-violence in connection with the Homecoming game between Oregon and Oregon State.

DR. HALL RETURNS TO CAMPUS FRIDAY

Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, president of the university, will be back on the campus next Friday, according to information received at his business office. Dr. Hall left a week ago to attend the American Association of State University Presidents which is being held in Chicago the eleventh and twelfth of this month.

Dr. Mez Will Speak To Extension Students

Dr. John R. Mez, of the Economics department, will speak to a group of graduate students of the Portland Extension Center on November 23 at a dinner held at the Sign of the Rose in Portland.

Dr. Mez will speak on the subject of "International Relations in the Pacific Area."

'Campus Wreck' Contest Planned As Homecoming Rally Feature

Another "Campus Wreck Contest" is in the offing. Students who lacked faith in their chariot's ability to cover the 125 miles between Eugene and Portland at the time of the Idaho game will find no such obstacle in the way of competing for one of the valuable prizes offered in the competition scheduled for Homecoming.

Jim Raley, general chairman of the rally committee recently appointed Bill Whitely general chairman for the unique affair, which will be run off in connection with the rally and noise parade to be

Friday's Rally Will Be Without Gaudy Nightwear

PAJAMAS are out for the Homecoming Rally. At a meeting of the student affairs committee yesterday it was decided that, to solicit a greater turnout and avoid several of the embarrassing situations which occurred last year, the previously planned gaudy nightwear should be barred.

Rally officials state, however, that everyone is urged to come in the costumes they will wear to the Journalism Jamboree.

held early Friday evening. Whitely has appointed Harold Fraundorf, Art Rolander and Bill Pitman to be his assistants, and the group is now securing prizes of gasoline script books and orders on filling stations from local gas agencies. Homer Dixon won a $10 gasoline script book in the recent Portland contest.

The prize will be given to what the judges decide is the "most collegiate campus car," according to Whitely. Students interested in the contest should call Whitely or Fraundorf at 703 for further details.

Homecoming Committees Labor Hard

Bonfire and Decorations
Are Requiring Attention

BRISTOW CUP SHOWN

Noting for Big Arch
Now Assured

Between two days remain before the opening of the Homecoming, probably the biggest celebration to hit the campus for many years. In preparation for the event, according to Keith Hall, general chairman, the Homecoming directorate and the numerous sub-committees are working overtime in order that everything may be ready and functioning perfectly by 6:30 o'clock Friday evening, the official opening of the big rally and of Homecoming.

The bonfire and the decorations are the features which are requiring the most attention just at present. The bonfire is being constructed in the form of a gigantic "O" on the slopes of Skinner Butte by the Freshman class, under the general supervision of Kenton Hamaker, assistant chairman of the Directorate.

Workers Needed
Joe Freck, who is in charge of the Homecoming decorations, states that he will be in need of many workers, both men and women, to assist in making the green and yellow pennants that are to decorate Thirteenth street from the Sigma Chi corner to Johnson hall.

Neon Arch Assured
The Neon tubing for the big arch that is to span Thirteenth street near Condon hall is now assured, Freck reports. The arch is to be the big feature of the Homecoming decorations. Another feature of the decorations for this year's Homecoming will be a gigantic welcome sign which is to be hung on the steel tower of the Hammond Construction company at the new Fine Arts Museum. The sign will start at the top of the tower, 120 feet above the ground, and will extend downwards for 40 feet. A spot light in the cement bucket 80 feet above the ground will illuminate the sign after night.

There has been considerable discussion on the campus during the past few days as to who is supposed to attend the campus luncheon at McArthur court Saturday. To clarify the issue Keith Hall made the following statement last night:

4,000 To Be Fed
"The campus luncheon is intended primarily for the Oregon students and alumni and their immediate relatives and friends. We are making preparations to feed 4,000 persons, which is as many as can be accommodated conveniently between 11:30 and 1 o'clock. For this reason we cannot undertake feeding all townspeople and visitors on the campus who may feel inclined to attend."

The Bristow trophy, which is offered annually to the house or hall displaying the most attractive welcoming sign, is now on display in the window of the University Co-op. Sigma Alpha Epsilon won the cup last year, and Kappa Alpha Theta and Friendly Hall in 1927 and 1926. The signs will be judged soon after dark Friday night, and the winners will be announced about 7:30 o'clock, according to Kenneth Curry, who is in charge of the sign contest.

DR. SANBORN TO ADDRESS TEACHERS

"Trees of the Pacific Northwest" will be the topic of a lecture to be given by Dr. Ethel Sanborn, of the plant biology department, before a group of nature study teachers in Portland tomorrow. This is one of a series of similar lectures being arranged by the extension division.

