Freshmen Putting Strong Lineup To Face Men From Northland

Callison's Scoring Aces To Meet Strong Rivals

The freshman basketball team in a battle with the Rooks at Corvallis tonight will attempt to keep their unblemished record intact and add another mark to in the games won column.

From an early season jumble of unorganized material, Coach Prink Callison and his assistant, Scott Milligan, have shaped a quintet that has swept victorious through four straight games, running up high scores in each tussle. As the development of the Rooks has been similar, the first clash between the rival yearlings should be interesting.

The probable starting lineup for Oregon consists of Don Siegmund and Clarence James, forwards; Bill Morgan and Cliff Garnett, guards; and Charles Roberts, center.

Siegmund Leads Scorers
Siegmund has consistently been the highest scoring man on the team although James also can sink them when the opportunity arises. Both men are fancy floor workers and should give the Rook defense plenty of trouble. Bill Morgan is a strong defensive player, while Cliff Garnett has been improving steadily since the beginning of the season. Roberts is a dependable center who has an uncanny ability to shoot accurately over or around his guard.

Should the starting five falter, they will be replaced by Hughie Evans and Homer Stahl, forwards; George Robertson and Leroy Shaneman, guards; and George Beechler, center. Undoubtedly these men will get plenty of exercise before the evening is over, as Callison has been giving each of his charges a chance to kick through in action. Bill Bowerman may also break in if his cold improves.

Although the frosh knocked over the Albany college quintet, 54 to 18, the Beaver babes followed suit with a 64 to 32 triumph. Salem high has been defeated twice by the Rooks, 32 to 17 and 21 to 17. The frosh played Salem Tuesday night, coming through with 43 to 22 win.

Aside from comparative scores the players show up evenly. The big push of the Rook attack is Ed Lewis, center. Reports from the Oregon State camp assert Lewis to be one of the best yearling hoop artists in the Northwest. Red McDonald, guard, is another regular who is fast winning his spurs. McDonald is a Medford high product. He was developed along with Cliff Garnett, Bill Morgan, and Bill Bowerman of the frosh by Prink Callison when Prink coached the Pearpickers. Besides these two, the Rook regulars are Emmett Huffman, Tommy Ward, Art Lowe, Reg Rust, Rodney Mason, Bob Beal, and Mark Briggs.

The time of tonight's Rook game will be 7:30. Tomorrow night, the Frosh and Rooks will play a return game as a preliminary to the Washington-Oregon contest at McArthur court.

ing a survey of co-operative buying, of both here and at O. S. C. and is preparing a paper, which when finished will be available for house managers, and will be used in the offices of the dean of men and of women.

Rae Gives Course
Hugh Biggs, assistant dean of men, who was present at the meeting, urged that all the house managers enroll in the course being given for house managers by John M. Rae, in the business ad school. There has been some feeling of resentment over the campus that the questionnaire that was required to be filled out in the course, pryed too closely into the affairs of the houses, because it asked for a frank statement of the financial situation. Dean Biggs assured them that the University was not prying into the house affairs and that a statement of their finances would be of help to them, if they were "embarrassed" for the time being, as then pledges could be released to them proportionately.

The University of Washington five, pictured above, will be defending its title tonight as Northwest conference champions. The quintet has swept through a hard pre-season schedule with just one upset and that to the De Neffe team of Eugene. They hold victories over Gonzaga, Whitman, and several semi-pro teams. From left to right, the players are: Hank Swanson, tall veteran forward; Ralph "Cat" Cairney, a sophomore guard, considered by Coach Hec Edmundson to be the best prospect developed at Washington in years; Art Peterson, guard or forward, probably the crack shot of the team; Hal McClary, who uses his six feet four inches of height to good advantage at center; and Virg Perry, forward, who is a fine floor worker and scoring threat.

Webfoots Renew Race Against Huskies

COACH BILL REINHART'S fighting Webfoots will renew their battle for conference honors against the University of Washington Huskies at McArthur court tonight. The Huskies will mix it with the Webfoots in the second game of the series at the Igloo Saturday evening.

The Huskies have bitten a tough assignment, as they will play four hard games in five days. Their only day of rest will be Sunday as they journey to Corvallis to meet the Oregon State tossers on Monday and Tuesday evenings. The latter series will probably develop into one of those "grudge" affairs as the Beavers split even with the Huskies in their two-game series at Seattle last week, after Washington was figured to take both contests easily.

Seems as though the whole Washington attack is dependent upon Hal McClary, giant center, as it functions in great style when McClary is on, and doesn't do so hot when the said person is off his basketball. Coach Edmundson will probably start four lettermen against Oregon, with "Cat" Cairney, sophomore guard, filling the other berth. Hank Swanson, another tall personage, and Jiggs Jaloff, the flashy small-sized veteran, will hold down the forward berths. McClary will have charge of the center duties, with Cairney and Art Peterson at guards.

Freshman Tossers Open Rook Series

NOT to be outshone by their "big brothers," the freshman team will hop over to Corvallis this afternoon to tangle with the Oregon State Rooks in the first of the four game "little big series." It should be a great battle, with both teams fighting to keep their undefeated records unblemished. Coach Prink Callison has a well balanced team, with several good reserves, while the Rooks seem to have built their quintet around lanky Ed Lewis, reputed to be one of the greatest players ever developed in Portland.

The frosh have run rough shod over all opposition this year, and their record reads four wins and no defeats. The Chemawa Indians, Medford high, Albany college, and Salem high have been conquered in the order named. In every game the yearlings have had things all their own way, running up a big score in each. The Rooks have also fared well, but they have had to work harder for some of their victories. This game will again be the scene of a Medford battle, with the flashy Red McDonald pitted against Bill Morgan and Cliff Garnett. Said McDonald was the young man who caused the Frosh so much trouble during the past football season. Morgan, Garnett, and McDonald were teammates at Medford high school.

Coach Callison will probably start his regular team composed of Clarence James and Cliff Garnett, forwards; George Beechler, center; and Bill Morgan and Don Siegmund, guards, against the Rooks. There is a real battle being waged between Beechler and Red Roberts for the center berth, with neither man seemingly able to obtain an advantage over the other. There is no doubt of the scoring abilities of James or Siegmund, as these men have been taking turns winning high point honors in the practice games. James came out on top against Salem, with ten markers, Bill Morgan is a great defensive player and Garnett, Roberts, and Beechler are steady men.

Women's Basketball Managers Are Picked

The organization of girls' basketball teams is being started with the selection of class managers. Maude Brittan has been chosen as freshman manager; Juanita Young for the sophomores; Jessie Puckett, juniors; and Betty Pennock, seniors. The managers are to pick the teams who in turn will select their captains. The freshman team will be picked Monday; the sophomore team, Wednesday; juniors, Thursday; and seniors, Friday. Tuesday is to be left free. There will be regular basketball but no team selection.

Tennis Team Negotiates to Slate Matches

WINTER practice for the tennis team, according to Coach S. Stephenson Smith, will be confined strictly to indoor work and will continue, regardless of the weather, until spring term.

Negotiations are at present under way to arrange matches with California, Stanford, Oregon State, and Washington. If completed, the California and Oregon State matches will be held in Eugene. The matches with Washington and Stanford will be held at Seattle and Palo Alto respectively.

The team will also play in the Pacific coast championships, held in Los Angeles about the middle of May, providing the plans go through. Should Oregon have another successful year, there is a possibility that a team representing the University will be sent east.

Coach Smith plans to give lectures, spring term, on the fundamentals and tactics of tennis. His purpose in giving these lectures is to stimulate the interest in tennis on the campus.

State District Attorneys Honor Law Graduate

Edwin Hicks Is Named on Executive Committee of Association

Already prominent in the legal profession despite the fact that he is the youngest district attorney in the entire United States, the Edwin Hicks, of Grant county, a graduate of the University law school, was named last week as a member of the executive committee of the state association of district attorneys.

Hicks, who is now but 23, has served as a district attorney for Grant county since the elections last fall and has made an excellent record, his colleagues and people of that county declare. He was an outstanding student while at the University, winning numerous prizes and other honors.

In Grant county young Hicks faces the peculiar situation of prosecuting cases in which his father represents the defendant. Mr. Hicks, senior, is one of the leading lawyers of that county, but the two do not let their relationship interfere with their work in any way.

Tennis Men Plan Exhibition Match At Igloo Tonight

Harrison and Lockwood To Play Following Basketball Game

As a special feature after tonight's basketball game Bradshaw Harrison and Sherman Lockwood, both members of last year's varsity tennis team will play an exhibition tennis match on the floor of the Igloo, announced Tom White, sophomore tennis manager.

Harrison and Lockwood are double champions of the coast and were members of the last year's team that won the team championship of the United States.

Red balls will be used so that spectators in the balcony can see the progress of the match.

This match will give fans an opportunity to see two of the best tennis players on the coast in action. Harrison is number one on the varsity tennis team and Lockwood holds down number two. Lockwood has been pressing Harrison lately for his position and the match should be a good one.

HALL ANNOUNCES COACHE'S ACCEPTANCE

whole situation is found in the fact that Dr. Spears is not only a masterful coach, but that he is also an educator. There is no doubt but that there is a decided tendency to over-emphasize the importance of athletics in higher education. The best solution that I know to this over-emphasis is to place athletics in the charge of men who believe in education first and who sees in athletics only a means to a larger educational end.

Dr. Spears has won a reputation as being a great and inspiring teacher. He will soon win the confidence and admiration of student body and public alike, and the prestige that will be his will be thrown solidly behind the educational program and ideals of the University of Oregon. This program and these ideals we have talked over together for hours and he comes to Oregon determined to make a great football team and just as determined to be a successful champion of the finest ideals of education and of life that the University of Oregon is striving to serve.
