

Stoddard Outlines Desirable Points for New Constitution

School for Yell-Leaders, Supreme Court Are Needed

Student Body President Hopes To Submit Remodelled Draft for Vote Sometime in April

CREATION of a yell-leaders' school, a "supreme court" on the campus to make final decisions on student matters, and individual constitutions for each class are among the outstanding recommendations which Tom Stoddard, student body president, hopes to see in the new constitution now being drawn up by a student commission.

The final draft will be submitted for student approval at an election about the second week in April, two weeks prior to the general election polls.

"A constitution should be a mere statement of fact," he said. He believes that the sections in Article III providing for the subsidiary committees to the student council are weak and detailed, and that they should merely be provided for in the constitution proper. He suggests that their duties be placed in the by-laws in order that they may be changed more easily.

Should State Qualities
He suggests that, in accordance with the United States constitution, the section entitled "General Officers" in Article II should state specifically the qualifications and requirements of A. S. U. officers in order to avoid conflicts that have been experienced recently in this University.

The University should have a tribunal in its organization that would correspond to the supreme court of the United States, he maintains. The appointment of the members of this body by the executive council would be provided for in the constitution, and its duties would be to interpret the constitution and to decide matters such as the conflict concerning "Socks from Socrates," the anonymous paper that was put out recently by a group of University students.

Classes Need Writs
He also recommends that "blanket" constitutions for each class on the campus be added to the constitution, which will regulate membership and state specifically their duties. This will give each class a definite authority to refer to, thus eliminating many conflicts that have been struggled through in the past.

"A student body that is easy to assess will be assessed very often," declared the president in advocating his next suggestion, that the constitution should state how special assessments must be made. His plan is that for two weeks ahead of time the Emerald publish information about the proposed assessment. If any students object, they can file their objections in the graduate manager's office.

The president will then decide whether the objections are serious or not, and if they are not, he will bring the matter before the executive council to be voted upon. If the council favors it and the student body objects, the students may file a petition of 200 names to have the decision repealed. If the students favor it, the assessment will be laid on the students without question.

Suggests Yell School
Stoddard's last suggestion is to provide for a yell-leaders' school to prevent conflicts such as the University experienced this year, and to free the matter from politics. The plan would be to have some boy who is acquainted with the art of yell leading select several eligible men as his pupils.

He would have a class and would have one or two different men act as his assistants at the games for a year. At the end of the year he would refer one of them to the president, who would submit his name to the executive council to be voted upon. In this way the best man would receive the office, and politics would play no part.

A Chinaman tried to sell some coolie coats to fraternity men at Ohio State university. No luck. But he was minus seven coats at the end of his route, and appealed to police for their return. He claimed they were pilfered by the boys and distributed among the girl friends, as many coats turned out in the party outfits.

High Y. W. Worker Will Arrive Sunday

Winifred Wygal, national executive secretary of the student movement, will arrive Sunday from San Francisco to confer with girls on the campus who have scheduled interviews for next year's Y. W. Cabinet.

Miss Wygal will talk to the members of the present cabinet together with the aspirants at a "retreat" in the Y. W. bungalow Sunday from 2:30 until 6. At that time she will explain the "true meaning of Y. W. C. A."

This interview is imperatively necessary for the members and those who are trying out for cabinet to attend, according to Dorothy Thomas, secretary of Y. W.

FROGS, CRICKETS PLAY

Tiny Insects Hop From Earth To Act in Program

By BOBBY REID
Crickets and frogs thrive in this almost balmy spring weather. If you don't believe it, you should drop in Villard assembly and see them dancing and chirping, or making whatever noise crickets and frogs make when together.

Cecile Coss is the most adorable little frog you ever saw. Then there is Betty Fairchild. A real "sure-nuff" cricket just wouldn't have a prayer around her. It would crawl back into its crickety little hole and pine away for lack of attention.

These frogs and crickets didn't creep out of the earth, but hopped "From the Book of Wonder," one-act play written by Alice Henson Ernst, to be presented Wednesday evening, February 5, at the Guild Hall theater, by Phi Beta, music and drama honorary. They appear frequently throughout the play, which is a fantastic dream bit, intended only for entertainment.