Construction of Huge Homecoming Bonfire Started

Travis, Chairman, Urges
Assistance of Every Class Member

Schedule for Building and Guarding Listed

Construction work on the bonfire was started yesterday afternoon. One truck and freshmen from three fraternities began the assembling of material and the building of the framework which will surround the 150 foot-long "O"-shaped bonfire.

"If the class of 1933 is to have a Homecoming bonfire which will come up to the standard set by previous classes, every freshman man must turn out and work as much time as he possibly can this week," says Jim Travis, general bonfire chairman.

Schedule Fixed
Schedules have been drawn up for the various organizations both for construction work during the day and guarding duty at night. Work will be done in shifts up till Thursday afternoon, says Travis, but at that time all men will be expected to report for the last big push. A hot dinner will be served to the workers on the butte at 6 o'clock Thursday evening, and a supper will be distributed at midnight.

It is expected that the services of the entire class will also be required for most of Friday, in order to have the big pile all ready for firing at 7:30 Friday evening.

Workers Named
Schedule for the rest of the week:

Tuesday—Morning: Alpha Beta Chi, Alpha hall, Alpha Tau Omega. Afternoon: Delta Tau Delta, Alpha Upsilon, Bachelorlon. Night vigilance: Delta Tau Delta, Delta Epsilon, Gamma hall, Friendly hall, Sigma Pi Tau.

Second Showing Of Campus Movie Now on Schedule

Friday Night Show Will Be Repeated Saturday,
November 16

Vaudeville Program Will Be Feature

A demand for tickets to the premiere showing of "Ed's Co-ed" which sold out the house within two days after sale opened has led the directors to schedule a second showing for Saturday night, November 16, following the Homecoming dance, announced Ron Hubbs, business manager for the production, yesterday.

The show will be identical to the premiere showing scheduled for the McDonald theater the evening of the 15th, according to Hal Johnson, manager of the ticket sale, and will also be held at the McDonald. As on Friday night, all seats will be reserved for the Saturday showing and will sell for a uniform price of $1.25.

An hour's program of vaudeville which has been arranged for the premiere by Boone Hendricks will be repeated for the Saturday program.

Oregon Sticker Will Make Debut For Homecoming

Drawing Incorporates
Representation of Webfoots

A new sticker will make its debut on the campus by Homecoming.

The new emblem represents a yellow Webfoot with a green "U" around its neck, a small green "of" on its chest, and standing behind an "O" which reaches to the thighs. It is so designed that the features stand out clearly, yet the sticker is small enough to avoid obstructing vision when placed on the windshield. Keith Maguire and Kendall Newport designed the sticker.

It is felt that the duck is somewhat inadequate as an emblem of the university, but it has been used so much by sports writers that the idea has become associated with the university in the minds of people. With this in mind the new sticker has been devised to serve until the time when the university chooses a more appropriate mascot.

The sticker design is now in the hands of a Portland engraver and M. F. McClain, manager of the Co-op expects to have the stickers on hand by Thursday or Friday.

Oratory Men To Try Out December 10

Each Man To Determine in Advance What Line He Will Speak in

SQUAD TO BE LARGER

Subjects in State Old Line
Contests To Be Optional

Oratory tryouts will be held Tuesday, December 10, in Villard hall at 2 p. m. At this time four men who will represent the university in oratory and two in extemporaneous speaking contests, will be selected. A larger number of men in the squad will be chosen this year than last year.

At the tryouts each man is to determine in advance what event he would like to participate in. He will then proceed to prepare the speech accordingly.

The first specific contest will be the state old line contest to be held the second Friday in March at the university. The subjects are to be optional.

Contest at Corvallis

The national constitutional contest will be held at Corvallis under the sponsorship of the state college. The subject for that is prescribed as some phase or entire subject of the American constitution.

The state peace contest which is to be held on the second Friday of April will be in Eugene under the auspices of the Eugene Bible school. The subject as prescribed must pertain to world peace or any phase of it.

The final oratory contest is the Pacific Forensic league contest at Tucson, Arizona, March 26, 27 and 28.

The two extemporaneous contests will be held simultaneously with the old line oratory contest and the Pacific Forensic league contest. The Pacific Forensic league extemporaneous contest will be held March 26, 27, and 28 in Tucson, Arizona. The state extemporaneous contest will be held at Linfield college at McMinnville on the second Friday in February.

Will Write Orations

In brief, the candidates for oratory and extemporaneous squads will decide immediately upon what they wish to try out for and after determining upon the subject proceed to write full 15-minute orations which are to be delivered at the tryouts on December 10.

Those who try out to represent the university at the extemporaneous contests will speak on special phases of the general topic which is being used for debate tryouts on November 17. These special phases will be assigned on the day of the tryouts.

Two Speakers Chosen

It is possible that the one man sent to Tucson, Arizona, may participate in both contests there. Since the object is to get the four best orators and the two best extemporaneous speakers on the campus a man may be chosen for any contest regardless of which phase he speaks on, although he may state his preference.

Speeches for the 15-minute orations must be written out and memorized and will be from 1,500 to 1,800 words in length. The extemporaneous speeches will be eight minutes in length.

All candidates must sign slips in the public speaking department and further particulars may be arranged for with the coaching staff consisting of Dr. R. C. Hoerber and Walter E. Hempstead, Jr.

Oratorical Interest Grows

"Interest in oratory among the most effective student speakers on the campus is greater, if anything, than formerly," explained Mr. Hempstead. "This year's increased oratory schedule will give an opportunity for more men to represent the university officially in this type of forensic endeavor."

"Any sophomore or upperclassman, who is at home on the platform, is encouraged to sign up for the tryouts."

More than 500 members of the Youngstown, Ohio, First Baptist Temple Sunday school recently combined to write the entire Bible in longhand in one day. Each of the 500 copied 50 verses. The whole is being bound.

Col. Gilbert Stresses Peace in Armistice Day Talk to Student Body

Bravest Frosh Found at Last; O Whatta Break!

AFTER a week, during which every bed was full, the infirmary declared an armistice and discharged all but three patients. However, within two hours afterwards, two girls who insisted on making Armistice Day a day of rest were admitted, making a total of five students confined in the infirmary, four of them girls. According to Miss Margaret Calahan, infirmary nurse, the freshman class should be proud of the fact that they have a man who is brave enough to spend his days and nights under the same roof with four girls. A veritable Daniel in the lions' den.

Those who are at present confined in the infirmary are: Amelia Anderson, Elsie Moller, Elinor Henry, Affie Reagan, and Raymond Whiteside.

Unaffiliated students may obtain tickets at the University Co-op.

The tickets, which were designed and printed by Robert Allen, are in the form of miniature newspaper pages, and will sell for fifty cents each. ## Guiding Aid for Puzzled Studes To Be Aim of Personnel Office

THE personnel office has been organized for the purpose of bringing students who are in need of advice into closer personal contact with some faculty member," said Dr. H. R. Taylor, newly appointed personnel director, while explaining yesterday the functions of the faculty adviser system that is now being developed at the University of Oregon.

"Many students are just now beginning to realize that they have serious problems to face, and are at a loss to know where to turn for guidance. The university administration is trying to help these students in every way possible, and has established the personnel

Speaker Says Disarmament Plans Futile

Kellogg Peace Pact Called
Today's Only Hope
By Chaplain

Large Crowd Present at Holiday Assembly

"We can't make peace by pact; it must be in the hearts of men!" declared Colonel William S. Gilbert, speaker at the Armistice day assembly held in McArthur court yesterday morning. Colonel Gilbert is a retired army chaplain and is now engaged in the administrative work of the Presbyterian Church of Oregon.

"Back of all of the peace gestures, all the peace plans, peace pacts and treaties there must be a world regeneration—a change in the hearts of men," he asserted. Although education will help in bringing about peace, according to Colonel Gilbert the ultimate achievement must be accomplished through a real change in men's attitude toward peace.

World Dislikes U. S. Stand

"How can we find a way to abiding, safe, and permanent peace? The nations of the world tried several ways following the signing of the Armistice. The first was the formation of the League of Nations. Fifty-nine countries are taking part in this organization. America is still refusing to belong to the League. I'm not saying whether it's right or wrong, but the world doesn't like it. The world thinks our refusal to be part of the League is an unfriendly attitude."

The Locarno treaty, the second of the ways mentioned by Colonel Gilbert as attempts for peace, seemed to be more of a guarantee for rather than against war, he said. The World Court and reparations plans are further attempts.

Kellogg Pact Is Hope

"The Kellogg Peace Pact is the ray of hope today," declared the speaker. He added that it is useless to try to outlaw war, for war has always been an outlaw. "When the World War broke out, there were in existence nine hundred and sixty solemn treaties guaranteeing the world thought, world peace."

Colonel Gilbert emphasized the futility of total disarmament, but declared that one way to expedite the coming of peace is the limitation of armaments.

"The recent visit of the premier of Great Britain to the President of the United States is one of the greatest, I might say the greatest, event of its kind in the history of the world," he asserted.

"Your fathers are passing on to you the problem that they have not been able to solve," he said, referring still to the accomplishment of a permanent peace, "and may you be able to solve it without recourse to force. It is not the amassed wealth of America which they are handing on to you; that may prove to be your curse. The problem which they are leaving
