

Smearing of Paint on Oregon State Campus Thought To Be Outgrowth of Oregon 'O' Blasting

Act of Vandalism Said To Be First This Year Committed at Corvallis

Student Body Officers of Sister School Very Courteous, Says Stoddard; Do Not Blame Students at Oregon

COMING as a possible outgrowth of the recent blasting of the "O" is the news that the O. S. C. campus was smeared with yellow and green paint during the evening of November 11, according to Tom Stoddard, president of the A. S. U. O.

This is the first act of vandalism to occur on the Oregon State campus this year and Stoddard said that in handling the situation the student body officers of that institution were very courteous, emphatically denying that the act could be laid to Oregon students.

Stoddard Scores Group

The small group of students who painted the Memorial building at Corvallis on the evening of to destroy the efforts of the student officers for three years, November 11 should indeed be ashamed of themselves, for they have attempted declared Stoddard yesterday. "It has been the policy of the student bodies in the past few years to place relations with our sister institution, O. S. C., on a friendly basis. I sincerely hope that the few students on the campus who enjoy this childlike vandalism would consider the remainder of the student body, and realize that we suffer for their acts."

Meinke Writes

Following is a letter from Ransom Meinke, president of the Oregon State student body, received by Stoddard:

"I was very sorry to hear about the destruction of your 'O,' and wish to assure you that we are making a thorough investigation here.

"In regard to our game with you Saturday:

"The Oregon State student body welcomes the opportunity of coming to Eugene for the big game of the year. The spirit and enthusiasm which this game arouses is a great thing for both institutions. Whenever we have been your guest in Eugene we have been treated as such, and it is with pleasure that we look forward to this week-end."

CAMPUS MOVIE—

"You May Be In It" famous last words of the McDonald-Register news reel might well apply to "Ed's Co-ed," our own campus movie which will make its world premiere at the McDonald theatre this Friday night. There are shots of mill race initiating parties, of dancing nights and classy days, of stalwart men and dainty co-eds. In short it will mirror the truth and nothing but the truth of modern university life, everything from housemother to pledge, from Emerald celebrities to Kimmel, the sworn enemy of every cat on the campus.

AT THE REX—

A girl detective, jewel thieves and an ocean liner make a thrilling combination in "The Girl from Havana" at the Rex. Lola Lane as the girl and Paul Page as the boy are another love team that promises to become quite famous.

AT THE NEW HEILIG—

Love which grows in spite of itself, which comes no matter how much we struggle to resist it forms one of the angles in "The Lady of the Pavements" at the New Heilig. William Boyd, Lupe Velez and Jetta Goudal are featured players.

AT THE COLONIAL—

Sue Carroll is the winsome female who eludes the men in "Win That Girl" at the Colonial. The story itself is an amusing collegiate triangle which is guaranteed to furnish lots of worth-while information to inquisitive beaux and belles.

AT THE STATE—

"Masquerade," at the State theatre, was adapted from "The Brass Bowl" by Luis Joseph Vance. A popular New York bachelor falls in love with a lady burglar and things begin to happen right pronto.

Comedy by Wilde To Be Produced November 20, 21

Cast Includes Guild Hall Players and Faculty Members

"The Importance of Being in Earnest," a comedy, by Oscar Wilde, will be produced November 20, 21, by the Guild Hall Players. Those taking part are the more advanced students in the drama department and several prominent members of the faculty.

"This play will undoubtedly be of interest to the campus from the point of view of originality. It is a sparkling comedy and gives just the opportunity for a student-faculty play," Cecil Matson, drama assistant said.

According to Otilie Turnbull Seybolt, head of the drama department, this play is being produced outside of the regularly planned plays in order to give a chance to those who otherwise would not have an opportunity to appear.

The cast is as follows: Fred Orin Harris of the architecture department as Lane; James Lyons, Guild Hall player as Algernon Moncrieff; Cecil E. Matson of the drama division as John Worthing, J. P.; Otilie T. Seybolt as Lady Bracknell; Helen Allen, Guild Hall player as Hon. Gwendolen Fairfax; E. Lenore Casford, of the library, as Miss Prism; Eleanor Rennie, Guild Hall player as Cecily Cardew; Louis Artau of the music department as Rev. Canon Chasuble, D. D.; S. Stephenson Smith of the English department as Merriman.

FACULTY TENNIS CONTEST BEGINS

Organization of a tennis tournament among members of the university faculty is under way. It will be a ladder tournament, according to Jack Hewitt of the physical education department. Names of the entrants will be listed alphabetically and anyone will have the right to challenge one of the three above him. All faculty men who wish to enter this tournament should hand in their names immediately to either Jack Hewitt, or Stephenson Smith.

Managers Run Store Owners Praise Work

Thirty-three students in Dean David Faville's class in merchandising and the three students in W. F. G. Thacher's class in advertising plunged into the intricacies of the merchandising business and learned the policies involved in "marking-up," buying and selling at a profit, and successfully managing of one store or a chain of stores when they operated the May stores yesterday.

Mr. L. L. Hurst, general manager of the chain of May Stores, stood about with a broad grin of satisfaction on his face.

"The students are doing wonderfully well," he said. "They have shown marked efficiency and intelligence in their work. In fact, we are so pleased with the run of things that we have planned to have the students take over control of the store for one day every year."

Students who were assigned positions are Karl Lanstrom, Bill Hammond, Anton Peterson, H. Metzelsar, Betty Hagen, Margaret Clark, Jean Patrick, William Hedlund, Fred Hollenbeck, Donald Wheat, Harold Fraundorf, W. B. Clark, Harold Hildreth, Wayne Robinson, Alfred Cooper, Ward Wintermeier, Earl Harbin, Margaret Barrett, George Weber, Gordon Miller, Harper Barnard, Garfield Hickman, Fred Hauger, Otis Wright, Horace Allen, Sidney Wolke, Norwald Nelson, Clarence Veal, A. E. McCarty, Claud Eldridge, Otma Fritz and Bernard Duhrkoop.

Baker Appoints Thirty-two Men To Athletic Posts

Appointments for Tennis, Swimming, Basketball Baseball Made

Thirty-two junior and sophomore men have been appointed to assistant athletic managerial posts for the winter and spring sports by Russell Baker, senior athletic manager.

The appointments were made for basketball, baseball, track, tennis and swimming. Plans are being made for the organization of a set of managers to handle golf, Baker stated. Golf is the newest of intercollegiate sports, and was recognized at Oregon last spring as a major sport. There have been no golf managers up to this time. Investigations will be made into the needs in handling this activity and appointments made accordingly, Baker said.

Russell Baker

Announcements of senior men to be in charge of each sport will be made as soon as the recommendations submitted by Russell Baker are passed on by the executive council of the Associated Students. Those appointed were:
