Dark Horses? Well Maybe... Oregon State Having Trouble Barometer Has New Sports Head...

By Harry Van Dine

OREGON, the "dark horse" of the Northwest division of the coast conference during the present basketball season? Why not? The Webfoots, with three sophomores playing in the regular line-up, have shown a decided improvement against Idaho, after getting off to a mediocre start against Washington State, and now Oregon is one of the most feared teams in the conference.

WITH a little more experience the Webfoots will be able to give any team in the league a real battle. Four members of the regular starting quintet never started in a conference game until this season, and it is only natural that they should be a little over-anxious in the first few games.

OREGON STATE has had its ups and downs in the conference play thus far. The Beavers took a real beating at the hands of Idaho in the opening game and then proceeded to show a complete reversal of form to lace the Vandals the following night.

THE Oregon State Barometer has a new man at the head of the sports department and he is getting off to a flying start. He is writing a snappy column and is the sort of fellow who will make it a lot easier for Oregon and Oregon State to get along as far as sports writing is concerned.

Moe May Claim Sports Honors for Oregon

Outstanding Golf Story Is Expert's Life

To Represent United States As Member of Team of Eight in England

Walker Cup Matches Goal Of Americans

Chosen as one of a team of eight golfers, who will represent the United States in the Walker Cup matches, to be held in England, May 15 and 16, Donald K. Moe may undisputedly claim the distinction of being the most outstanding sports personality the University of Oregon has had the privilege of numbering among its students.

Born and reared in Portland, Moe was introduced to the wood and iron clubs at the Waverly Country club, where he officiated as a caddy for three years. Don got his first real start in the game of golf when his older brother Roy, who is also a player of note, took an interest in his younger brother's game.

Since that time the rise of the recently honored star has been phenomenal. In 1927 he reached the finals of the Oregon state amateur tourney, only to lose to Rudie Wilhelm on the 38 hole. In the California state tournament, the same year, he defeated George Von Elm, who was the national champion the year before, and also eliminated Francis Brown, the Hawaiian champion.

Don won his first major title when, in 1928, he defeated a fellow student, Vinc Dolp, in the finals of the Oregon State meeting. In the same year he was runner-up to Dr. Willing, also of Portland and also a member of this year's Walker Cup team, in the Pacific Northwest tourney.

Last year's ranking of amateur golfers in the United States placed Moe in the second ten, which meant that he was ranked anywhere from 11 to 20. The Chicago papers, however, ranked him seventh.

Moe's teammates in this, the sixth, year of play for the Walker Cup, are all outstanding golfers, which further emphasizes the honor conveyed through his selection. The list headed by the famed Robert Tyre Jones of Atlanta, Georgia, who is captain of the Americans, includes Harrison Johnston, George Von Elm, Francis Oulmet, Dr. D. F. Willing, George Voigt, and Jess Sweetser. Alternates are Roland MacKenzie and Maurice McCarthy Jr.

VANDALS BEAT OREGON FIVE BY 4134 COUNT

(Continued from Page One) the players were on the floor most of the time. It began to look as if the game was going to become a football contest but the half-time gun closed hostilities and they were not resumed after the rest period.

Only One Substitution The starting lineup for the invaders proved to be composed of the work-horses of the squad as all with the exception of the center played the entire game without being relieved. They were able to capitalize on the tip-off to better advantage last night, both the Idaho centers being able to outjump their opponent consistently. The opening score of the game was made when Harold Stowell took the initial tipoff and, after a quick dribble, dropped a cripple shot for the two-points which started the red-shirted invaders on their scoring spree.

Suitable Date Sought For Swimming Meet; Activities Postponed

THE intramural swimming meet scheduled for Thursday night has been postponed for at least a week for until a suitable date can be found for it. Entries which have been received will be carried over.

play for the first time. Max Rubenstein was rushed into the game as a last-minute gesture to provide the needed scores and he came through with two baskets which was not quite enough. Ray Bell relieved Vinc Dolp when the latter started limping after having crashed into the grandstand in pursuit of the ball. He was not, however, seriously injured.

It was expected that Mervin Chastain, who has had varsity experience, having played on the Webfoot varsity two years ago, would be seen in action against the Vandals, but as he has been bothered by sinus trouble he will have to be kept on the bench for some time.

OREGON STATE LOSES

By Bill Simmons, Sports Editor, Oregon State Barometer Oregon State College, Corvallis, Jan. 14.—(Special)—Washington State made it two in a row over Oregon State here Tuesday night when the Cougars won a heart-breaking game, 23 to 27. The Pullman team led at half time, 10 to 10, and a great Oregon State second-half rally fell one point short of tying the score.

Mose Lyman and Howard Merrill, flashy sophomores, were sent into the game in the last three minutes of play with the Cougars leading 27 to 19, and they led the Orangemen in a desperate rally. The Beaver regulars were off form and could not get started. After getting off to an early lead in the opening minutes of play, the Orangemen slowed up and the Cougars were never headed. Rod Ballard and Callahan led the Beaver attack with five points each, while McLarney led the Cougars with 10 points. The Beavers will leave Corvallis Thursday for Seattle to meet the strong University of Washington five, last year's conference champions.

Donut Fencing Tournament To Be Staged

Powell, Individual Champ Of Northwest, To Act As Instructor

Five Newcomers To Take Part in Contests

An intramural fencing tournament for men will be held this term, according to an announcement by Warren C. Powell, fencing instructor here for the last three years.

Anyone in school will be eligible to enter the tournament, and from those who participate will be picked a team of three to five men which will represent Oregon in matches with northwest colleges.

Oregon's fencing team last year won the Northwest intercollegiate championship at the sports carnival held in Seattle. The Webfoots on the team beside Powell, were Winchester Heicher and Fred Radke. Powell won the individual fencing championship of the northwest, Washington and Washington State were defeated in the matches.

Powell is the only man back this year and so the other places on the team will be filled by new men. The advanced fencing students working out regularly are: Lee Winetrot, Richard Waggoner, Edwards Murges, and James Witman.

Beginners are: Les Whitehouse, Kenneth Eike, George Wadsworth, Robert McClurg, and Harry Mytinger.

The school has new fencing equipment and Powell says that the men are working hard and prospects for a good team are bright. Matches are being arranged with Reed college in Portland and with O. S. C. The date of the intramural tournament will be announced soon.

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF SCHOLARSHIPS HERE

(Continued from Page One) Helene Schaffer Huff fellowship, $1200; and the Anna Ottendorfer Memorial Research Fellowship for study in a German university, $1200. Holders of fellowships are not permitted to teach or to hold paid positions. Scholarship holders may do a small amount of teaching or paid work.

The Carola Woerishoffer graduate department of social economy and social research of Bryn Mawr offers two fellowships of the value of $810 and three scholarships worth $350 each.

Radcliffe college fellowships and scholarships for graduate students are open to women who present evidence of high scholarship and fitness for advanced study. The Alice Mary Longfellow fellowship is awarded annually for study abroad, and the Augustus Anson Whitney and the Benjamin Whitney, two fellowships of $1,500 each for study abroad, two of $1,200 for productive scholarship and four of $1,000 each. The Florence Z. Gilbert fellowship of $750 is for creative work in literature and arts by gifted women. Eight other fellowships and four scholarships are offered.

Mills college, California, fellowships and graduate scholarships for 1930-31 are the James Peironnet Pierce fellowships and the Amelia Anne Pease of $500 each, open for study in any department; the Elizabeth Mills Crother fellowship in music; and 18 Mills college trustee fellowships in the various departments. These 18 are teaching fellowships.

For Radcliffe, Cambridge, Mass., and Bryn Mawr college, Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania, application must be made by March 1, also.

Women students at the University of Oregon who wish further particulars as to the departments in which these awards are offered, may find them at the dean of women's office.