The costumes for all the actors in the play were designed by Constance Coe, of Portland, who is gaining considerable recognition for her work; Fred Harris of the art department is in charge of setting.

In contrast to the Peter Pan-ish quality of this play, "Get-away," written by Sally Elliot Allen, is the other part billed for the same evening, also given by the Phi Beta group. It is a tense, psychological drama of entirely different appeal from the other play.

From there she will travel by train to Washington, D. C., for a short stay and from there to New York, N. Y. She is in Portland at present, and plans to be accompanied by her uncle on her journey.

Senior Class Frolics at Campa Shoppe.

The members of the senior class held an informal "kid party" at the Campa Shoppe last night. All-day suckers were served as refreshments and prizes for the best "boy baby face" and the best "girl baby face" were distributed. Music was furnished by Johnny Robinson's "Varsity Vagabonds."

Patrons for the affair included: Dean and Mrs. James H. Gilbert, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Leslie Schwering, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas I. Chapman, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gage.

Freshmen Hold Dance At Gerlinger Hall

While the seniors romped through their "kid party" at the Campa Shoppe, the freshmen enjoyed an informal dance at Gerlinger hall, to music furnished by George Weber's orchestra. Harvey Welch was chairman of the affair.

Patrons were: Dean and Mrs. John Straub, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. G. Thacher, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Godfrey, Celia Stoddard, Hugh Biggs, John M. Rae, and S. Stephenson Smith.

Myrtle McDaniel Will Go to New York Soon

Myrtle McDaniel, member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, will leave in a short time for San Francisco.

Lucille Kraus, freshman in English, was elected president of the Frosh Commission today. Jean Lennard was elected vice-president; Eileen McIntyre, secretary; Nora Jane Stewart, treasurer; and Aimee Steen, sergeant-at-arms.

The "polls" at the bungalow were opened from 9 until 5 o'clock, including the lunch hour, so every freshman had the chance to vote. The commission will begin work immediately, according to Dorothy Thomas, secretary of the Y. W., and will have its first meeting sometime next week.

Gertrude Skow, the county home demonstration agent, will lead the Personality discussion group which will be held Monday at 4 o'clock at 768 East 12th street, instead of the bungalow.

The discussion this week will be on "Personality and Personal Appearance." Miss Skow will give some color readings which are the scientific way of determining what colors the girls ought to wear. She will use one of the girls in the group for her subject, and the apparatus will be left after the meeting for anyone else to use.

The Jayhawker, University of Kansas yearbook, has a practice of selling pictures of beauty candidates to newspapers in order to help pay expenses of printing. The papers discriminated against are fighting the practice and faculty members threaten to discontinue it.

Four Executives Will Represent Portland Dailies

R. G. Callvert To Be Chief Speaker on Saturday Morning Program

150 Journalists Expected To Attend Meetings

Each of the four daily newspapers of Portland will be represented by an executive in its organization when the twelfth annual conference of Oregon editors and publishers convenes on the campus next Thursday afternoon.

About 150 newspaper men are expected to attend the sessions of the conference Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, according to Dean Eric W. Allen of the school of journalism, and among them will be two Portland editors, one business manager, and one managing editor.

R. G. Callvert, editor of the Portland Oregonian, will be the chief speaker at the Saturday morning meeting. He is to read a paper on "The Editorials in the Upstate Press," a detailed report which he has been working up for some time.

Simeon R. Winch, business manager of the Oregon Journal, will speak Friday on "What's Ahead for the Newspaper?" The Existing Situation." Mr. Winch will develop his subject with respect to publishing and management problems on papers in the eastern part of the country, with which he is closely associated.

The Portland Telegram will be represented at the convention by Lester Adams, managing editor. He has been making a study of editorials in Oregon newspapers, and will talk on "Interest in the Page" at the annual banquet Friday evening.

Ralph J. Benjamin, editor of the Portland News, also will be among the delegates. Earle Richardson, publisher and editor of the Dallas Itemizer-Observer, is president of the 1930 conference. Prof. George S. Turnbull, of the University of Oregon school of journalism, is secretary.

Safe-crackers and pickpockets are the lecturers at the University of Chicago. They speak before classes in criminal investigation.