STUDENTS ASKED TO FIX GRADES

January 25, a week from this coming Saturday, is the date set by the registrar's office as the last on which grades on incompletes may be turned in to count on house averages. Incompletes may be made up for credit after that date, but such make-ups will not affect house ratings, it is pointed out.

Students who have incompletes from last term are urged to make them up immediately to insure their grades being turned in by the final date, if they do not wish to bring down the rating of their house.

Entering Students Reminded To Take Necessary Exams

Registrar's Office Issues Word That Fines for Neglect Impend

Reminder of the necessity of taking entrance exams was issued yesterday by the registrar's office to new students entering winter term. If students fail to keep their appointments for these exams their registration will be cancelled and they will have to petition to register and pay a fine, according to Miss Gertrude Stephenson, assistant to the registrar.

The psychology examination will be given on next Saturday, January 18, at 9 a. m., in room 101, Condon hall. The English A test will come that same afternoon at 2 o'clock in room 107, Villard. The students have already been notified of these appointments, and it is imperative that they keep them, Miss Stephenson says.

MOVIE TO BE SEEN IN VILLARD HALL

The second series of motion pictures to be shown in connection with Prof. Jesse H. Bond's class in manufacturing will be shown Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Villard hall. The films being used in this series are chosen by Professor Bond from a list supplied by the United States bureau of mines, many of them dealing with the problems of production and production management which the class is studying this term.

"Manufactured Abrasives" (in three reels) was filmed in connection with the Carborundum Company and repeats the experiment that led to the discovery of carborundum, shows methods of manufacture, methods of testing, and the many uses to which it can be applied.

"The Story of Heat Treatment of Steel" (in two reels) shows, by comparison between old and new automobiles, the necessity of the heat treatment of steel, to increase hardness, toughness, and flexibility. It describes the modern methods used and the forms of testing that are practiced.

Anyone interested is especially invited to attend, said Professor Bond, who believes that the films would prove of interest to a great many students and townspeople.

BOXERS TRAIN FOR DONUT CONTESTS

There are 25 Webfoot boxers practicing daily in a new two-rope ring in the boxing room of the men's gym for the donut elimination contests to come February 6 and 7.

According to Robert Knox, coach, who won at the Portland Northwest conference tournament two years ago in the welterweight class, there are bright prospects for the Webfoot men to win this year.

Outstanding men in their weights are: Bernard Hughes, center of the frosh eleven, and Charles Binder, heavyweights; Orville Garrett, welterweight; Evert Gayther and Mahr Reymes, lightweights; and Horace Eldridge and Phillip Carroll, featherweights.

Negotiations are under way to secure matches with Reed college, to come near the time of the donut elimination contest, to further try the metal of the boxers before they go to Portland, February 28 to 30, to box at the coast conference tournament for the coast title.

Frosh Basketball Team Preparing For Medford Tilt

Plenty of Work Slated for Yearlings by Callison And Milligan

With one victory safely stowed away in the locker room, the freshman basketball team took its daily exercise yesterday afternoon at McArthur court. Coach Prink Callison is not satisfied with the way the squad reacted to its first experience under the fire of the Chemawa basket shooters, even though the Indian boys were turned back by the decisive score of 47 to 25.

The next frosh game will be played against Medford high, coached by Merrill Hagan who graduated from Oregon last spring after serving three years as star guard on the Webfoot football team. The time of the game has not been decided yet but will probably be early in the evening.

Callison gave most of his squad the opportunity to limber up in the Chemawa game and continued to work with it yesterday. A lot of improvement in handling the ball is needed before the yearlings will be able to withstand the Rook onslaught beginning January 21. Speed is also lacking, but will improve as the team gets into better condition.

Red Roberts, Oakland high school product, showed good form in the game with the Indians and should develop into a reliable center. He is fairly clever on the floor and has a good basket eye. Clarence James and Bill Morgan are looking better all the time. With more practice this trio should make things tough for their opponents.
